Volunteer Instructors Sought

Volunteers with a high level of interest in black bears and bear hunting are being sought by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources to serve as principal presenters at Department of Natural Resources black bear seminars.

The DNR Enforcement Division will provide training for the six to ten successful candidates who will be selected through interviews of those who apply to be trainers. Applicants must have public speaking experience and five to ten years of bear hunting experience. Background as a DNR Advanced Hunter Education Program presenter is helpful but not required.

Successful candidates must be available to present a minimum of four seminars each year, which will require a time commitment of 25 to 35 hours per year, training and travel time included. They must be respected by their peers, and be free of game and fish law violations for the last five years.

The DNR will aid the bear seminar presenters by identifying communities and facilities in which to host seminars and providing seminar promotion.

For more information contact Bev Auger at 612-296-0890.

Upon searching for the subject, 20-year-old Anthony Thomas Spaeth of Thief River Falls was located and now faces charges of consumption under age and fifth degree assault.

On March 1 at 2:40 a.m. a man came to the law enforcement center to report that he had been assaulted earlier in the evening. Charges are pending against 28-year-old Gina Olise Weippert of Thief River Falls, for allegedly punching the victim in the face numerous times.

On March 2 the Thief River Falls police department and Pennington County Sheriff's department, and the Paul Bunyan Task Force executed a search warrant at a local residence. Disorderly conduct. On March 7 at 11:14 a.m. police received some 911 calls from a local residence. Each call was disconnected. Upon investigation it was learned that residents had wanted a person removed from a party and he would not leave. Myron Dean Sunram, Thief River Falls, was cited for trespassing and disorderly conduct after he refused to leave and wrestled with an officer.

Public nuisance. On March 1 at 1:48 a.m. police received a complaint of a loud party. A verbal warning was given, but at 3:53 a.m. police were called back to the same location because of the loud party. Jeffery Allen Griffith, 35, Thief River Falls, was charged with public nuisance and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Driving while intoxicated. On March 1 police were in the process of responding to a disturbance when they observed a vehicle skidding sideways at the intersection of First and Brooks. The vehicle straightened out and then began traveling west. The vehicle was stopped and 21-year-old Casey Dean Johnson of Roseau was charged with gross misdemeanor driving while intoxicated and open bottle. He was also cited for leaving the scene of an accident after traveling north in an alley and colliding with a dumpster and leaving.

Reckless driving. On March 2 Pennington County Sheriff's deputies were on patrol early Sunday when they observed a car being driven very erratically. The driver then allegedly attempted to flee from officers when they attempted to pull the vehicle over. Lisa Jayne Parson, 26, Strandquist, faces charges of reckless driving and fleeing a police officer. While she was being transported to the law enforcement center, Parsons kicked out the driver's side rear window out of the squad car. She is also being charged with criminal damage to property in the first degree.

Thefts. On March 8 at 12:18 a.m. police received a report from a local business about some individuals that had just left the store. Matthew Paul Larson, 18, was cited for minor consuming alcohol and open bottle.

On March 7 at 8:35 a.m. the sheriff's department received a report that a 1994 Chevrolet pickup had been taken from inside a garage. It was located three miles west of Thief River Falls. The thefts remain under investigation.

On March 9, law enforcement recovered the safe taken from the Lantern Restaurant and Lounge. It was found in a wooded area, three and one-half mile south of Thief River Falls. There was nothing inside the safe. Mark Steve Groslie, 18, Thief River Falls, has been charged with the January 16, 1998, burglary.

These reports include names of individuals charged, arrested or cited with various crimes and offenses by police, the sheriff's department or other law enforcement officials. Depending upon the circumstances of a case, charges can be, and sometimes are, changed or dropped by law enforcement officials or attorneys even before the case reaches court. Readers should also realize that under the American system of jurisprudence, individuals charged with crimes are innocent until proven guilty of those crimes in a court of law.

NW Minnesota veterans received $12,742,758

Military veterans in nine counties of northwestern Minnesota received a total of $12,742,758 from the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs during fiscal year 1997, according to the VA regional office and insurance center in St. Paul.

Ronald J. Henke, director of the center, said that nearly $323 million was distributed to Minnesota veterans in 1997, with over $260 million for service and non-service connected disabilities.

In addition, VA spent more than $21 million for readjustment and vocational rehabilitation benefits and over $41 million for insurance and indemnity payments.

The $12,742,758 total for northwestern Minnesota includes the counties of Beltrami, Clearwater, Kittson, Lake of the Woods, Marshall, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau.

Beltrami county accounts for more than a third of the total with a veteran population of 3,612 and total expenditures of $4,474,567 including $3,674,208 in compensation and pension, $475,187 in readjustment and vocational rehabilitation and $325,172 in insurance and indemnities.

Clearwater county has 987 veterans with total payments of $1,363,997 including $1,250,874 in compensation and pension, $23,886 in readjustment and vocational rehab and $89,237 in insurance and indemnities.

Lake of the Woods county's 536 veterans received a total of $498,489 with $447,560 in compensation and pension, $2,812 in readjustment and vocational rehab and $48,117 in insurance and indemnities.

Governor signs agreement on sensitive lands

Governor Arne H. Carlson and U. S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) Deputy Secretary Richard Rominger, at the Minnesota Valley National Wildlife Refuge Center, signed an agreement which will set aside 100,000 acres of environmentally sensitive lands in the Minnesota River Valley.

The program, dubbed the Minnesota River Watershed Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program, was submitted to the USDA by the Governor in 1996 and is intended to improve water quality in the Minnesota River basin.

"In 1992, at this same site, I issued a call to make the Minnesota River fishable and swimmable in 10 years," said Governor Carlson. "By signing this agreement today, we are well on our way to achieving that goal."

The Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program would remove up to 100,000 acres of environmentally sensitive lands in the Minnesota River basin from agricultural production and place them under perpetual or long-term easements. Eventually, an additional 90,000 acres may be eligible for the program, making this the largest set-aside program in the United States. Under the voluntary program, land would first be enrolled in a 15-year contract through the Federal Conservation Reserve Program (CRP), followed by a perpetual or long-term easement under the state Reinvest in Minnesota (RiM) Reserve Program.

"Restoring these lands to their natural habitat will help prevent soil erosion and runoff, thereby decreasing sediment and chemical loads in the river," said Governor Carlson. "Ultimately, this will create a "buffer zone" between the farming land we need and the clean river we want."

Priority would be given to perpetual easements. Upon initial enrollment, landowners would receive a lump sum payment through the Rim Reserve Program, followed by 15 years of annual CRP payments. Lands enrolled through this partnership would target frequently flood riparian lands, ditches, tile inlets, buffer strips adjacent to rivers and wetland restoration areas.

The program will be administered by the Minnesota Board of Water and Soil Resources and the Minnesota offices of the USDA Farm Services Agency. Locally, soil and water conservation districts and Farm Service Agency county office personnel will be administering and accepting applications beginning April 1, 1998.

The Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program had its genesis in the recommendations of the 30-member Minnesota River Citizen's Advisory Committee appointed by Governor Carlson. Recommendations of the committee included the procurement of permanent easements on 200,000 acres of flood prone land, the establishment of buffer zones along mainstream and tributary streams and ditches and restoration of quality wetlands in the river basin.

Danae Dekkers participates in concert choir

Danae Dekkers, a senior at Dordt College, will participate in the upcoming six-state tour by the college's Concert Choir. Dekkers is the daughter of Willard Dekkers of Thief River Falls.

The Dordt College Concert Choir, directed by Professor Ben Kornelis, will be touring and giving concerts in parts of Nebraska, Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona, California, Utah, and Iowa from March 12-22.

The 52-voice choir will perform works from a variety of musical periods. Music by Palestrina, Mozart, Brahms, Holst, and Randall Thompson will all be included. A variety of songs from different cultural origins will also be performed. Most of the music is sung a cappella, although some will be accompanied by piano, organ and brass.

Legislature passes Critical Access Hospital bill

State lawmakers have approved legislation that will preserve the quality of care in rural communities for future generations by establishing the Critical Access Hospital program, according to the Minnesota Hospital and Healthcare Partnership. The proposal, which was developed by MHHP and the Minnesota Department of Health, passed 122-2 in the House and 60-0 in the Senate. The bill was sponsored by Rep. Mary Ellen Otremba (DFL-Long Prairie) and Sen. Dallas Sams (DFL-Staples).

"The Critical Access Hospital program will help ensure that local access to vital health care services is maintained in rural areas that can no longer sustain a traditional acute care hospital," said Stephen Rogness, president, MHHP, an association representing Minnesota's hospitals and health systems. "The bill passed by the state Legislature this week will allow Minnesota hospitals to participate in the new federal program."

Established by Congress under the 1997 Balanced Budget Act, the CAH program allows rural hospitals to receive cost-based reimbursement for services to Medicare patients — a change from the traditional payment method in which hospitals are paid in advance of care at an amount often below the cost to the hospital. In addition, CAHs are allowed to use flexible staffing arrangements in the emergency room in order to meet patient demand more efficiently. In exchange for these modifications, hospitals are required to limit lengths of stay to 96 hours and the number of beds at their facility.

One of the primary federal eligibility criteria of the program deals with a hospital's geographic location. In order to qualify for the CAH program, a facility must be located more than a 35-mile drive (or in areas with only secondary roads available, a 15-mile drive) from the nearest hospital or be certified as a necessary provider of health care services to residents in the area. Rogness explained that the bill passed by the Legislature defines necessary providers as hospitals that are more than 20 miles from the nearest hospital or that are the sole hospital in a county.

"The parties involved in crafting this proposal agreed that a change to the mileage criteria was necessary to reflect the unusually harsh and lengthy winters we have in Minnesota," Rogness said. "The state mileage standard would be 20 miles — or about 30 minutes of drive time — which is what the state has determined to be reasonable access to care."

Before the program can be implemented, however, federal criteria requires that states submit to the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services a rural health plan that creates rural networks, promotes regionalization of services and improves access to care. The plan, including any changes in eligibility requirements made at the state level, must be approved by the department.

"The typical hospital that may be interested in this program would likely serve a high precentage of Medicare beneficiaries, have an average length of stay of four days or fewer and have difficulty recruiting and retaining physicians," Rogness explained. "Instead of closing these facilities, which is what might have happened, this new program will help ensure that our rural communities continue to have access to health care."

Donny and Marlys Lofrooth were dinner guests of Connie Berry, in Middle River, on Wednesday, and later came to Elsie Lofrooth's to practice some music for Sunday. Pearl Thompson, Roy Vagle, Isaac, and Betsy Thompson, joined them in the evening.

Elmer Holmstrom, Evelyn Albaugh, Lowell Lofrooth, Dustin Oehrle, Bud and Marie Steffen, and Claudia and Kali Berggren, visited Judy Kleinvachter this week.

Shirley Lofrooth and JoAnne Holmstrom visited Elsie Lofrooth on Thursday afternoon. In the evening, Elsie had a get-to-together, to acquaint Karin Zimmerman's mother, Olnny Fite, of Aurora, CO, with Isaac and Betsy Thompson, and Pearl Thompson.

I have to apologize and make a correction to that great bird of song and verse, Robert Burns. In haste I wrote his name as Riley. Please excuse. Thanks to my readers who noticed my mistake.

The weather in Northwest Minnesota this past week has been cloudy with an occasional snow shower which turns to slush because the temperature is above normal. Out here in Western Montana the weather is much like Northwest Minnesota, except it gets warmer in the daytime but cooler at night. I think the 2,500 to 3,000 foot difference in altitude is the reason. Now that March has come around, we can begin to get serious about studying the seed catalogues that have been accumulating in the magazine rack and get ready for our favorite season, Spring.

Becky Johnson and Jake visited Peter and Pearl Thompson on Sunday.

Kelly Almquist

Desiraa Albarg

Desirae Alberg and Kelly Almquist, seniors at Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls, are serving as Student Rotarians with the Thief River Falls Rotary Club during the month of March.

While learning about the projects and activities of the worldwide Rotary organization, the students attend the Monday noon dinner meetings of the club at the Best Western Inn and report on activities for the week at Lincoln. They are brought to the meetings by Lincoln principal Terry Soine.

Desirae, 18, is the daughter of Myles and Kathy Alberg of rural Thief River Falls. She is a captain of the Lincoln varsity volleyball and track teams, historian for the National Honor Society, vice president of HOSA, leader in Project-4-Teens, a member of the Key Club and an A honor student.

She has been a representative to Girls State under sponsorship of the Ecklund-Holmstrom Unit 117 of the American Legion Auxiliary and served as treasurer of the Happy Acres 4-H club.

Desirae's hobbies and interests include athletics and spending time with family and friends. She has two older sisters, Tammy Lenarz, 27 and Erica Alberg, 23. She is still making decisions on post high school education.

Kelly, 17, is the daughter of Robert and Mary Almquist of St. Hilaire. She is senior class president, National Honor Society president, state and national student council representative, Project-4-Teens leader, Close-Up member and has been a member of the school Envirothon team.

An honor roll student, she participates in softball, is a student member of the PER committee, sings in the concert choir and will be making the choir tour to New York City this spring.

Outside of school she is a member of the Evangelical Free Church and its youth group, sings in the church choir, works in the church nursery and has been a counselor at the county safety camp.

Hobbies and interests include singing, softball and other athletics and spending time with friends and family. She has a sister Kim, 15 and a brother Dan, 14.

Kelly plans to attend the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks and pursue a degree in physical therapy.

Polk County Nursing Service provides many good services for us in this part of the county as well as around the area. This is not a new service, but some may not know it is available, or forget about the time for the scheduled days.

I remember the Nursing Service had their scheduled clinics at the time when Victor Thorson was living, and he would come to Gully when the nurse was here, to get his B-12 shot. Victor often mentioned how nice it was not to have to sit in a crowded doctor's office to wait for an available nurse to give him his shot. I, too, feel the same way. It is so handy and time-saving.

In Gully, the Community Center is the Community Health Promotion site. Usually the Nursing Service is here every two weeks. Mrs. Loman was here on February 23. The next clinic will be on March 9, from 1:30 p.m. to 3:00 p.m. The Foot Care Clinic will also be included. Nurses will soak and trim toenails for those requesting it. The cost for foot care is $7.00. Free blood pressure screening is available. At the next clinic in Gully, in March, there will be free blood pressure checks and blood sugar tests will be available for $2.00. The nurses look forward to seeing residents at these clinics. They need people making use of the services to make it worthwhile for them to make the trip over here from Crookston. The Nursing Service also provides immunization clinics in the various communities. These clinics provide parents convenient access to childhood immunization. There is no charge for vaccine, but a donation of $4.00 per vaccine, for administration, is requested.

I hope people around here will surprise the nurses and keep them busy during their time in Gully. We hope to keep them coming!

Lund Ladies Aid meets on Wednesday, March 11, with Candace Bruggeman, Noreen Carlson, Alisa Halvorson and Pam Dyrdahl as hostesses.

When I was at the Gully Cafe one morning, looking and writing up some news and also getting breakfast, Edna noticed what I was doing, and decided I needed some encouragement. When my breakfast order arrived, it was one large pancake the size of the plate, but it had two tiny pancakes the size of a 50 cent piece for eyes, and a long narrow canoe-shaped pancake for a smiling mouth. I debated if I should go home and eat toast and leave the smiling pancake for all the customers to see, but temptation was too great, so I ate the smiling face.

Larry and Norma Emerson visited Effie Handy on Sunday afternoon. Amber Peoples visited with Effie on Thursday, and on Sunday evening Karen Weber visited with Effie.

Carol Torgerson packed a box of goodies, loaded them in the car, and took Les along and drove over to Gully on Saturday evening. They stopped at Arnold and Sanna's home to share a meal in honor of Les' birthday. Gay and Doreen and Sarah Brovold drove in and Luke was also there, and Sanna and husband, Tony Gustafson, from Wenneska. We were ten, seated around the kitchen table, all happy to sing "Happy Birthday" to Les. It was also Wayne Brekke's birthday that day and we invited him over. But he was one of the first "Snow Birds" to arrive from the "South" and was too busy visiting friends. Millie Brovold sent over a plate of freshly baked buns, and a plate of fresh cookies which we really enjoyed with our meal.

Ranae Clemenson and daughter, Heather of Bemidji, visited Ranae's folks, Arlie and Luverne Fore, on Saturday.

Halvor and Vivian Rikje visited at the Jean Branna home at Thief River Falls on Wednesday. They also had a chance to visit with Jean's daughter, Barbara, who was home from the Cities, where she works at the Federal Reserve Bank.

Alvin and Sybil Bergman, of Clearbrook, visited at the Kenneth and Alice Forsberg home on Sunday evening.

Roy says the amaryllis we received for Christmas is now blooming, with two stems of flowers. He must be sweet-talking them to get them to produce like that, since I'm not around to be chirping to him. I'm hurrying to get done so I can be home before they wilt. He's been busy looking after things, and also gathering the news, and phoning them so I can FAX it back there in time to go to print.

Isaac and Betsy Thompson attended a funeral in Grafton, ND, for their friend, Bill Gorder, Sr., the father of North Dakota's Senator Bill Gorder.

Mike and Betty Johnson had coffee with Elphie Adils on their way home to Warroad from Thief River Falls.

Pearl Thompson, Marlys Lafrooth and Betsy Thompson visited Elsie Lafrooth on Friday.

Judy Kleinvachter visited June Kasprowicz on Thursday, to celebrate Vance Lafrooth Jr's birthday.

Elmer Holmstrom and Evelyn Albaugh visited Isaac and Betsy on Sunday.

Kelly Lafrooth, Amanda and Jessica, Angeline Bothum and June Kasprowicz visited Judy Kleinvachter this week. Judy visited Elmer Holmstrom and Evelyn Albaugh on Saturday afternoon.

Isaac and Betsy Thompson went to Red Lake Falls to visit with Richard and Carol Thompson on Saturday.

We have a lot of fun and laughter around here some days. Sonny and Janet's friend, Pixie, who calls herself a 100-proof Indian, can keep anyone in stitches. She was moving into her new mobile home and just put everything in big black Glad bags, which she called Indian suitcases, and piled them into her pickup truck. Her neighbor came out with a big bag of garbage and asked if she would take it along to the dump, and threw it up on her load. She just said, "OK," and drove off. Now when she moved into her new home and you phone her, you may hear, "You have reached my tin-topee and when I get home, I'll send you some smoke signals."

I had planned to be home before March 8, for Roy's birthday, but due to the circumstances, I can't make it for another week. Happy birthday, Roy.

The weather in northwest Minnesota is still trying to compensate for the last couple of winters when we had so many blizzards we almost had to take off our shoes to count them as we ran out of fingers. The Flathead Valley had also had a nice winter and when they get a skiff of snow, or two to three inches of it, many drivers, especially newcomers to the area, find some ditches are quite deep.

I'm sitting in the breakfast nook watching dozens of little birds eating in the feeders outside the window. On one feeder there are six or seven busy eating and spitting out hulls and on the other feeder only one and he hasn't been able to have his breakfast. I had best quit looking at the birds and get this done so Janet can FAX it back to you. Roy is such a jewel to round up the news and phone it out to me.

Kelley Riedel of Cavalier, ND was an overnight guest at Kristin Kleinvachter on Saturday night.

Brent Thompson and Chris Caricco had breakfast at Peter and Pearl Thompson's on Monday.

Isaac and Betsy Thompson brought belated birthday greetings to Marie Johnson on Monday. Later they accompanied Lloyd and Marie to the Fellowship Meeting in Begley.

Allan Rasmusson of International Falls visited Isaac Thompson on Friday.

Becky Johnson and Michelle and Jake spent Saturday evening at Peter and Pearl Thompson.

Elsie Lafrooth was busy on Tuesday entertaining Pearl Thompson, Marie Johnson, Betsy Thompson, Mary and Donna Ronstrom, Chris Carrico, and John and Marian Oagre of Halma.

Kay Turnwall of St. Hilaire and Kristin Lyons visited Judy Kleinvachter this week.

Larry Fossell visited at the Square Farm on Wednesday. Larry is one good gardener too. Pearl Thompson visited and had coffee with Betsy Thompson the next day.

Marcelyn Lindstrom and Marlys Lafrooth spent Wednesday afternoon with Elsie Lafrooth. In the evening Elsie was a dinner guest at the Rick and Karen Zimmerman home.

Vance and Kelly Lafrooth, Claudia Berggren, Elmer Holmstrom, Evelyn Albaugh, Brian Nelson and Karl Kasprowicz, Marcus, Brian and Tami from White Bear Lake, were guests at Judy Kleinvachter's this week.

Isaac Thompson, Dean Johnson, Kurt Aakre, Marc Wagner and Dan Zak, attended Men's Advance at Lake Geneva Bible Camp on Friday and Saturday.

Pearl Thompson and Isaac and Betsy Thompson took part in Elsie's hospitality and played their favorite game on Sunday evening.

I saw the doctor this morning to get some more antibiotics and then made a reservation for a compartment so I can cough in peace and not have the other Amtrak passengers move to the other end of the train. The doctors think it is not contagious anymore. So I'll see you all next week.

Women In Sports: Stretching The Limits!

We think it is great when organizations sponsor writing contests for young people. There are a number of groups which have long-standing competitive writing events, often with local contestants advancing to district, state or regional competition.

To encourage this type of activity, we are glad to publish winning entries as guest editorials. Today's essay is the first place entry in the contest sponsored by the Thief River Falls Branch of the American Association of University Women. Our congratulations to Beth Goddard, daughter of Tom and Wendy Goddard, who received a $50 first place award for the following essay:

WOMEN IN SPORTS: STRETCHING THE LIMITS!

by Beth Goddard

Ice hockey is no longer a sport for men only. Women have been breaking into ice arenas across the country with high hopes for themselves and the sport. Their equality with men is rapidly increasing. There are opportunities for girls to play at all ages and levels, from tiny mites to peewees, high school leagues to college, and now perhaps the ultimate opportunity—the Olympics.

Women's Olympic ice hockey team captain, Cammi Granato, has played at every one of those levels, and she's not stopping until she's won the gold medal. Her hardships and triumphs have helped her become one of the best female hockey players in the world, and her impact on the game has been incredible.

Cammi Granato grew up in suburban Chicago, and she was the youngest of four children. Her Olympic aspirations first started when she watched her brother Tony play on the Olympic team in 1988 in Calgary. Cammi stated in Sports Illustrated that, "The Olympics became so real for me when the athletes walked into that stadium in Calgary....There's a magic about it. The whole world comes to one place."

Cammi had to work hard to attain her own Olympic dream. From kindergarten through high school she was one of the boys and played for the Downers Grove Huskies. She was often singled out by opposing teams, because of her sex, and in one instance the opposing coach told his players to "Drill that girl, number 21." Cammi wasn't going to take that, so she simply swapped jerseys with a male teammate of hers and the problem was solved.

After high school Cammi went on to play exclusively against women at Providence College on a hockey scholarship. At Providence College Cammi became the school's all-time leading scorer, and she was named ECAC player of the year three times. After graduating from Providence, Cammi went on to play for Concordia University in Montreal because her NCAA eligibility was up. She then joined the U.S. National Team, and she has been playing with them since the first world championships in 1990. Last year, at the age of 26, she was named to the Olympic Team, and her Olympic Dream was fast becoming a reality.

Cammi learned early that success doesn't come without any difficult obstacles. Cammi and her three older brothers had their own pick-up league in the basement of their home. Cammi said, "If I was going to play I couldn't really go upstairs and tell my mother that somebody hit me. I had to stay down there and battle it out."

Cammi's toughness has helped her through other difficult situations too. At the 1995 Pacific Rim Tournament, a Chinese player nailed her when she was coming across the blue line. The injury she suffered was a broken fibula in her right leg. However, this didn't stop her from playing. The team doctor taped her leg for stability and Cammi played four more games with a broken leg.

She talks about the injury and says, "Sure the pain killed me...but it was a non-weight-bearing bone."

In addition to physical pain, Cammi has also been forced to deal with some emotional stress. Her brother Tony underwent brain surgery on Feb. 14, 1996, as a result of the aftermath of a collision with another player. She said, "Everything had been so good for Tony. He has this beautiful family...Things had been great; then look what happened."

Fortunately, everything went well with the surgery. Tony resumed his career and was asked to play in the NHL all-star game. Tony asked Cammi to attend the all-star festivities, but she said, "No, sorry. I'm planning to take a seven-hour bus ride, share a motel room with three of my teammates and play three games in three days in front of maybe a few hundred people." This is the life of Cammi Granato—the best female hockey player in the United States.

Cammi's participation in hockey has offered her many opportunities. Last June, the New York Islanders of the NHL invited her to attend their training camp. Cammi debated and hardly slept for nearly three months in reviewing the opportunity that would've called an enormous amount of attention to women's hockey, but ultimately she declined.

The Islanders General Manager, Mike Milbury, said, "It's incredible what she's meant to hockey. She's given it a profile in this country, more than any good men players have been able to do." Cammi has also had the opportunity to be the spokesperson for Louisville Hockey's new line of women's equipment, whose slogan is "Don't tell me what you can't do." She says, "We're introducing a sport to people who don't know it exists. We have a chance to...show them a pure form of ice hockey without all the blood."

Recently I had the opportunity to see Cammi Granato and the Women's Olympic Team in action. I begged my parents to take me to Winnipeg to watch the U.S. play Canada in an Olympic preview that I had read about in the newspaper. We were among 4,000 other fans in the arena, but this game was much different from all of the other games that I had ever been to see. Every person on the ice was a woman, even the referees.

The fans were different, too. There were teams of girls sitting in clusters wearing their own team jerseys and waving their country's flags. They weren't waiting to see any big fights or hard body-checking, they were simply admiring the team's crisp passing and precise stickhandling. As I watched the game, I was proud that I shared the love of the game with all of the players and fans. Even though I wasn't a player on the first Olympic Team, I did help pioneer my own team in Thief River Falls.

Many girls have had to overcome the thoughts and feelings from mothers, fathers, and fans that women shouldn't play hockey because it is too rough. Cammi Granato feels differently and says, "Seeing us will teach little girls not to accept other people's limits....All my life, people said that I would quit, that it's a boys' sport—and that I was something strange for playing it. But I'm not. Girls need to know they can do this and be respected."

Well, thanks to Cammi girls do know they can be respected for playing, and I've got the bruises from our tournament last weekend to prove it.

Village Election

"The village election held yesterday was rather a quiet one despite the fact that some little feeling was worked up over some of the offices. No loud words were spoken and, to any one not acquainted with the situation, there would have appeared to be no strife. In elections of this kind, where there are two tickets in the field, it is customary to work up sides 'just to have a little fun' and this was done in a very quiet way and resulted in electing the following officers for the ensuing year:

For President	H. E. Ives
For Councilmen	E. M. Haff, C. G. Rapp, J. C. Dahl
For Recorder	J. L. Johnson
For Treasurer	Leonard Holmes
For Justice of the Peace	O. H. Peters

'TWAS HOT
The Saintly City's Spring Election

"One of the warmest elections of the season in which slot machines, gambling, hotels, etc. were the main issues, was had at St. Hilaire Tuesday. The caucus was had last Friday evening, and the ticket headed by H. E. Ives was defeated by the one headed by Emil J. Holme by a majority of three. IS SERIOUS
Dr. Moeller Charged With Selling Liquor WITHOUT LICENSE Says He Can Prove He Never Sold Any

"Upon the complaint of someone from this city, Deputy United States Revenue Collector T. B. McManus of Crookston was here the first of the week to ascertain whether or not Dr. Thor Moeller, the druggist, was selling liquor without a government license. Just what the outcome will be is hard to say, but Dr. Moeller refused to pay the collector any money, upon the grounds that he had never sold or offered for sale any liquor, and the matter is to be investigated by the United States court. Mr. McManus stated to THE NEWS that the complaint had been made regarding the matter and that parties had offered to furnish testimony that would convict. 'Whether or not anything can be proven remains to be seen,' he said, 'but the matter will be thoroughly investigated. It is reluctantly that I cause Dr. Moeller or anyone else any trouble but I cannot be lax in my duty. I shall at once have a warrant sworn out for his arrest.'

"Dr. Moeller states that the store belongs to his wife, who of course is really the one responsible, that a license was not taken out for the reason that only a small amount of liquor could be sold, not enough to pay for handling it, and so it was decided not to deal with it at all. 'I have never sold a drop of liquor to anyone,' said the Doctor, 'and my instructions to H. Ofiedal were not to sell any under any circumstances and to my knowledge they were never disobeyed. Of course we have a small, very small, amount of liquor in stock, but that does not indicate that we ever sold or offered it for sale. This matter has been worked up by my enemies, but I am not afraid of the outcome.'

"The penalty for the offense is not less than 30 days in jail or more than 3 years and also a fine of not less than $100 or more than $5000."

Editorial comments from the files of Norm A. Holen

—As a Canadian colleague suggests, a high standard of living is not to be confused with a high standard of eating.

—A Minnesota paper reports that an accident happened Monday evening at "about 7:41." We're curious to know the exact time.

—Hearing a doctor say there is not such a thing as brain food, Billy Noonan asks, "How about noodle soup?"

—It must have irked the genial secretary of the Civic and Commerce association to have the editor of a neighboring paper spell his name "Roach." [Correct spelling was Roche.]

—The new long skirts are a good deal like Prohibition. The joints are still there, but they are harder to find.

—It's high time for the ladies to start promoting that new Easter outfit.

—Random thought: we occasionally hear of a person coming out of an accident unscathed, but we never heard of anybody being scathed.

—A headache is coming up for truckers in the form of spring load restrictions.

—Simile: As dumb as the wolf that committed suicide to collect his own bounty.

—It's not the number of persons per square mile that counts, says our Luverne commentator, it's the number of square persons per mile.

—Mayor Hubert Humphrey of Minneapolis announced recently that he is dedicating all of his time to preventing Senator Ball's re-election. It would appear that conditions in his home town also call for a little attention.

—Those who believe in appeasing Russia might well consider the case of Czechoslovakia.

—The fund drive currently under way reminds us that the Red Cross is a mighty useful organization in time of trouble.

—Anyway this has been a good winter for freezing ice on the hockey rinks.

Everyone agreed it was a successful reunion and we all have many happy memories. Mother Nature smiled on us and gave us nice weather, including a thunderstorm and much needed rain on Saturday night.

Thief River Falls Education Foundation

Better Education is goal

Education — Education for your children, grandchildren or children in the neighborhood is the goal of the Thief River Falls Education Foundation.

Founded in 1990, the Foundation's mission is to positively effect education in School District 564 by improving student achievement and promoting innovative programming and instructional techniques.

Since it began over seven years ago, 31 programs have benefited from the organization's endowment funds. In addition, many students planning to continue their education after graduating from Lincoln High School have received scholarships from the seven scholarships the organization administers.

The Thief River Falls Education Foundation is currently conducting a membership drive. The purpose is not only to gain new members but educate the community about the purposes of the Foundation and how it operates.

"There are several benefits to membership in the Foundation and we would like the public to be more aware of them. The obvious benefit is that they make a contribution to our schools and the education of their own children, grandchildren, or children in their neighborhood," said Judy Dimich, executive director of the organization.

Dimich explained that the cost of education is increasing at a rapid rate that far outdistances the resources of the present funding. The goal of the district is to provide each child with a quality education that will equip them with the skills needed to succeed when they leave this district to work, to continue their education at a college or technical school, or whatever they chose to do. It is imperative for schools to have a resource to assist them in this task, she said.

The Foundation accomplishes its goals through a variety of methods including memberships at several levels — Annual, Sustaining, Founder and President's Club. Memorials and the purchase of selected merchandise also help fund these projects.

Grants are made three times a year to teachers for selected projects. Only the interest from the endowment is used so the ripple effect of a contribution will continue.

Grants

Since its inception, the Foundation has awarded grants to the following programs: Junior Great Books, Close Up Program, Climb Theater, Safety Town, Franklin Middle School Accelerated Reading, Lincoln High School Accelerated Reading, Franklin Middle School Legos (science), Listening Center (elementary reading), Franklin Middle School English class Thesaurus, Artist in Residence at Challenger (2), Lincoln High School Science Fair, Lincoln High School Student Senate Scholarships, Challenger Parent Sharing Books Program, Challenger Speech grants, Franklin Middle School Apple computer scanner, Lincoln High School Music Theory grant, Challenger Second grade Reading Styles grant, Challenger

Speech teams to host meet

Regular season for Thief River Falls speech teams will be drawing to a close with the home invitational meet to take place Saturday, March 21, at Lincoln high school.

First round of competition begins at 9 a.m. with the second at 10:30 a.m. and the third at 12 noon. The awards ceremony has tentatively been scheduled for 2 p.m. in the school auditorium.

Schedules of events, speakers, times and rooms will be available by the student affairs office at Lincoln Saturday. All events are open to the public and no admission is charged. It is requested that no one enter a room after the speaking has begun and that the halls remain quiet during rounds.

Thief River Falls entries include the Franklin middle school team coached by Diane Marshall and the Lincoln high school team coached by Connie Stock and assistant coach Tina Diaz. Local team members have traveled to meets in East Grand Forks, Park Rapids, Bagley, Fosston and Crookston since the season started in early February. First scheduled meet of the season in Roseau was canceled and the team did not attend the February 28 meet in Moorhead due to bad weather conditions.

"The team has been doing very well in season competition," coach Stock said, "winning second place as a team at two meets and placing many winners in individual competition at all of the meets."

Franklin team members include Philip Hoks, JoAnna Swantek, Bethany Brown, Rebekah Solem,

All of the students advancing are ninth graders with the exception of Dayna Holland, a sophomore.

Total Construction costs in millions = $2.13 in 1987, $5.25 in 1988, $10.38 in 1989, $4.24 in 1990, $7.23 in 1991, $6.13 in 1992, $17.90 in 1993, $10.63 in 1994, $12.66 in 1995, $7.60 in 1996, and $11.34 in 1997.

TRF building permits continue to increase

Requests for building permits continue to increase in Thief River Falls. Last year, total construction costs exceeded $11 million.

Sid Fossan, building inspector for Thief River Falls, presented his annual report to the City Council February 24. He reported that there were significant changes last year that he feels are positive for Thief River Falls.

According to the report, there were a total of 265 building permits issued in 1997. In 1996, 256 permits were issued. Permits issued in 1997 included one for a multi-family dwelling valued at $417,000; nine for new single family dwellings for a total of $909,750; 19 for single family garages with a total value of $144,595; 181 permits for residential remodeling and additions with a total value of $1,038,172; seven permits for new non-residential buildings with a total value of $1,897,741; 48 permits for non-residential remodeling and additions with a total value of $6,939,098.

The number of new garages built last year, said Fossan, represents a significant improvement for Thief River Falls. Fossan separated permits for garages from the rest of the statistics to create a new category. Fossan said it is a trend that he hopes continues.

He also noted that the number of permits for residential remodeling and addition continue to remain high. In 1996, 183 permits were issued for residential remodeling and addition.

Last year, the city increased or modified permit fees. Fossan said that resulted in a significant increase in total revenue. In 1996, the department reported revenue, including about $5,000 from Warren for services, at about $40,000. In 1997, the city reported revenue totaling $46,288, without funds from Warren.

Total construction costs continue to remain high. Construction costs increased significantly in 1993 and have remained close to $10 million since then. In 1997, total construction costs were $11,346,356, which compares to $7,609,776, a low total in comparision to over $12 million in 1995, $10.6 million in 1994, and $17.9 million in 1993.

In 1996, 11 permits were issued for new single family dwellings. The average cost of the dwellings was $83,400. In 1997, Fossan reported that nine permits were issued for new single family dwellings. The average cost was $101,083.

A number of additional permits were issued in 1997 including: 37 manufactured home permits (25 at the new Challenger park); 28 for plumbing, 20 for connections; two for tank removals, five for demolition, 13 for signs; and four for temporary signs. In 1996, only 29 permits for manufactured homes were granted.

Fossan expects the volume of permit requests to continue next year.

WST performs "Same Time, Next Year"

George exclaims, "Wait a minute! Okay now, If I knew you were comin' I'da baked a cake. Cut the cake and make a wish. What did you wish?"

Doris replies, "I only have one wish."

George says, "What?"

And Doris glowingly responds, "That you keep showing up every year."

Warroad Summer Theatre proudly presents WST veteran Troy Brewster as George and Christine Johnson as Doris. Christine was seen last spring in the all-star hit, "Love, Sex and the I.R.S." where she appeared as Kate Dennis.

A two-act comedy (with a touch of drama) will be presented as a dinner theater at the Warroad American Legion Club. Dates of performances are March 19-22. Dinner reservations are required and will be accepted at 218-386-3692. The menu includes broiled chicken breasts for the March 19 show; barbecue ribs and shrimp for the March 20 show; prime rib for the March 21 show. The March 22 show does not include dinner. Seating for the dinner will be available at 5:45 p.m. The curtain lifts at 7:30 p.m. with the closing matinee at 2 p.m.

"Same Time, Next Year" is recommended viewing for mature audiences with the storyline revolving around the 25 years relationship between George and Doris.

Troy Brewster returns as director along with Jill Anderson and Ron Anderson as technical director.

Fundraiser Friday for scholarship fund at Goodridge

First of a number of events planned to raise funds to establish a scholarship fund in memory of Dr. David Brown at Goodridge will take place Friday, March 20, at the Goodridge community center and school.

A pie and ice cream social will begin a 6 p.m., followed by basketball games at 7 p.m. in the new gymnasium. Featured will be members of area organizations, past and present school staff, students and alumni.

Admission is $3 for adults, $2 for students in grades 7-12 and $1 for students in kindergarten through grade six. Preschool children are admitted free of charge.

CORRECTION

The total cost of the proposed 1998 Street Improvement Project in Thief River Falls is just over $500,000. After state funds and other fund costs are subtracted from the total, the estimated net general fund cost to the city is actually $1,700, not $1.7 million or $1.5 million as stated in an earlier article. The Times regrets the error.

Family Advocacy Program provides support to teen parents

by Kathi Carlson
The Times Reporter

Most who have had the experience will agree that parenting is a tough job. For teenagers struggling with the issues of growing up themselves, the job is even tougher.

However, help is available for pregnant teens and teenage parents in our community through the Family Advocacy Program (FAP).

The program was originally funded by the Children's Trust Fund in the amount of $38,849. The life cycle of the grant is January 1, 1997 through September 30, 1998. Recently, FAP received another grant in the amount of $110,000 from the Department of Children, Families and Learning. The life cycle of this grant is from January 1, 1998 through June 30, 1999.

On April 1, 1997 Jill Johnson assumed the position of family advocate for the program. Her duties include overseeing grant goals, objectives and implementation.

Jill is the daughter of Melrene Kaiser of Thief River Falls and Jerry Eggenberger of Wisconsin and is a 1985 graduate of Lincoln High School. She holds a Bachelor of Science degree from Moorhead State University in elementary education with concentration on psychology. While in college, she obtained volunteer experience with disadvantaged youth at the Moorhead Juvenile Detention Center.

Jill is married to Jeff Johnson, the son of Curt and Carol Johnson. Following the completion of their educations, the couple taught in southern Texas for four years where Jill did related work with the Big Brother/Big Sister Program. The birth of their first child while living in Texas spurred the couple to return to their extended families in Minnesota.

After returning to Thief River Falls, Jill operated a day care business in her home for a year and then worked as the youth director of the United Methodist Church for two and one-half years. Jeff is employed at Digi-Key. Their daughter Hailey is five years old, and they have a two-and-one-half-year-old son Logan.

Jill credits Donna Nelson, a special education teacher at Challenger, for donating her time in the grant writing process. Jill assisted her as did Shari Olson, Dean of Marketing at Northland Community and Technical College.

The Community Education Department of School District 564 is serving as the grant host.

The mission statement of the FAP reads: "The vision of the Family Advocacy Program is to provide teen and single parents and the parents of young children an opportunity to take control of their lives and make the best of their potential by learning to advocate for themselves and their families. Collaborative goals are to network agencies within our community to encourage and empower teen parents, single parents and the parents of young children. The FAP's goals are to 1) encourage these parents to educate themselves in both pre and postnatal care; 2) seek guidance and support; 3) learn self-sufficiency and; 4) develop prevention strategies to make intelligent, informed and responsible choices for themselves and for their children."

Jill spent the first weeks in her position seeking out the agencies and institutions within the community that work with teens and single parents. Those agencies include Social Services, Inter-County Nursing, WIC, Lincoln High School, the Area Learning Center, Adult Basic Education, Northland Community and Technical College, Family Preservation Project, Violence Intervention Project, Dakota Clinic and Northwest Medical Center.

All of the agencies are represented on the 19-member FAP Advisory Council along with the various preschool programs housed at Challenger, Community Education and a school pychologist. Three teenage parent representatives are also members of the council.

At the present time, FAP has 50 referrals. Nearly all of these referrals are pregnant teens, teen parents or parents who were teenagers when they gave birth to their children. All are young women, the youngest 14 years old when she became pregnant. While many are from Thief River Falls, some are teens from neighboring communities who are continuing their educations at the Area Learning Center. The amount of time spent with each client is based on need, and while Jill has seen some of the clients only once, she works with others on a daily basis.

With the availabity of a variety of contraceptive methods as well as the well-known dangers involved with unprotected and premature sexual activity, one wonders why there are so many teen pregnancies.

Jill says, "There seems to be a boom right now." She attributes much of this to the breakdown of basic family structure. "Families aren't eating meals together anymore. Children look to their parents to model appropriate behavior," she says and adds "These young people don't feel good about themselves. They don't respect their bodies. They need someone to love and to be loved."

The teen pregnancy rate in our community follows a national trend with most young mothers now choosing to keep their babies.

Jill also says that most parents incorrectly assume that sex education is provided by the school system. "There is not a lot of sex education in the schools," she says. Jill is currently working with Margo Peterson and the school district on a preventative program. It is a college project for Margo, a nurse with Inter-County Nursing Service.

Most of Jill's time, however, is spent working with teenagers who are pregnant or already parents, and while the young women come from a variety of socio-economic backgrounds, many are repeating the cycles of previous generations. "We talk a lot about breaking that cycle," Jill says.

As a family advocate, Jill provides one-on-one support services and is available at any time of the day to discuss topics of concern, either in person or over the telephone. Using the books What to Expect While You're Expecting and What to Expect the First Year, Jill strives to educate pregnant teens and teen parents, believing that by teaching parenting skills "the neglect and abuse of young children will decrease."

The Family Advocate Center is located in the District Service Center across from the Community Education office. Kim Langen has recently been hired as an assistant for ten hours a week, and Carolyn Haugen provides five hours of clerical services each week. Having recently moved to a larger site, the center includes an office area, meeting area, children's play area and comfortable area for clients. Jill's goal is to create a warm and inviting atmosphere where teens will gather and feel comfortable, whether they are venting frustrations or sharing the joys of parenting.

At the center, the "Teen Connection" support group meets every other week. Jill co-facilitates the sessions with Lynell Wayne. Lynell is currently working with single parents and pregnant teens at the Area Learning Center, her position made possible by a Carl Perkins grant. Jill and Lynell agree that education is a priority for these teens. The group they co-facilitate provides support and encouragement while addressing issues involved in pregnancy and parenting. The group provides teens with the opportunity to share and learn from each other. Assistant Kim Langan will soon be offering activities for the children of support group participants during the meetings.

The center will also soon house a resource and toy lending library, educational magazines and brochures, and a computer with internet availability and a CD Rom library for parents to access educational materials for themselves and their children.

Jill is in the process of ordering and organizing items and a system for the lending library.

Another of the family advocate's important roles is to make sure that the clients are aware of the services and agencies within the community that work with teens and single parents and to work with those agencies to ensure the best possible plan for their mutual client. Jill also makes home visits to new parents within the first month and delivers a baby bag filled with educational materials and information.

The FAP in collaboration with the Custom Training and Community Education Department at NCTC has also provided a "For the Love of Children" series of workshops monthly at NCTC for all parents, child care providers, educators and concerned individuals. Past topics have included "Traditions, Rituals and Routines," "Developmental Milestones and Age Appropriate Toys," "Positive Child Guidance" and "Children's Literature, What's Appropriate for your Child?" The topic of tonight's workshop is "Parenting Styles," and "Nutrition and Meals for Kids" will be the subject of the final workshop of the series on April 15.

The Week of the Young Child will be celebrated in April. In collaboration with a number of other area agencies, Jill is working to finalize plans for the many events planned for April 20-26. A story and schedule of events will be published in the April 15 edition of The Times.

Future plans of the Family Advocacy Program include getting teen fathers more involved in the program. Thus far, Jill has had contact with a few young fathers and would like to see the number increase. A grant for a Father-to-Father Mentoring program will be applied for. She has also talked to the school superintendent about a day care facility at the high school, and when the opportunity presents itself, a grant for that purpose will also be applied for.

Jill states that teens referring other teens to the Family Advocate Center is a sure sign of a successful program and does not anticipate that future funding will be a problem. "We'll be around for a long time," she said. And the tough job of teen parenting will be made a bit easier. Children will benefit, and hopefully, a cycle will be broken.

Family Advocate Jill Johnson heads up the Family Advocacy Program in Thief River Falls. The mission of the program is to provide teen and single parents and parents of young children with the opportunity to take control of their lives and make the best of their potential by learning to advocate for themselves and their children. To date, Jill has worked with 50 pregnant teens, teenage parents or parents who were teenagers when their children were born. The program is funded by grants from the Department of Children, Families and Learning. The Family Advocacy Center is located in the District Service Center.

ON THE OTHER HAND

Jennicca Gallagher, Lincoln High School

Now that spring is fast approaching and the deadness of winter is coming to an end, I look forward to the miracle of flowers blooming, new green grass, and the birds singing. With spring comes new life and the rebirth of nature. Hm, life, what a beautiful thing! As most of you know, we recently passed the anniversary of the controversial decisions made by the supreme court on abortion. Now, I'm not going to get into the nitty-gritty politics of abortion, but this is why I think it is wrong.

Back in November, I experienced something that most high school seniors rarely encounter. Nine months earlier my aunt informed me that she was going to be having a baby. Above all, I wanted her to have a healthy baby, but since she already had two boys, I was excited for a little girl. On the morning of her cesarean delivery, I was getting ready for school when my mother called me and asked if I wanted to watch the surgery. Excited, I agreed and made my way to Northwest Medical Center. When I arrived, I met with a good friend of mine. She also was going to watch the surgery. We made our way to the surgical ward and "scrubbed in." I got the entire outfit—the pants, the coat, the little head thing that looks like a shower cap, the face mask, and the shoe covers. I looked like a real doctor. Finally, we were told that everything was in order, and the surgery was about to start. As we walked to the small window to peek in, one of the nurses asked if we would like to come into the operating room. We both agreed without hesitation.

While inside, I saw my aunt lying on the table, her stretched belly aimed and ready to fire. The doctors arrive, and everyone was ready to start. My aunt had been numbed from the waist down, so she was awake and talking. But when they started, she commented, "If Jennicca sees this, she'll never want to have kids!" But I was fine and had no signs of fainting.

Within a matter of minutes, the baby's head appeared, and in one swift motion, they pulled it out and the doctor said, "Well, it looks like we have indoor plumbing," and that's when I knew we had a new little girl in the family. The nurses looked at me strangely as I dance in the corner of the room. They quickly cleaned her up, and she began to cry. She was beautiful. Perfect. A new life had just begun, and I saw it. Words can't express the feeling I felt.

For those who are in a situation where a child is going to be born, and there is no way of taking care of it, let me encourage you. Last week I attended a "baby" shower for a friend of mine who adopted a little girl. As I played the traditional baby shower games, ate the food, and heard the chatter of women, I watched this little girl and got the same feeling that I had when I witnessed the birth of my cousin. Although this girl is four, on the day of her adoption, she was "born" into a new family that loves and will care for her. This showed me that adoption is as equally special and important as birth.

I guess seeing that little girl playing with her Barbie dolls and hearing the cry of my infant cousin only convinced me more that God doesn't make mistakes, and every child is precious and loved by someone. These two little girls came into this world with totally different situations, but are both miracles just the same, and each child deserves a chance at life.

February Spring or
Always Remember to Shovel with Your Mouth Shut

Spring! So quick! So fleeting! And at the end of February, here one day and gone the next!

Just a few weeks ago, to celebrate its presence, I put on work boots, grabbed a shovel and began scooping dog poop out of the yard. The boys did their own thing, taking to the road in their respective vehicles, one-and-a-half year old Morgan scooting about in his red car, three-and-a-half year old Toby riding circles around Morgan on his bicycle. "Is it summer, Mom!" Toby yelled, thrilled to be outside on his bike in the warm weather.

"No, not yet, Toby," I answered, tossing a shovelful of dog debris under the evergreen tree on the edge of the field of poop.

"When will it be summer, Mom?" he asked.

"Soon!" I said, and slid my shovel under another pile, taking care not to cause the melt water to splash up with it.

"Soon, Mom?" he yelled.

"Yes! Soon!" I repeated, scooping more poop, tossing, scooping.

"Mom! Will it be summer soon!"

"Yes! Soon! Toby! For God's sake!" ...what were we talking about?... "No! Toby! It won't be summer soon. First it has to be spring.

Then it can be summer!" Scoop, toss, scoop. Small splash. Remember to keep the mouth shut. Toss.

"Is it spring yet, Mom!" he yelled.

I looked up to check for the baby. He was fine in his car... Scoop, toss.

"Mom! I asked a question!"

"No! It's not spring yet!" Scoop, toss. Big splatter. Oh, gross! Jeez! Gotta remember to keep my mouth shut.

"Mom!! When is it going to be spring!"

"Where is your brother? Is he still in his car?"

"He's in his car, Mom!"

"Good! Keep an eye on your brother." Scoop, toss.

"Mom!!!"

Splash. Aarrggh!

"What do you want, Toby!!! Can't you see I'm shoveling dog poop! Can't you just enjoy the sunshine and leave me alone! Can't you ride your bike and let me shovel in peace. Don't you understand I'm having a difficult time and can't answer each and every one of your questions as they occur to you?"

"Okay, Mom!" he cried. "But is it almost spring?"

"Ride your bike, Toby!" Scoop, toss, scoop.

"MOM!"

"WHAT!"... Toss straight up in the air. Oh, God!...

"Mom! Do you want to see the beautiful flowers Morgan and I planted in the driveway?"

I set aside the shovel and walked over to see an old Valentine's bouquet tossed out by their older sister Francis now rebundled and propped up in the loose gravel of the driveway.

"Isn't it beautiful?" he asked, pointing to the bouquet with little fingers coated in wet sand.

I agreed. "Yes, Toby, the flowers are very beautiful."

"Can't it be spring yet?"

"Well, it could be if it didn't bother you that it was still winter."

Solemnly he nodded his head, "It can still be winter if it can just be spring, too."

"Good," I said, "then it's time to go inside and get cleaned up for lunch."

"It's spring, Morgan! It's spring!" Toby shouted, jumping up and down in his excitement. "Mom! When we get inside can you get out all my old shorts from summer?"

"No! You'll freeze in shorts!" I answered.

"But you said it could be spring!" he argued.

"It's still too cold for shorts," I told him, cleaning off my shovel in a nearby snow bank and giving some thought to my hair and that last shovel toss.

"But, MOM! You said it could be spring!"

"Okay, it's spring! It's spring!"

It's spring.

Leona Chwialkowski, Tri-Valley Heartland Express driver, is at the helm of the new Marshall county bus. According to Chwialkowski, the new bus is fully accessible and maximum passenger comfort will be provided by state of the art seats as well as rear heat and air conditioning.

Tri-Valley Heartland Express adds new bus in Marshall Co.

Tri-Valley Transportation Director Kent Ehrenstrom announced recently the addition of a new Eldorado 21-passenger bus to serve Marshall county.

Marshall county drive Leona Chwialkowski says that the new bus meets revised state specifications, including a super-duty chassis and V-10 engine. The bus is fully accessible with state of the art passenger seating. Rear heating and air conditioning will provide maximum seasonal comfort.

Bus schedules and occasional special trips are posted a month in advance and are also available from Chwialkowski. In addition to linking Marshall county communities, the bus visits Fargo, Crookston, Thief River Falls, Bemidji and Grand Forks each month. The fare is approximately seven cents per mile.

Tri-Valley Opportunity Council at 1-800-584-7020 can provide the name of the nearest area coordinator. In Thief River Falls the area coordinator is the Heritage Community Center, and bus reservations can be made by calling 681-2793.

Deer Park Garden Club held meeting March 10

Deer Park Garden Club held its monthly meeting on March 10 at the home of Ethel Wiseth.

After the club creed was said in unison, secretary Helen Chervestad gave a summary of the January meeting. Roll call was answered by naming various types available when choosing plants for your garden. Members present included Lois Swanson, Ruth Liedberg, Jane Comstock, Evelyn Myrum, Helen Chervestad, Lana Nelson, Arlene Prestebak, Norma Hanson, Lori Wiseth and Ethel Wiseth. Jane Comstock's daughter Olivia of Roseau was a guest.

Lois Swanson gave the treasurer's report and collected money for the souvenir booklets made by LaVonne Radniecki and Becca Rae.

"What's Your Gardening Style?" is the theme of the showcase display at the public library in Thief River Falls. March is the club's Horticulture Awareness Month.

Vice president Arlene Prestebak read correspondence from district president Jean Peterson. "Save our Slippers" will be the theme for the spring workshop at Williams Catholic Church in Williams on March 28. Native orchids will be the topic for guest speaker Gretchen Mehmel. The workshop will begin at 11:15 a.m., and the cost is $5.50.

Norma Hanson's suggestion that enlarged copies of the creed be framed was approved by members, and Norma will frame the creed for each member.

Lois Swanson discussed the 1998 All-American selections. The four "Oscar" winners, two vegetables and two bedding plants, will be discussed at the May meeting in time for spring planting.

The program included a presentation by president Edith Wiseth on forcing bulbs indoors for winter bloom. An amaryllis plant was brought by one of the members and diagnosed by the group who determined why it would not bloom.

The colors of bulbs one plants in the fall may say a lot about one's personality. Edith also did a personality test on club members and their favorite colors.

The afternoon meeting on April 14 will be held at the home of LaVonne and Dick Radniecki.

St. Bernard's kindergarten round-up set

St. Bernard's School will be hosting its annual kindergarten roundup on Thursday, March 26 for children who will be in kindergarten next year. Classes at St. Bernard's are open to children of all religious backgrounds, but kindergarten classes are limited to 15 per session so early registration is important. Currently, both the morning and afternoon sessions for the 1998-99 sessions are full.

Two round-up sessions have been scheduled — 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. and 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. While prospective kindergartners are meeting with Patty Brekkestran, kindergarten teacher, parents are encouraged to meet with Sister Kathy, school principal, in the parish library at which time any questions may be answered.

Kindergarten experiences provide for a smooth transition between home and school. Kindergarten children learn about their world through direct sensory experiences - touching, hearing, seeing, tasting and smelling. The curriculum provides a variety of opportunities in which children can interact with their environment. In a carefully planned framework, children learn about love and concern for others as well as how much God loves them. The curriculum includes a combination of teacher directed and child initiated activities. It is concerned with the development of the whole child and reflects the integration of all areas: language arts, mathematics, art, music, physical education, science, health, and social studies. Learning centers, play areas, and age appropriate materials contribute to the excellent learning environment for St. Bernard's kindergarten classes.

SPEAKING OF . . .

...Rather Write About the Irish

My son said Post-It Notes were boring, so I'm not writing a whole column about them again. The end of the Post-It Note story is at the end of this column.

Since March 17 is St. Patrick's Day and I am (somewhat) Irish, here are some Irish things for you:

Irish Blessings

May St. Patrick guard you wherever you go,
And guide you in whatever you do
And may his loving protection be A blessing to you always.

May God grant you always...
A sunbeam to warm you,
A moonbeam to charm you,
A sheltering angel
So nothing can harm you...
Laughter to cheer you,
Faithful friends near you,
And whenever you pray,
Heaven to hear you.

~ Wishing you
Warmth in your home,
Love in your heart,
Peace in your soul,
And joy in your life-- Always.

Irish Sayings:

- The older the fiddle, the sweeter the tune.
- It's no use boiling your cabbage twice.
- There never was an old slipper but there was an old stocking to match.
- Firelight will not let you read fine stories, but it's warm and you won't see the dust on the floor.
- Men are like bagpipes. No sound comes from them 'til they're full.
- Every patient is a doctor after his cure.
- You'll never plow a field by turning it over in your mind.
- The old pipe gives the sweetest smoke.
- Marriages are all happy - it's having breakfast together that causes all the trouble.
- The longest road out is the shortest road home.
- What butter and whiskey will not cure, there's no cure for.

Irish Tales:

The Leprechaun

Near a misty stream in Ireland in the hollow of a tree,
Live mystical, magical leprechauns who are clever as can be.
With their pointed ears, and turned-up toes, and little coats of green,
The leprechauns busily make their shoes and try not to be seen.
Only those who really believe have seen these elves,
And if we are all believers
...We can surely see for ourselves

The Shamrock

There's a dear little plant that grows in our isle.
'Twas St. Patrick himself sure that set it.
And the sun on his labor with pleasure did smile,
And a tear from his eyes oft times wet it.
It grows through the bog, through the brake, through the mireland,
And they call it the dear little Shamrock of Ireland.

The Irish

Leprechauns, castles, good luck and laughter,
Lullabies, dreams and love ever after,
Poems and songs with pipes and drums,
A thousand welcomes when anyone comes...
That's the Irish for you!

And Happy St. Paddy's Day to You All!

Dr. Spencer Silver made the sticky part of Post-It Notes while trying to produce a very strong glue. Instead of a strong glue, he made a glue that remained tacky even after being pasted onto something. Arthur Fry, who also worked at 3M, came up with the idea of sticky-backed note paper while sitting through a boring church service watching the little pieces of paper he had used to mark the songs in his hymnal slip out of the book and fall to the floor. The next day, he returned to his work at the 3M Company and used some of Dr. Silver's sticky glue on the back of a piece of paper. He used the paper to attach a note to a message to his boss and the Post-it Note was born.

Parenting class for adolescents to be offered

Reverend Bill Kerr of the Thief River Falls United Methodist Church will lead the discussion in the two-part video and instruction series, "Parenting Adolescents," to be offered from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. on Monday, March 23 and Monday, March 30 at the Thief River Falls Public Library.

While the series offers no magic formulas, it does provide guidance and practical insight on meeting this challenge "head on." The program features Kevin Huggins, Director of Adolescent Counciling at North Coast Family Foundation and founder and director of a two-year training program for parents of adolescents in Akron, OH.

Discussion during the class will target the issues of how to raise a teenager, how parents and teens are alike, looking at the world through teenage eyes and deciding how to parent.

The course is free of charge, and while walk-ins will be welcome, pre-registrations are preferred. To pre-register, call 681-4388. Everyone interested in this time of learning and interaction is invited to attend.

ACTIVITIES

Seasonal Songs

The following spring songs and poems can be sung by your children during the upcoming spring holidays. Enjoy!

Leprechaun
(Tune: "Twinkle, Twinkle, Little Star")

Leprechaun, all dressed in green,
Smallest man I've ever seen.
You hop around without a sound.
You pick up shamrocks from the ground.
One thing I'd like to be told:
Where'd you hide your pot of gold?

Easter Time
(Tune: "Pop! Goes the Weasel")

Holidays are special days,
Time to celebrate.
Easter time is coming soon,
I can hardly wait.

Friends and family all come 'round,
Filled with special cheer.
I'm so glad that Easter time
Comes every single year!

Bunny
(Tune: "Do Your Ears Hang Low")

Do your ears flop around?
Do you hop along the ground?
Do you look sweet and funny?
Hello, fluffy little bunny!
Do you wiggle your nose?
Hop along the garden rows?
You're a fluffy little bunny.

PARENTING TIPS

Introducing New Foods To Children

Children can have fears about eating new or different foods. Because of this, eating at a friend's house or at a day care center could be a traumatic experience. As children grow older, it is increasingly important for them to feel comfortable with new or strange foods.

Developmentally, children's curiosity will lead them to explore new foods in much the same way that they explore the rest of their environment. Allowing children to play with a food without having to swallow it is a good way to introduce it. Remember that children learn and explore with all their senses. We are not suggesting that you let your children play with their food on a regular basis, but rather that you should be sensitive to your child's developmental level. Give your child an opportunity to check out the new food before you expect him/her to put it into his/her mouth. Forcing a child to try new foods can create a negative situation and discourage future exploration.

It's best to remain calm and relaxed at mealtime. Allow your children to not like a food. Simply try it again at a later time. Children are more likely to take risks in a safe and familiar environment. Remember, trying a new food can be a risk!

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Talk about the food you are serving. Describe the color, shape, texture, taste and smell.

SPEAKING OF EDUCATION

Jerry Robicheau, Superintendent
School District 564

Dear Citizens of Independent School District #564:

At a recent Board of Education meeting, the School Board took action to establish program additions as a result of the trust you have bestowed upon the school district by supporting the levy last November. I'd like to again review with you what we will be doing with those dollars. First and foremost, however, I want you to know that the basic premises we are using for these expenditures are:

(1) Addition of programs that can be sustained:

(2) Commitments made to the public on the levy, and

(3) Fiscal responsibility.

Therefore, based on these premises, we developed a plan for expenditure of the levy dollars. The list below represents that plan:

Commitments to reduce class sizes include adding a Kindergarten teacher at Challenger; Grade One teacher at Challenger; Grade Two teacher at Challenger; .5 FTE Phy Ed teacher at Challenger; 80 additional hours of ed. assistant time at Challenger; Social Studies teacher at Franklin; Science teacher at Franklin; Math teacher at Franklin; .7 FTE Phy Ed teacher at Franklin; .3 FTE Communications teacher at Frankin; Math teacher at Lincoln; and .2 FTE Science teacher at Lincoln.

The district's technology program would receive an additional $100,000.00 in levy dollars. Programs including a foreign language program in the earlier grades; Ag Education teacher; teacher for the gifted and talented; and a K-12 social worker would be added. Supply budgets would be increased by $6,400.00 per year; the Student Activities budget by $5,000.00 per yeac and 15% of the funds would be held in reserve for future needs.

One of the areas we continually look at is the whole area of technology. Even though we are spending $100,000.00 out of the levy dollars for technology, we will also be adding to our technology expenditures based on any money we get from the Legislature, specifically for technology as well as any capital dollars we have available for technology. We believe strongly that this is a critical component of our school system and we need to be very prudent in our development of technology, not only the hardware and software, but also the integration of technology as an instructional tool.

I wanted to take this means to let you know how we are going to be expending our levy dollars. I believe it is important for you, the citizens of School District #564, to know how those dollars are going to be spent. It is our intent that the dollars we expend for program improvement will lead to improved student achievement. We are accountable to you, the citizens of this school district.

If, after you've read this column, you have any questions or concerns, please do not hesitate to call me at 681-8711. I will be happy to respond to your questions and concerns and, hopefully, through open and honest communications we will continue to enhance educational opportunities for students.

There is one other area I would like you to be aware of and that is the school calendar for 1998-99. In the 1997 legislative session we were told we had to add three days to our school year. As a result of that, what we had to do is take three days we would have set aside for staff development and make them student days. One cannot disagree with the fact that our school year is much too short and we need to extend it. However, the Legislature did not provide us the funds to add the three days.

Consequently, what we're going to do for the 1998-99 school year is have late starts and early dismissals. These dates are scheduled as follows: October 8, late start; November 19, early out; January 22, late start; February 18, early out; March 19, late start; April 15, early out; and May 20, late start.

On late-start days, students will start school at 10:30 a.m. On early-out days, students will be dismissed at 1 p.m.

What we will attempt to do, for those of you who may need child care on these days, is work with the Latch Key program and provide day care if needed. This is in no way intended to replace the child care you may already have. But, if you need some additional time during those days, we will attempt to work that out in our schools. However, our buses will only be running to get children to school at the 10:30 a.m. time and to take them home at 1 p.m., so it will be up to parents to get their children to day care and latch key.

We are in need of this additional time for teachers to be able to do some work as far as staff development goes. We are in the middle of developing graduation standards, performance packages for children, and looking at our curriculum. We need time for teachers to be able to deal with the whole issue of graduation standards. This is a way we can give staff an opportunity for staff development.

A more detailed calendar will be sent out sometime in April, which will also identify when we will start school, when parent-teacher conferences will be held, and when breaks will be scheduled throughout the school year. Prior to that, if you have a need to know that information, please call my office and we will send a school calendar to you so you can make family plans for the 1998-99 school year.

If you have any questions or want to have any discussion about the calendar or any other issues relating to your school, please do not hesitate to contact me. Thank you for supporting your school system.

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q. People receiving monthly SSA retirement or survivor benefits have limits on their earnings before benefit checks are lowered during the year. Do these apply to disability benefits also?

A. People receiving SSA disability benefits are not subject to the annual retirement test provisions so, to answer your question, no. By definition, a person receiving disability benefits is unable to work due to physical or mental impairment. Upon return to work, someone receiving disability must notify Social Security immediately. Having said this, it must also be understood that returning to work does not mean that benefits will cease. Social Security has a process, based on earnings over an extending period of time, used to evaluate a person's work activity as it concerns ongoing benefits.

Social security works with disability as part of two very different programs: Social Security and Supplemental Security Income (SSI). While the two programs are separate, a person on either program is required to notify Social Security when they return to work.

Q. Can I still get my Social Security retirement if I leave the country?

A. Yes, although there are a few countries where we cannot send checks. For more information, request the free booklet, "Your Social Security Payments While You Are Outside the United States," publication number 05-10137.

Reminder: Those receiving either Social Security or Supplemental Security Income benefits need to notify SSA when they change their address. This is very important even if checks go to the bank via direct deposit.

ON THE OTHER HAND

Teresa Friend, Lincoln High School

Babysitting: "To take charge of a child or children while their guardian is temporarily away."

Sounds easy enough. Yet, the rest of my million fellow active babysitters in Minnesota would agree with me when I say..."NOT." It is far from easy. With each new job, there is a saying, "When the Mother's away, the children will play, and things are bound to go wrong."

I can remember the second time I babysat. After we had spent nearly thirty minutes playing in the leaves, the afternoon was growing cold and the sky was darkening to a deep and dreary grey. I gathered the children and herded them onto the front porch. After twisting the knob in twenty directions for nearly five minutes, it came to my attention that we were locked out. We had to wait for nearly four hours in the front yard until the parents returned home.

I also remember an unpleasant encounter with a baby stroller. I had asked for it, found it, had it all ready to go, but I did not think to ask how on earth the darn thing unfolded. That thing had more buttons and switches on it than I could count. After nearly twenty minutes of turning this and pressing that, I gave up and carried the kid to the park myself.

Potty training is always a unique joy. When the child cries out in alarm that he "needs to go really bad," I scoop him up in my arms, run him upstairs, take out the "little potty," help him undress, then get one of two responses: "I don't need to go anymore" or "I already went," generally followed by an amused laugh either way.

Toddlers: "Tornadoes on two legs."

Baby gates in the doorways, Velcro on the refrigerator, nothing seems to stop them. Once they get their stubby fingers around something, good luck on getting them to let go. Soon after they start this stage, it won't be long before they realize the sufficiency of a chair, the enjoyment in the buttons of a microwave, and the challenge of programming the VCR...all by themselves. For toddlers, any habit breaks hard. I have also had the extreme honor of experiencing the so-called "diaper shedding." I never thought that babies really did that! It is quite a difficult situation to deal with, but duct tape sure does wonders (just kidding).

Two or more children are always more difficult to care for than one. "Teresa, she's eating my crayons!"

"Well then quit feeding them to her."

It is quite frustrating when I at last realize that you can not reason with small children, especially when they can't talk yet, when their older siblings are allowed to do certain things that they can't, and when they won't lie still long enough for me to finish changing their diaper. The older the children get, the less destructive they are, yet, they come bearing new difficulties. The art of talking back and cleverness has been developed into an art form.

By far the most challenging job of the day for any age is getting a child to go to sleep. Children are so cute when it comes to excuses...but only cute for so long. Kids can give a variety of excuses for not going to bed such as they need more water, they're not sleepy, they continuously scream about not wanting to go to bed, Mom said they didn't have to, they throw bribes (I will be their best buddy-forever-and-ever) or the most honest, "I want my Mommy!" None of the above is easy to deal with. But, then again, when it comes to kids, nothing is.

I have been babysitting for nearly five years and with each job I have experienced moments of memories. I can't explain the feeling that comes over me when they fall asleep as I read them "Green Eggs and Ham;" when a five-year-old asks me to sing him a lullaby, not giving the slightest care to how scratchy my voice is; how a team of three runs to smother me in a mass of hugs as I walk through the door; the smile a seven-year-old can shine when she shows me her latest artistic creation; and just watching a six-year-old mumble out the scene as his G.I. Joe characters twitch their limbs and move about the carpet floor. When a baby looks up at me without saying a word, I know that he trusts me with every bit of his tiny, innocent heart.

But what I enjoy most of all is watching a child grow and change over the years. To move from the bottle to a tippy-lid, from a crib to a bed, from baby words to bigger ones, from haircuts, to school, to writing, to just watching a life develop before my eyes, and knowing that I have been a part of that. I have played such a great part in a child's growth and life. I could never trade these feelings–these memories for anything.

A new kid, a new joy–I will never forget my adventures in babysitting and how it has affected my life forever.

The numbers above exclude sales charges and include reinvestment of dividends and capital gains. Assuming the maximum 5.5% sales charge returns would have been 21.04% for one year, 17.81% for five years, and 16.56% for ten years. During this period some of the Funds fees were waived otherwise total returns would have been lower. Past performance cannot guarantee future results. Investment return and principal will fluctuate and shares when redeemed may be worth more or less than the original cost.

The weather in northwest Minnesota has been the mildest winter that Roy says he can remember in all his life, and that's a long time. I could give him some Siberian Ginseng with Ginkgo Biloba and he may be able to recall similar conditions the past 65 years. On the TV ad for ginseng, it is astounding what some of those folks remember after a few doses.

Janet gave me a container of a hundred tablets, hoping I would remember to send her some history of Mom's family so she can finish up her children's family tree. She has records of some in the tree, since 1600 AD, on her computer. She not only has a 400 year old tree but the branches, limbs and down to the twigs.

Today, "The Herald" carried the obituary of the town of Strandquist and made it seem like just a wide spot in the road. To many of us it has memories and also dreams and hopes that with that wonderful school building that will be available this summer that some industry could be started there. Not so many years ago, Strandquist had some of the state's best athletes and highest scores went to many of the students, thanks to great teachers and principals.

Judy Kleinvachter visited Elmer Holmstrom and Evalyn Albaugh on Wednesday.

Gayhard and Ilene Nelson attended a birthday party for grandson, two-year-old Logan Nelson at the Myron Nelson home on Saturday evening.

Thief River Falls boys and girls high school track...

Prowlers prepare for first meet

A Saturday appearance at the Paul Bunyan Indoor Invitational at Bemidji State University will kick off the 1998 season for the Thief River Falls boys and girls high school track teams.

Tim Olson, in his 18th year as the Prowlers' track coach, directs both the boys and girls teams.

"The numbers are up," reported Olson. "We've got a lot of new faces."

The Thief River Falls girls will be led by junior Nicole Kopari in the shot put and discus, senior Becky Mooney in the distance events, senior Jennieca Gallagher in the hurdles, and Rachel Mathson, one of the team's scoring leaders last year as a freshman.

Kopari placed fourth in the shot and fifth in the discus at the 1997 Class AA state meet. Mooney was also a state meet qualifier in the 1600 meters.

Other returning letter winners for the girls are senior Desirae Alberg; juniors Jessica Nelson, Diana Hofstad and Taya Hunt; sophomores Lisa McKercher, Andrea Sorvig and Kara Skiple; along with eighth graders Chelsey Haviland and Jackie Mooney.

Leading the Thief River Falls boys will be Trevor Lee in the sprints, Chad Skeim in the throwing events and Kelly Fossum, who will try the hurdles this spring after concentrating on the distance races last year. All three are seniors.

Rest of the returning lettermen for the boys include senior Brad Dekkers and sophomores Zach Bosh, Seth Harlow, Brent Nelson and Zach Olson.

Rest of the boys on the preseason roster include senior Bret Newton; juniors Richard Richards, Roman Lysyuk, Kelly Cota, Colin Browning, Levi Kraft, Alex Primakov, and Matt Kochmstedt; sophomore Brad Bulger; plus freshmen Chad Bomeman, Mike Langland and Ben Owen.

The Prowlers began preseason work last week in the Franklin Middle School pool. Dry land training was scheduled to begin this week.

Saturday's opener will be followed by the Prowlers' second and final indoor meet of the season – the March 26 Moorhead Invitational at Concordia College. Thief River Falls will then wait until April 14 to begin the outdoor season at Park Rapids.

Thief River Falls forwards Kyle Anderson and Trevor Lee, along with defenseman Adam Nordin, were on the All-Section 8A Honorable Mention list. All three are seniors.

Coaches selected post-season teams for Section 8A, the Mariucci Conference and Northwest Conference, with the votes tabulated and announced by section/conference statistician John Oren of Baudette.

Rocori stops Otters in 8AAA boys finals

Rocori beat Fergus Falls 35-23 in a low-scoring Section 8AAA boys high school basketball tournament championship game Saturday at Concordia College in Moorhead.

The state tournament-qualifying contest matched the North and South Sub-Section 8AAA winners.

Ten-year-old Justin Pyle turned in a Prep League season-high 225 game Saturday at the Family Bowl in Thief River Falls. He is shown with Gary Kelsch, a volunteer instructor in the youth bowling program since arriving in Thief River Falls four years ago.

Young TRF bowler records 225 game

He's only 10 years old, but Justin Pyle became the envy of bowlers of all ages Saturday when he rolled a 225 during Prep League competition at the Family Bowl in Thief River Falls.

That's the season-best single-game figure for the Prep League, which is designed for boys and girls in grades 4-6 – the second level in the local three-tier age-group bowling program that begins with the Bantam League and also includes the Junior League that carries into the high school age.

Pyle, who carries a 110 average, also owns the Prep League season-best 467 high series this winter. His previous single-game high was a 173, set a couple of weeks ago.

His Eagles team, which also includes Cody Walseth and Ryan Weisse, is the Prep League leader.

This is Pyle's fourth year of bowling. He practices twice a week and then competes in the Saturday league, which runs from September through March. He is among the Thief River Falls youth bowlers who have qualified for the district competition in Detroit Lakes March 28.

Helping Pyle and the others involved in the Thief River Falls youth bowling program is Gary Kelsch, a volunteer instructor at the Family Bowl since he arrived in Thief River Falls four years ago.

Kelsch is at the Family Bowl every Saturday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. to watch over the 80-to-90 young bowlers involved in the program and offer advice – when asked. He is also "on-call" almost any time when a youth bowler needs individual instructions.

SPORTS BRIEFS

Anderson back in line-up

St. Cloud State University freshman Keith Anderson of Thief River Falls is back in the Huskies' hockey line-up after missing the final five games of the regular season with a shoulder separation.

Anderson was a fixture on the St. Cloud fourth line since early in the season, picking up 16 points in 25 games. He returned for the Huskies' first round WCHA playoff series win over Michigan Tech (5-2, 2-3, 6-2).

"There's no question (Anderson) has been having a great second half before he got injured," St. Cloud Coach Craig Dahl told Mike Killeen of the St. Cloud Times. "He's show that he can be a player."

It's solid play from a fourth line that can often be a major factor in a team's success, noted Dahl.

Anderson played junior hockey at North Iowa last year.

The Huskies meet the University of Minnesota-Duluth in the WCHA Final Five Thursday at 7:35 p.m. at the Bradley Center in Milwaukee. The winner will meet the University of North Dakota in the Friday semifinals at 2:35 p.m. Wisconsin and Colorado College form the other Friday semifinal match-up. The finals are Saturday.

MnUSA revises position on studs for snowmobiles

Minnesota United Snowmobilers Association (MnUSA) has outlined its position regarding legislation proposed to regulate use of studded tracks on snowmobiles.

Greg Sorenson, association president, said the position has changed as new language on the control bill has taken shape. MnUSA had previously supported legislation which would have left the decision of whether to ban studs on certain trails up to the Department of Natural Resources.

Sorenson said MnUSA no longer supports giving the DNR this authority, largely because of "the ambiguity in the current language being considered by the legislature."

"The language in at least one of the bills being discussed says trails may be closed 'where appropriate' without defining what would or would not be appropriate. We cannot support new laws that are this open-ended.

"We have a law on the books from last session banning tracks with studs from paved trails," he added, "and we believe this law needs to be enforced and given a chance to work before more laws are discussed."

Sorenson said that while scratches in road surfaces do appear at some high use crossings, no road repairs have ever been necessary in Minnesota due to damage at snowmobile crossings.

He said that unlike studded snow tires on automobiles, where all vehicles tend to follow the same track in the roadway, the places where snowmobiles cross a surfaced area can be moved around to minimize effect.

State contracts with private agencies for adoption

Minnesota Department of Human Services (DHS) recently contracted with 10 private, licensed agencies that will work with county agencies throughout the state to help increase adoptions of children under the state's guardianship.

In 1997, Gov. Arne H. Carlson and the Minnesota Legislature designated $2 million for fiscal year 1998 and $3 million for fiscal year 1999 for adoption services for children whose parents' legal rights to care for them were revoked by court orders. These agencies' services include conducting adoption studies and providing training to prospective adoptive parents, recruiting adoptive families for children, preparing and placing children with adoptive families, promoting adoption among foster parents and providing follow-up services after families have adopted children.

"We're responsible for providing safe, permanent, nurturing homes for children under our guardianship," said Erin Sullivan Sutton, director of Family and Children's Services. "We must take full advantage of the state's resources — both public and private — to provide children with homes and adoptive families with support."

More than 1,000 children under the state's guardianship are in need of adoptive families. They range in age from infancy to 18 years. Most are 5 to 11 years old. Most have been neglected or abused and may have special needs due to physical, emotional or behavioral disabilities. Most are siblings who want to stay together when they are adopted. Forty-four percent are African American, 43 percent are Caucasian, 12 percent are American Indian and 1 percent are Asian. More than 5 percent are also of Hispanic heritage.

DHS is working with private, licensed adoption agencies to place all of these children for adoption. They will place emphasis on finding families for children who have traditionally been more difficult to place, including children who are over age 11; have severe emotional, behavioral or developmental difficulties; are of Asian, African American, American Indian or Hispanic descent; and are part of sibling groups who want to be adopted together. Agencies are also concentrating on preparing families for adoption in regions of the state that have traditionally been underserved. DHS contracted through June 1999 with 10 agencies.

With the help of counties and these private agencies, DHS recently set a goal to increase adoptions of children who are under the state's guardianship by 25 percent a year for the next four years, using fiscal year 1997 as a base year.

The department is also working closely with the Minnesota Adoption Resource Network (MARN), a non-profit organization that advocates for children without permanent families. MARN maintains the Minnesota Adoption Exchange (MAE), an electronic database with information on children available for adoption and prospective adoptive parents throughout the state. Currently only 268 families are listed on MAE. MARN also publishes Minnesota's Waiting Children, a bimonthly magazine that introduces children to prospective adoptive parents.

"We would like to have at least two prospective families for each child under state guardianship," said Sullivan Sutton. "We're devoting additional resources — funds and expertise — to work with counties to ensure that these children get adopted quickly."

For more information about adopting under the state's guardianship, contact MARN at 612-861-7115 or one of the private, licensed adoption agencies contracting with the state.

Crime rates show slight increase during 1997

As anticipated, the number of juvenile arrests in Thief River Falls last year climbed significantly.

Thief River Falls Police Chief Ken Froschheiser presented the department's annual report to the Thief River Falls City Council on March 10. The report detailed his department's activities during the year. Chief Froschheiser noted that the report showed that reports to his department were down for the year .5 percent. As anticipated, however, the number of calls regarding juveniles, was up 22.40 percent. "We continue to express concern over this increase, however, we do believe that two factors are involved. The Juvenile and Liaison programs are having much more contact and thus finding more incidents of problems and referrals. Second, we find several repeat offenders going through the system."

Liquor law violations relating to juveniles was the single highest reported offense for juveniles, easily outdistancing tobacco violations, shoplifting, property offenses, and nuisance related incidents. In 1996, property offenses and liquor law violations were almost equal in numbers of reported violations. In 1997, however, the number of liquor law violations increased from 38 to 74.

Adult arrests rose by 2.4 percent, not a significant increase but the increase in crimes against family and criminal sexual conduct categories left police with cause for concern. Chief Froschheiser said several officers worked on a large percentage of these calls and incidents. "They are very time consuming, stressful investigations," he said.

'Froschheiser attributed some of the increased numbers to the School Liaison officer position, as well. The addition of this position, he said, "has brought us more contacts which in turn has uncovered more offenses."

Calls for service, which represent such things as accidents, traffic stops, lost persons or property, alarm responses and business or residential checks, increased by about 1.9 percent. The single highest miscellaneous request involved disturbances (1,093). Last year there were 65 personal injury accidents and 374 property damage accidents. Officers made 1,605 traffic stops. In all the total number of miscellaneous calls totaled 9,662 reported calls. In 1996, there were 9,482 total calls. In 1995, there were 9,342 total calls.

Total criminal calls were down by 5 percent. The highest number of reported criminal calls involved traffic complaints (367), a slight increase over 1996 (360). Property offenses reported were the second highest at 282, once again a slight increase from 283 in 1996. The number of thefts reported, which was third highest among criminal calls to the department (257) in 1997, was lower than what was reported in 1996 (268).

Traffic activity increased in all areas during 1997. Total traffic violations were up by 22 or 4.3 percent over 1996. Parking tickets increased by 315 or 10.4 percent. Despite these increases, fine monies collected decreased. Chief Froschheiser attributed the decrease to the STS program where many fines are being worked off in community service. Fine monies collected decreased from $78,004 in 1996 to $56,570 in 1997. Two-thirds of fine monies are paid to the city ($38,196 in 1997, and $45,605 in 1996). Money collected from parking tickets increased from $14,200 in 1996 to $14,647 in 1997.

The annual report also includes the annual report of the animal control officer. In 1997, the number of animals impounded dropped from 312 to 238. Of those animals, 160 were disposed of, 22 were vehicle killed, 102 were released to owners, and 44 were given away.

Citations issued to individuals for allowing their pet to run at large, or for cruelty to animals requiring a court appearance, have remained relatively even during the past several years. In 1997, however, the number increased from the 20 citations issued in 1996 and 1995 to 28. Despite that increase, the amount of pound fees collected decreased from $3,421 in 1996 to $2,930 in 1997. Decreases were also observed in the number of dog and cat licenses sold (53 from 73) and number of calls or complaints about pets (651 from 690).

This cookbook is a compilation of recipes from Lincoln High School alumni and School District 564 staff.

Dimich said people are asked to bring their membership form and the amount of their membership contribution to the School District Service Center at which time they can pick up their cookbook. Cookbooks must be picked up; they will not be mailed out.

"Life for our children, our grandchildren, the neighborhood children will be better because of your efforts and contributions. Be a part of this campaign to ensure that our children are equipped to succeed," said Dimich.

Several arrests made by law enforcement

Law enforcement officials arrested a number of individuals during the past week.

Thefts. Three face charges following the investigation into the theft of two pickups last weekend. On March 7 police received a report that a pickup had been taken from a garage in Thief River Falls. It was later located. Pennington County Sheriff's department also received a report that a pickup had been taken from a rural residence on March 7. It was later located. Following an investigation, law enforcement authorities report that charges are pending against William Marvin Yonke, 24, Thief River Falls; Bonnie Baker Mullen, 20, Thief River Falls; and a 16-year-old male from Thief River Falls. Charges of burglary, theft, tampering with a motor vehicle, and conspiracy to commit burglary are anticipated.

Thief River Falls Police department and Pennington County Sheriff's department are charging two individuals following an investigation into a burglary. After receiving a tip, law enforcement executed a search warrant at 413 North Knight Avenue and recovered hair products taken during a burglary of a home occupation business on January 15. Several other items taken in the burglary have not been recovered. A warrant has been issued for the arrest of an adult male, and a 17-year-old female faces charges in juvenile proceedings.

A 17-year-old male from Thief River Falls faces a charge of possession of stolen property following an investigation into a theft from a truck reported December 30. On February 27 a sheriff's deputy stopped a vehicle for a taillight out and noticed a stolen CB inside the vehicle.

On March 16 at 2:21 a.m. police stopped a vehicle after observing it drive up on onto a sidewalk near Northern State Bank in downtown Thief River Falls. The 15-year-old male from Wannaska was cited for violation of a learner's permit as there wasn't another adult in the vehicle with a valid license. Upon further investigation, officers found a loaded 9mm pistol under a seat in the vehicle. During their further investigation they learned that there had been a burglary in Wannaska at a Forestry building. Other items found in the vehicle were found to have been taken from the forestry building. Those items included gas cans, battery charger, batteries, saw, drill, flashlights, mittens, gloves and other items. Justin Lee Lane, 21, Wannaska was charged with felon in possession of a firearm. Two 15-year-old males face charges of possession of stolen property.

Burglary. On February 13 at 3:26 p.m the sheriff's department received a report of a burglary in rural Pennington county. The front door of a residence was found open and a number of items were in the yard. Nothing, however, was found missing in the residence.

Accidents. On March 10 at 11:09 a.m. police received a report of an accident on Highway 59 near Dale Street. Amy Jo Wessel, Thief River Falls, was driving south in a car and attempted to make a left turn in front of a car traveling north, and driven by Debra Sue Stage of Thief River Falls. Police estimated damages at $2,000 to the Stage car and $1,200 to the Wessel car.

On February 28 at 1:38 a.m. police received a call of a hit-and-run accident at the 7-11 store in Thief River Falls. A blue Oldsmobile Delta 88, 1988 to 1989 model, was traveling in the parking lot when it lost control and struck the front of the building. The vehicle then left the scene of the accident. Damage to the building was estimated at about $8,000. The incident remains under investigation.

On March 13 at 12:21 p.m. police received a report of an accident in a parking lot on Knight Avenue. Leslie Kierstin Jenson, Thief River Falls, got out of her car thinking she had left it in neutral. The vehicle begun to roll backwards and it collided with another parked vehicle belonging to Tiffany Hermanson of Thief River Falls. Police estimated damages at $300 to the Jenson vehicle and $800 to the Hermanson vehicle.

Contributing. On March 12 18-year-old Shannon Lee Martin of Thief River Falls was taken into custody after a warrant was issued for contributing to the delinquency of a minor. The warrant was issued after complaints were made by parents of a female minor.

Consumption under age. on March 14 at 7:12 p.m. police received a call from a local woman who thought her son had overdosed. Upon investigation it was learned that the 13-year-old boy had been drinking alcohol with some friends and while wrestling had struck his head hard enough to leave him unconscious. The 13-year-old male from Thief River Falls, two 13-year-old males from St. Hilaire, a 15-year-old male and another 14-year-old male from Thief River Falls were cited for consumption under age. The 14-year-old male from Thief River Falls was also cited for possession of tobacco product.

Disorderly conduct. On March 15 at 6:07 p.m. Thomas Lewis Swantek, Thief River Falls, was cited for disorderly conduct after police received four complaints about his behavior.

Driving while intoxicated. On March 14 at 12:40 a.m. 31-year-old Matthew Leo Josephson, Thief River Falls, was arrested for aggravated driving while intoxicated, refusal to test, driving after cancellation, and disorderly conduct.

Assault. On March 13 at 11:58 p.m. Curtis John Buckanaga, 18, Bemidji, was arrested on a warrant from Pennington County by Bemidji authorities. Buckanaga was charged with second degree assault and escape from custody stemming from a September 25, 1997 incident during which he escaped from the hospital by threatening orderlies with a knife-like object. Buckanaga was being held at the hospital on a hold order. He was captured a short while later after his escape from the hospital, but only recently returned to Pennington county to face those charges.

On March 15 at 1:58 a.m. police received a report of an assault. A man claimed he had been followed by another vehicle and when the other vehicle flashed lights at him he thought he was being asked to pull over. A 16-year-old male got out of the other car, said some words to the victim and then hit him in the face chipping a tooth. The 16-year-old male faces charges of assault.

These reports include names of individuals charged, arrested or cited with various crimes and offenses by police, the sheriff's department or other law enforcement officials. Depending upon the circumstances of a case, charges can be, and sometimes are, changed or dropped by law enforcement officials or attorneys even before the case reaches court. Readers should also realize that under the American system of jurisprudence, individuals charged with crimes are innocent until proven guilty of those crimes in a court of law.

TRF man sentenced to 24 months in prison

Billy Marvin Yonke, 24, Thief River Falls, was sentenced on two felony charges last week. The charges stem from two burglaries.

Ninth District Judge Dennis Murphy sentenced Yonke to 21 months in prision on one count of felony burglary in the third degree, and he was given credit for two days already served. THE TIMES
Volume 87, Number 11 Wednesday, March 18, 1998

Tadeusz Majewski, artist in residence to School District 564, performed some of his music for students prior to working with students on their performance of piano music. The district obtained a $40,000 grant to bring artists, like Majewski, to the school this year. The grant will continue next year with another $40,000 grant. Above, Majewski performs at the Marcie Knuttila Piano Studio for students from throughout the district.

Artist in Residence helps students reach beyond notes

by David Hill
Associate Editor

Tadeusz Majewski, musical artist in residence, found his visit to Thief River Falls surprising in many ways. He was surprised by the calibre of some of the musicians, the facilities, a Boosendorfer piano, and even the food.

There have been many surprises lately, he said. The facilities are very good, he said. Some colleges don't even have facilities as good as this.

His profession has taken him many places. His last performance was in Bismarck, ND. He was also in Mayville, ND, recently. He explained that a friend, whom pianists consider one of the best, was performing in Mayville and he was able to hear the performance. Most people wouldn't know that pianist was one of the best, but pianists know, he added. So that was very surprising too.

Majewski is the latest of many Artists in Residence brought to Thief River Falls. The program was supported by a grant from the Surdna Foundation of New York City to the McPhail Foundation. Bruce Felt, band director at Lincoln High School explained that the district received a $40,000 grant this year for the program and will receive another $40,000 grant for the program next year. It is likely that they will receive additional grants in future years. So far, the artists have spent over 50 days with students in the district this year. Felt has seen a dramatic change in his students because of the grant and is really looking forward to next year, which will be even better, he added.

Majewski spent time with students at Lincoln High School encouraging them to look beyond the notes and search for the musical value and images created by the music. He also spent time with area piano students brought together for a last minute master class at the studio of Marcia M. Knuttila. There, to his surprise, he found a Boosendorfer piano and some very talented students. Their interest in music kept them working and discussing music until after midnight two nights in a row.

Teachers and students found it a very enjoyable experience, as well.

Piano Teacher Ruth Stenson commented that she usually has to travel to national conventions to hear master classes like that.

Piano Teacher Kathy Hagen said she was thoroughly impressed, and exclaimed what a wonderful opportunity — to have someone of that calibre in Thief River Falls.

Majewski said his week in Thief River Falls has been very enjoyable, and yes, filled with many surprises, even the food at the Best Western. Whoever is the cook, he said, is very good.

A pianist, with many awards to his credit who is used to performances all over the world, visited Thief River Falls — a surprise to him?

Tadeusz Majewski made his first public appearance at age 13 performing at the Philharmonic Hall in Krakow. He studied in Poland with composer/pianist Janina Garscia-Gressel for seven years and then continued his musical education with Maria Szmyd-Dormus at the Chopin Conservatoire, where he graduated with highest honors.

Majewski has won many honors in piano competitions in his native Poland, including the top award at the 1977 Annual Chopin Society Competition in Warsaw. However, it was the prize in the First New York Chopin Piano Competition that placed Tadeusz Majewski among the noted Chopin interpreters of his generation.

After emigrating to the U.S., he

Erin Melby, 12th grade daughter of Cliff and Barb Melby of Oklee, listens intently to the critique of her performance of "Scherzo" by Frederic Chopin, by Tadeusz Majewski, an artist in residence to School District 564. Several students from the region participated in the event.

MPCA creates new listed metals advisory council

Five Minnesotans were appointed to the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency's (MPCA) newly formed Listed Metals Advisory Council by MPCA Commissioner Peder Larson. The Listed Metals Advisory Council is charged with determining whether certain products containing the listed metals lead, mercury, cadmium or hexavalent chromium should be banned from use in Minnesota because of their level of toxicity.

"We've assembled a group of innovative, dedicated people, each of whom brings unique and important qualifications to the process," said Commissioner Larson. "We will draw on the expertise of these individuals to review technical information and make recommendations on over 1,000 products." The Council is comprised of five permanent members including a chair and one representative each from government business, a citizens' organization and a relevant field of academia. The following individuals have been appointed to the council.

Dale Goodfriend, chair, was an attorney for IBM for 31 years, 15 of which at the Rochester site. His work included environmental matters. Since his retirement from the company in 1995, he has been a consultant in physical asset management, operated an asset management non-profit consortium, and served as the interim executive director for a community mental health center. He also contributes his time to several civic causes.

Kurt Soderberg, government representative, is the executive director of the Western Lake Superior Sanitary District. He is also a member of the Lake Superior Bi-National Forum and has been chair of the Office of Environmental Assistance's Solid Waste Management Advisory Council since 1995.

Russell Susag, business representative, retired from 3M after 22 years in the environmental and regulatory affairs department. He has served on the Richfield City Council since 1992.

Fay Thompson, has been associated with the University of Minnesota's Environmental Health and Safety Department since 1970. She is currently director of that department as well as assistant professor in the School of Public Health.

Michelle Carstensen is a research associate at the Institute of Local Self-Reliance. Some of the key areas of her work include pollution prevention and sustainable development.

The need for this Advisory Council grew from recent changes in the Toxics in Specified Products statute. The original statute banned outright the sale of inks, dyes, paints, pigments and fungicides which contain the listed metals as of July 1, 1998. In response to industry concern that these products were banned without consideration of the utility of the listed metals or the technical feasibility of removing the metals by the deadline date, the legislature reworked the statute to provide a new framework for administering the program. The amended law was developed and supported by the business community, governmental unit and environmental groups.

Gully

Sanna Brovold • 268-4350

March is Americanism month and also Community Service month, besides being the 79th birthday for the American Legion.

The Gully unit of the American Legion Auxiliary honored our legionnaires and guests by preparing a birthday supper in their honor on Tuesday evening at the Gully Community Center, in Gully. In these days of unrest it was well for us to hope for "kindlier spirit, new hope, and a stronger faith in a peaceful tomorrow. After the supper, the Legion and Auxiliary each met in separate monthly meetings. The next meeting for the Gully Auxiliary will be at 10 o'clock on April 6th. Please save and bring Campbell soup labels and canceled stamps for the April 6 meeting, and also scissors and something for lunch.

It isn't every year Harry Watnemo can have such good weather and roads for his birthday. This year the weatherman dealt him an exception and maybe because it was so nice, Harry's 84th birthday lasted for awhile. Visitors during the week have been his brother, Virgil and Mavis Watnemo, his sister, Ila Torgerson, Chester and Norma Lee, Lloyd and Carol Wold, Vernon and Ruby Wold. For the weekend the immediate family was together at the Bob and Linnea Anderson home for dinner on Saturday. Other visitors at the Watnemo home included Lawrence Fornberg.

Arnold and Sanna Brovold visited at the Clifford and Luella Arveson home north of Gully, on Wednesday afternoon to help Luella celebrate her birthday. We enjoyed coffee and "calamity" birthday. Driving too fast and hitting a rut is not good for a birthday cake in the backseat of our car.

So many sad messages lately. On March 4, we learned of the death of Margaret Gison. Even though she wasn't from Gully at the present time, she was well known here and was a respected, friendly neighbor until her death. She was born at Clearbrook and graduated from high school there. Except for working in Grand Forks for a time, she spent her life in the surrounding area. At one time she worked at the cafe in Gully and her husband, Art, worked for the Co-op here. Margaret and her husband owned and operated the meat market in Gonvick, she was a home health aide for Clearwater County for six years, and they formed near Bomer. It is hard to say "Farewell" to someone who seems so young and she was only 68. Our sympathy to her family especially daughter, Patty and her husband, Rob Brekke, her son, Wayne and his wife, Lois, of Hutchinson, grandchildren, Elizabeth Brekke and Brian Gison; and her brother, Raymond Erickson. Services were on Friday, March 6, at United Lutheran Church at Bomer. The ladies served a nice meal after the services.

Joan Heinrichs
CGMC Executive

Jean Heinrichs appointed to CGMC Board

Thief River Falls Vice Mayor Jean Heinrichs has been appointed to the executive committee of the Coalition of Greater Minnesota Cities (CGMC) by Coalition President Jeanette Hammond.

The CMGC is a non-profit advocacy group representing 61 Greater Minnesota cities. Heinrichs will join the committee made up of mayors, council members and city officials from throughout Greater Minnesota.

Hammond praised Heinrichs' dedication to the Coalition and Greater Minnesota. "Jean Heinrichs is an important Greater Minnesota leader," she said. "She is out front promoting the Coalition's goals of equitable property tax reform and a balanced bonding bill."

The Coalition's advocacy efforts focus on property tax reform and environmental issues. Its mission is to develop viable, progressive communities for businesses and families through strong economic growth and good local government.

"We believe a strong Greater Minnesota is essential to having a strong state," Hammond said. "Active coalition members, like Jean Heinrichs, get our voices heard at the Capitol to protect Greater Minnesota citizens from special interest groups that are trying to increase property taxes on our homeowners in the name of property tax 'reform.'"

Hammond went on to say that "the participation of executive committee members will be critical as we enter the final weeks of the legislative session, when the debate on property tax reform heats up. Other important legislative issues for Greater Minnesota this session include what to do with the budget surplus and the capital bonding bill."

Cornerstone Of State's Economy Fractured

According to a number of indicators, farming in Minnesota—and especially northwestern Minnesota—is in dire straits. Prices for all crop and livestock commodities are low, traditional crops are plagued by disease, and conditions have been adverse for several consecutive years, stifling any opportunity for farmers to recover and recoup between disasters.

Acknowledged as the cornerstone of the state economy, agriculture is fractured at the producer level. It would seem that some separation should be acknowledged between farming—the actual production of crops and livestock—and the later handling and processing of these products.

This week is National Agriculture Week, a time proclaimed to provide focus on the people and system which makes Americans the best and most economically fed people in the world. It should be a time to recognize that of all phases of activity in the general field called "agriculture," the greatest difficulty is being experienced at the most basic level—the producer.

Such is not the case, however. Farmers are lumped into the total picture, even in the statement issued by Minnesota Agriculture Commissioner Gene Hugoson, which includes the following:

"As Minnesota has grown more urban we've lost sight of the enormous impact agriculture has on our state economy," he said. "Agriculture and its related industries are responsible for employing one out of every four Minnesota workers, and the sector brings in $3 billion in exports each year for our state.

"Agriculture and its related industries provide 17 percent of Minnesota's gross state product. That contribution places it second to manufacturing among the state's economic sectors. Agriculture is also the second largest employer in Minnesota, providing more than 468,000 jobs. Two thirds of those jobs are off the farm, in processing, distribution, supply and service sectors."

The emphasis in the above statement is ours. The point is that the all-encompassing term of "agriculture" involves not only production, sale and processing of crops and livestock which farmers raise but sales to farmers of machinery, equipment, fertilizers, petroleum products and a host of other products and services.

The other reality is that at only one point in the entire system—the producer level—is the price paid established by the buyer rather than the seller. In every other area, price is established by determining cost plus profit. At the producer level, the price is established on the "market" and farmers have to figure out how to produce at a cost below that market price.

It could be argued that at the hired worker level in agriculture the buyer (employer) also controls the price. But wages are competitive and workers have the option of determining where and for whom they will work. Farmers must sell their products or have no income at all.

Farmers as a group for decades have been stereotyped as complainers. The knock was that for them it was always too wet, too dry, too cold, too hot, too cheap, too expensive. The yields were never good enough and on the rare occasion when there was a bumper crop, it took too much out of the soil. The contention was that no matter how well farmers did, they always felt they should have done better.

Whether the stereotype has basis in fact or not, it has contributed to a situation similar to that of the shepherd boy who made a game of crying "wolf." When farmers really are facing difficult times, no one knows for sure if the alarm expressed is real.

Well, at least up in this neck of the woods, it's real. It wasn't that many years ago when another ag crisis was in the news. Land prices had escalated, farmers paid too much for land in relation to its productive ability, lenders encouraged too much debt and for many there was—as the saying goes—too much year left at the end of the money.

To the relief of some and the resentment of others, the government bailed out a number of farmers with the greatest financial problems. Today the problem is more widespread and lacks the errors in decision-making evidenced in the last crisis. It also lacks the probability that the government can be of any great help in providing relief.

Agriculture in northwestern Minnesota needs a cure for scab, a few successive years of decent small grain crops and a price that will exceed production costs. That is a combination that would be miraculous if realized.

Our area of Minnesota was built on agriculture, and especially on the farming aspect of agriculture. It is certainly the cornerstone of the overall economy of this part of the state. With each setback the cracks in that cornerstone widen and stability decreases. Let's hope that repairs can be made before the building collapses.

Some Ag Week Facts For Folks To Ponder

Minnesota has 29.8 million acres of farmland (59 percent of the total land area) and 87,000 farms which average 343 acres in size. The average Minnesota farmer feeds 129 people, including 32 in other countries. Minnesota agriculture brings $3 billion annually into the state through exports.

Top three commodity production areas for Minnesota farmers are corn ($2.1 billion), soybeans ($1.5 billion) and dairy ($1.2 billion).

Minnesota ranks first nationally in sugarbeets, green peas and sweet corn; second in turkeys, canola and cultivated wild rice, third in soybeans, spring wheat, cheese, flax, mink pelts and hogs; fourth in corn, oats, sunflowers and barley; and fifth in milk, butter, ice cream and honey.

Twenty-two percent of all workers in the state (468,000) are employed in agriculture and the food sector, which contributes 17 percent of the Minnesota Gross State Product.

Filing period for Kittson Co. project set

Individuals interested in commenting upon a proposed project to repair a section of highway in Kittson Co. that would also result in filling over five areas of type 2 and 6 wetlands have until about April 10 to file a comment with the Army Corps of Engineers.

Kittson county has applied for a permit to discharge fill and excavated material into unnamed wetlands and the North Branch of Two Rivers near the town of Lancaster in order to upgrade County State Aid Highway 4. The wetland fill impacts would be compensated through the State Wetland Bank system, although the applicant may be able to perform some on-site wetland restoration.

The section of the highway to be improved extends 4.14 miles and would result in filling 5.048 acres of type 2 and 6 wetlands. The affected wetlands include sedge, reed canary grass, and willow typical of type 2 and 6 wetlands. Commercial sources and/or borrow for fill would be used.

Interested parties are invited to submit written facts, arguments or objections within 30 days of the date of this notice. These statements should bear upon the suitability of the location and the adequacy of the project and should, if appropriate, suggest any changes believed to be desirable. Replies may be addressed to Regulatory Branch, St. Paul District, Corps of Engineers, 8896 East Gull Lake Drive Northwest, Brainerd, MN 56401-9051.

Any questions about the project should be directed to Jeff Koschak at the Brainerd office of the Corps at 218-829-2711.

Hearing helps give farm issues public exposure

Rep. Jim Tunheim and Sen. LeRoy Stumpf are expressing their thanks to area farmers for helping to give the farm crisis the exposure it deserves.

In an open letter to farmers of northwestern Minnesota, they state, "During the hearings, and in letters and phone calls from you, we have received a great deal of important input. We have begun working on bills in our respective bodies to address the problems farmers are facing. Although we realize there is not one simple solution, we can do a few things that should be a great help.

"Because the majority of the state is experiencing good economic times, the state budget has a projected surplus of just under $2 billion. We believe some of these funds should be used to help local farmers. Another thing that would help farmers is property tax relief. The Senate has suggested reducing farm property taxes by as much as 20 percent next year. The House is proposing to use some of our budget surplus to work on long-term property tax relief. Other proposed changes would send more state money to schools, which would lower school's reliance on property taxes. These changes would affect all taxpayers in the state, and would be an extra boost to farmers in northwestern Minnesota.

"Earlier this past week we drafted a letter to the U.S. House and Senate Agriculture committees, pleading for needed changes in the Federal Crop Insurance program. The letter was signed by every state legislator in northwest Minnesota, the Speaker of the House, the Senate Majority Leader, the chairs of the House and Senate Tax and Agriculture committees, and other key legislators. We are maintaining close contact with Congressman Peterson and the rest of the Minnesota Congressional delegation. Congressman Peterson is working with the rest of Congress and with the U.S. Department of Agriculture to see what direct relief they can offer our farmers.

"Residents of northwest Minnesota can take comfort in the fact that the first and most important steps are being taken to address this crisis. The Speaker of the House, the Senate Majority Leader, and key committee chairs from the House and the Senate were all present at our hearings. They heard your stories first hand, and got a better understanding of the economic problems our region is facing. We are confident that we can provide some meaningful relief for our region."

"The Girls' Community club members frolicked at the Sons of Norway hall Monday evening at a St. Patrick's Day party, when a general good time was had by the large number present. M.W. A. Second Annual

"M. W. A. Second Annual, St. Hilaire Camp No. 3650, gave its second annual Friday evening in the parlors of the St. Hilaire House. The Woodmen, being anxious to make the occasion the event of the season, spared neither time or means in their efforts to properly entertain their visitors and show them the hospitality of the Woodcraft. The guests assembled at an early hour but were somewhat delayed on account of the music not arriving on schedule, which caused no little anxiety. Upon the announcement of the arrival of the music, the dining room was taken possession of by the dancers, and a merry good time was had. The fixtures were removed from the office, converting it to a dining hall. At 12 o'clock supper was announced and thirty-five couples sat down to a bountiful spread for which Landlord Arthur is noted for preparing. After supper dancing was resumed and kept up until an early hour when the guests began to take their leave, feeling that they were royally entertained by the Woodmen."

FROM THE NEW CITY

THE NEWS, JOHN W. EASTMAN, PUBLISHER MARCH 17, 1898
THIEF RIVER FALLS, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA

A DITCH
One Should Be Dug North of This City

"A matter of great importance to the city is being agitated by Matt Barzen. It is the building of a ditch from a point near Germantown (section 18, township 155, range 40) east about 12 miles to the Thief river. This would open up for settlement a large tract of fertile land all of which is tributary to this city and would at once be settled up. It is estimated that the ditch could be built for $20,000 and an effort should be made to secure an appropriation from the next legislature for this amount."

NO MONEY
For the Government Improvement Boat

"Congress will not report upon the river and harbor bill at this session. As the appropriation for work on the rivers in this section has been exhausted, the government boat on the Red Lake river will not be run this summer. Capt. McDonald will still remain in charge of the boat however."

I THOUGHT OF YOU TODAY

I thought of you today, when the sun dogs shown so bright. For on the day the Lord called you home, they shined so bright, to show us all the "Way".
I thought of you today, when Joetta called to say, "I'm Grandma!" Oh how proud you would be, a granddaughter to see!
I thought of you today, you're youngest with a flame leading the way. Oh how he smiled, the smile that you used to wear.
I thought of you today, on this warm spring day. You and your Harley riding off into the fresh spring breeze.
I thought of you today, with my Old Milwaukee in my hand. Oh how we used to solve the problems of the world with a brew in our hand.
I thought of you today, with a smile on my face for here stands John at the place I work. Oh how he has grown! You should be so proud. A mechanic he wants to be imagine that!
I thought of you today, with tears in my eyes as a Harley reps its pipes driving by.
In loving memory of our friend and cousin, God bless you always for you have touched so many.

SPECIAL BOARD MEETING

Independent School District #564
March 2, 1998
5:00 p.m.
S.D.S.C. Conference Room A

A Special Board Meeting of Independent School District #564 was held on Monday, March 2, 1998, at 5:00 p.m. in Conference Room A of the school district service center. The purpose of the meeting was to review the administration's recommendations for expenditure of the levy dollars for the upcoming school year.

The following board members were present: Carl Clark, Jean Larson, Cheryl Lee, Lyle Olson, Randy Twistol, Darla Twomey and Steve Young. Also present was Superintendent Jerry Robicheau.

Chairperson Carl Clark called the meeting to order and Clerk Jean Larson established that a quorum was present.

A motion was made by S. Young and seconded by L. Olson to approve the agenda as presented. Motion carried unanimously.

Superintendent Jerry Robicheau reviewed the process used to come up with the recommendations for expenditure of the levy dollars noting that they are based on input from staff and through discussions with the principals. It was noted that not all requests could be funded since they totaled $2,791,579. The recommendations that are presented do not include food service, capital, transportation, volunteer program, buildings and grounds, or the Area Learning Center as these programs are funded separately.

Jerry noted that the recommendations are based on the following basic premises: 1) additions would be those that can be sustained, 2) recommendations are based on the commitments that were made to the citizens of the district during the levy campaign, and 3) recommendations are based on fiscal responsibility and accountability. Jerry also noted that a 3% inflation rate is factored into the recommendations and, since we do not know at this time what the total revenue will be beyond next year, questions arise for the years beyond the 1999-2000 school year.

The following recommendations were presented for expenditure of levy dollars in the 1998-99 school year: Commitments to reduce class sizes: Kindergarten teacher at Challenger, Grade One teacher at Challenger, Grade Two teacher at Challenger, .5 FTE Phy Ed teacher at Challenger, 60 additional hours of Ed Assistant time at Challenger; Social Studies teacher at Franklin, Science teacher at Franklin, Math teacher at Franklin, .7 FTE Phy Ed teacher at Franklin, .3 FTE Communications teacher at Franklin, Math teacher at Lincoln, .2 FTE Science teacher at Lincoln, $100,000.00 for the district's technology program.

Program additions including a foreign language program in the earlier grades, Ag education teacher, teacher for the gifted and talented and a K-12 social worker; additions to supply budgets by $6,400.00/year; increase the student activities budget by $5,000.00/year; hold 15% of the funds in reserve.

A motion was made by D. Twomey and seconded by J. Larson to forward to the school board for formal action on March 9, 1998, the recommendations for expenditure of levy dollars in the 1998-99 school year as presented. Motion carried unanimously.

The special meeting was adjourned at 5:50 p.m.

STATE OF MINNESOTA
COUNTY OF PENNINGTON

DISTRICT COURT
NINTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT

TO: ALL PERSONS WITH A LEGAL INTEREST IN THE PARCELS OF REAL PROPERTY DESCRIBED IN THE FOLLOWING DELINQUENT TAX LIST

A list of real property in Pennington County on which delinquent property taxes and penalties are due has been filed with the Court Administrator of Pennington County. This list is published to inform all persons that the listed property is subject to forfeiture because of delinquent taxes.

The property owner, taxpayer, or other interested person must either pay the tax and penalty, plus interest and costs, or file a written objection with the Court Administrator. The objection must be filed by April 10, 1998, stating the reason why the tax or penalty is not due on the property. If no objection is filed, a court judgment will be entered against the property for the unpaid tax, penalty, interest, and costs.

For property under court judgment, the period of redemption begins on May 11, 1998, and ends three to five years later, depending on the type of property and where it is located. The period of redemption means the time within which taxes must be paid to avoid losing the property through forfeiture.

To avoid forfeiture, taxes on property located within a township must be paid by May 12, 2003. Taxes must also be paid by May 12, 2003, if the property is one of the following types in a city: (1) residential homestead, (2) farm homestead, (3) private cabins, (4) resorts occupied by the owner, and (5) resorts in operation for not more than 225 days a year. Payment of tax by May 14, 2001, is necessary to avoid forfeiture of any property in a city which is not described in the preceding sentence.

To determine how much interest and costs must be added to pay the tax in full, contact the Pennington County Auditor's Office, Pennington County Courthouse, P.O. Box 616, Thief River Falls, Minnesota 56701. The telephone number is 218-683-7000.

On Saturday afternoon quite a few of Luelle Arveson's friends and relatives joined her at the Gully Café to celebrate her birthday. A long table decorated in white and green had been set up, a good way to get to visit and enjoy a cup of coffee and birthday cake. Edna had made and decorated a nice large birthday cake. There was also angel food cake for those that preferred that. Among those who came to wish Luelle "Happy Birthday" were Luelle's son, Dane and his wife Evon, her husband Clifford, Evelyn Hanson, Sarah Brovold and Grace Nyland of Clearbrook, Sanna Gustafson of Wannaska, Mauri, Amanda and Joey Evans of St Paul, Carol Torgerson of Thief River Falls. Harry and Nora Hanson, Arlene Piccard, of Portland, OR, Linda Hanson, Arnold and Sanna Brovold and Carol Thoreldson. Other regular customers who stop in for a cup of coffee were treated to birthday cake.

Such a sad day for us on Monday as a record crowd came to Lund Church to bid farewell to a young friend and relative.

Pallbearers were Dale Bjerklie, Stanley Solheim, Gary Halvorson, Keith Paulson, Rich Stelle, Harvey Carlson and Louis Vettleson. Interment was at Bethany Lutheran Church, north of Gully. Tim was born at Fosston to parents, Emil and Clara Tollefson Olson. He graduated from Fosston High School. One of the important days of his life was at Lund Church where and when he married Barbara Sweno in 1976. They have two daughters, Kimberly and Stephanie, both at home. He had six brothers and three sisters. Tim and Barbara lived north of Trail. From 1981 to 1984 they lived on the Cara and Jorgen Ditolle farm in Hickory Township. Tim worked on pipeline construction and passed away on Wednesday, March 4, at Kittson Memorial Health Care Center in Hallock at age 45. The large crowd that was present for the funeral service told its own story about Tim. He had won the respect and admiration of whoever he worked with or knew during his life. His cheerful, friendly disposition won friends from all walks of life, and those that could get to Gully on Monday, wanted to be there to pay honor to their departed friend and relative. The ladies served a good meal after the service.

Governor proposes food safety initiative

Major renovation at the Family Bowl in Thief River Falls was completed recently. Improvements were made during the project to the exterior of the facility as well as the interior. Interior improvements were made so that the facility is handicapped accessible. In addition, the locker rooms were improved. The Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce Ambassadors presented Tom Greelis, owner, with a More Progress award. Pictured from left are Holly Haugen, chamber ambassador, Tom Greelis, and Mark Thune, chamber ambassador.

Governor Arne H. Carlson will include a major new initiative aimed at improving the safety of the state's food supply in the supplemental budget for the 1998-99 biennium.

The proposed effort will provide valuable new scientific information about the occurrence — and the causes — of food-related illness, laying the groundwork for more effective prevention strategies. The $3.2 million initiative will also include state-of-the-art information and education programs on food safety, targeted toward industry, government regulators and consumers.

"What we're proposing is nothing less than a complete redesign and reconfiguration of our state's food safety system," Governor Carlson said. "We need an approach to food safety that will be more modern, more comprehensive, and more scientifically-based. We believe this new approach will place Minnesota in the forefront of national efforts to prevent food-related illness."

The initiative is designed to address growing concerns about food safety and food-related illness, according to Minnesota Health Commissioner Anne Barry.

"The public health community has long been concerned about the emergence of new foodborne pathogens like E. coli — and the vulnerability of our increasingly complex food production and distribution system for foodborne disease problems," Commissioner Barry said. "Recent disease outbreaks involving E. coli in hamburger, hepatitis A in frozen strawberries and cyclospora in imported raspberries have helped to bring these concerns home to the broader public. We believe it's time to take action on this issue."

A key element of the new initiative will be an expansion of the state's ability to conduct surveillance for foodborne disease — including a technological upgrade and expanded support capabilities for the state Public Health Laboratory at the Minnesota Department of Health (MDH).

"We need more and better information about the prevalence of food-related illness in the community," Commissioner Barry said. "We need to know more about the conditions and practices that cause foodborne disease, so we can target our prevention efforts more effectively. And we need good feedback on which prevention strategies work — and which ones don't."

The new food safety initiative will be a collaborative effort, Commissioner Barry emphasized.

"If we are to do an effective job of protecting the public from foodborne illness, we need to enlist the help of industry, the academic community, the education community, the health care community, government agencies and — ultimately — the individual consumer," she said. "We're all in this together, and we have a role to play in food safety."

In addition to expanded surveillance for foodborne disease, the proposed initiative will also include:

- Accelerated implementation of the Hazard Analysis and Critical Control Points (HACCP) approach to food safety, so food safety practices will focus on those areas that pose the greatest risk.
- Development of a coordinated system for monitoring and evaluating current food safety practices, to be undertaken as a collaborative effort of MDH, the Minnesota Department of Agriculture, local public health agencies, the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, and the University of Minnesota.
- Staffing of the state's food, beverage and lodging (FBL) program at recommended levels, to ensure adequate regulator oversight for the 22,000 FBL establishments licensed by the state.
- Addition of core functions fee to the basic license for FBL establishments, to fund activities like responding to foodborne disease outbreaks, providing support for local food safety programs, developing food safety rules and standards, coordinating government food safety activities, and operating a state certification program for food service managers.
- Development of effective information and education campaigns for industry and consumers, with messages focusing on effective food safety practices and strategies — including new technologies for protecting the safety of our food supply.
- Development of educational programs and activities for industry and government, covering the latest issues and developments in the area of food safety.
- Establishment of a State Center for Food Safety, to provide overall coordination for food safety activities and guide policy development in the area of food safety, on a statewide basis.

National research initiative working to solve crop disease

More than 40 key research scientists, growers, food processors, and farm organization representatives met in Chicago last week to design a national research initiative and federal funding proposal to resolve one of the most important disease problems facing the nation's wheat and barley farmers, processors and consumers.

The disease, Fusarium head blight (more commonly known as scab), has caused catastrophic yield and quality losses in at least 12 states: Indiana, Illinois, Kansas, Kentucky, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, and South Dakota.

"Scab has caused losses of $2.6 billion to the nation's wheat crop over the past six years and $400 million to the barley crop over the past four years," says Tom Anderson, Barnesville, MN, farmer and co-chair of the U.S. Wheat and Barley Scab Initiative Steering Committee. "After five straight years of economic hardship from this disease, growers in the Dakotas and Minnesota are going out of business."

"The mission of the Scab Initiative is to develop, in the shortest period of time possible, control measures that can minimize the threat of scab to the producers, processors and consumers of wheat and barley," says Rick Ward, Michigan State University wheat breeder and co-chair of the Initiative's Steering Committee.

"The Scab Initiative's plan will develop systems that span across all geographical and political boundaries," says Ward. "This unprecedented national, multi-disciplinary, multi-institutional effort will include seven research areas: epidemiology/pathology; food safety/toxicology; uniform nurseries, germplasm introduction; transgenics; and communications.

"Congress has appropriated $1 million this year (FY98) to help address the scab problem," explains Mike Davis, president of the American Malting Barley Association and member of the Scab Initiative Steering Committee. "The Administration's budget proposal for next year (FY99) retains this funding and proposes an increase of $600,000 for scab research as part of the Infectious Diseases Initiative. This support is appreciated," he says, "but it is not nearly enough to get the job done." Davis says the Scab Initiative is asking Congress to designate an additional $5 million in FY99 for the Wheat and Barley Scab Initiative.

"The federal government is losing substantial tax revenue because of the scab problem," says Davis. "A significant return on federal research investment in this area can be realized."

Rick Nelson decides against election campaign

In a letter to The Times Rick Nelson has declared that he has decided not to run for the DFL House 1B endorsement for representing northwest Minnesota in the State Legislature.

Nelson stated that he and his wife Donna have circulated questionnaires, met with family, party leaders, legislators and focus groups to evaluate his personal strengths, weaknesses, goals and visions. "I was especially interested in learning if my vision for the future of northwest Minnesota was in tune with a cross-section of our region."

"These activities of the past several months have taught me a lot about myself and our part of the state. I have concluded that I can be an effective force and a positive influence in the Legislature on behalf of the people of northwest Minnesota. In that capacity, I can help to improve the quality of life for this part of the state. The process has shown me and others that I have the personality, background, ability, drive and vision to be an effective Legislator for District 1B.

"These past few months have also helped me realize and recognize that 1998 would not be the best time for me to run. I have made many commitments to groups and organizations that I feel must be kept. By choosing not to run in '98, I am able to stay active and make sure my commitments are met to improve the quality of life in northwest Minnesota. These include:

- Complete academic and athletic semester conversion at NCTC.
- Make the Pennington County DFL visible, active, and financially secure for the next two years.
- NICAA Board of Directors and Region XIII Director.
- Complete my commitment as Trinity Church Council President.
- Fulfill my obligation as Minnesota Community College Athletic Conference President.
- Finish the development and fundraising for the Multi-Events Center complex project, Phase I, and assist in oversight of new construction of the MECC.
- Complete my obligation on the Mighty Kids Statewide Taskforce.
- Minnesota Community College Faculty Association State Board of Directors.
- I would, also, like to continue to improve my vision, goals and objectives that would help improve the quality of life in northwestern Minnesota.

"This decision was made possible since we do have individuals who are interested in seeking the nomination. As a citizen and Chair of the Pennington County DFL party, I will be working vigorously in 1998 to help elect a Democrat as Governor and representative to House Seat 1B."

Nelson said he hopes everyone will join him in the endeavor by taking part in the political process. "Hopefully some day I will seek your direct support as a candidate to serve northwestern Minnesota in the State Legislature."

Elliot Grant co-author of E-mail book

Elliot Grant, a staff psychologist at Northwest Medical Center in Thief River Falls, is co-author of a paperback book entitled He Mail/She Mail: The Meaning of Life in E-mail. Published by Ladybug Press in California, it is available at the Falls Book Company in Thief River Falls at $8.95.

All royalties from the sale of the book will be donated to the Thief River Falls Education in memory of Lois (Tippi) Benson, who was a social worker for School District 564.

Co-author of the book with Dr. Grant is Christine Whiteraven Olinger, a Massachusetts poet. The two have never met in person nor spoken with each other on the telephone. All of their communication and collaboration was by E-mail on the internet.

The book started as an idea by California publisher Georgia Jones. "Georgia thought we'd be a funny team," Dr. Grant said. "She suggested that we work out a comedy act and take it on the road, but I wasn't ready to give up my day job. So instead, she proposed that we choose a topic and debate it online.

"Christine and I decided to go whole hog and take on 'the meaning of life.' It was never really a debate, though, because we agreed on almost everything. We both see cosmic significance in everyday events. And we both enjoy looking at life from a slightly oddball perspective. After corresponding for about a year, we showed Georgia all our letters and she offered to publish them as a book."

Dr. Grant said he has been writing humorous stories since he was a teenager. His work has been published in Parent Connections and Festival Quarterly. Olinger's poetry has appeared in Bluster, Westwinds and Women on a Wire.

Farmers reminded to participate in Ag. Census

USDA's National Agricultural Statistics Service urges farmers to complete and return their census forms if they have not already done so. Although the February 2 deadline has passed, and most farmers have sent in their forms, "we are trying to reach those who may have set their form aside or maybe didn't receive a census form," said Michael Hunst, Minnesota State Agricultural Statistician.

If you can answer yes to any of the following questions, you should have received a 1997 Census of Agriculture report form. If you did not, please call 1-888-424-7828 and a census form will be sent to you:

- Did you have day-to-day control of an agricultural operation from which agricultural products were sold in 1997?
- Did you grow any crops or raise livestock for other than home use in 1997?
- Did you own or rent land and operate this land for agricultural purposes in 1997?

Hunst encourages farmers who have not already done so to fill out and return their census form as soon as possible. Doing so will save USDA the additional expense of sending out the form again. Farmers not responding might also receive a reminder telephone call. For assistance in completing the census form, farmers can call toll-free at 1-888-424-7828.

Sen. Moe explains graduated driver bill

Although Minnesota has among the safest roads in the nation, a proposal intended to make them even safer has been moving through the Legislature, explains Sen. Roger Moe.

A graduated driver license bill that adds an additional step in the licensing process for young drivers under age 18 passed in the Senate recently. The bill, awaiting House floor action, does not affect the farm permit law. The proposal is modeled after other states' graduated driver license laws where evidence indicates that the three-stage system has reduced the number of accidents involving young drivers.

The vast majority of young people who get a driver's license as teenagers are responsible citizens on the road, and opponents of the graduated driver's license proposal argue that they are unfairly penalized for the actions of a few. However, state statistics indicate that our youngest drivers, as a group, are the most dangerous drivers on the road. Drivers in the 15 to 19 age group are most prone to serious traffic accidents and fatalities.

According to the 1996 Minnesota Motor Vehicle Crash Facts publication (the most-recent edition available), teen drivers were more than twice as likely to be killed in a traffic accident than the average driver. They were also more than twice as likely to be injured in an accident. The motor vehicle death and injury rate for 16 year olds was more than three times greater than the rate for drivers age 45 and over, according to a 1996 study conducted by the Department of Public Safety.

Driving is a complex task requiring advanced coordination skills and good judgement. It takes a great deal of practice for young people to gain the full range of skills necessary. Under the graduated driver's license proposal, Stage I licensing is similar to the current learner permit. Any permit holder under age 18 would be able to drive only with a licensed parent, guardian or authorized driver 21 years of age or older. The current law allows any licensed driver who is 18 or older to supervise. In addition, the permit holder must be free of any driving-related violations or involvement in an at-fault accident for six consecutive months before advancing to the provisional license stage.

The professional license stage originally restricted 16 and 17 year old drivers from driving during curfew hours of 12-midnight to 5 a.m. However, the Senate removed the driving curfew provision. Senators opposing the curfew successfully argued that parents should be responsible for assuring that children get home at a reasonable time. The curfew also presented more of a problem for young people in rural areas where driving times are typically longer.

Under the proposal, the minimum age for a full, stage 3 unrestricted driver license would be 17 years old. To qualify for the full license, the provisional licensee would have to go 12 consecutive months with no more than one moving violation and no crashes in which they were at fault. The bill also sets up remedial driver improvement clinics for drivers under 21 who accumulate a poor driving record.

I am not convinced that this new system will greatly increase driving safety overall and I did not support the bill on the Senate floor. However, the Senate did pass the bill with strong support and I'm sure discussion on the topic will continue this session.

Tax delinquency down .12 percent in county

Delinquency for 1997 is 3.28 percent

Delinquent taxes dropped .12 percent during 1997 as compared to the percentage of delinquent taxes reported during 1996, according to Vickie Bjorgaard, Pennington County Treasurer. Records indicate that the percentage of delinquent taxes has remained stable at below 3.5 percent for at least the past five years.

The 3.28 percent of delinquent taxes reported in 1997 represents $275,308.74 of $8,398,824.18 (includes special assessments) levied for in 1997. Total taxes paid during 1997 amounted to $8,123,515.44. In 1996, total taxes levied, including special assessments, amounted to $7,692,753.23.

There are 21 townships and three cities in Pennington county. The highest percentage of delinquent taxes among townships was recorded by Hickory township at 13.76. In 1996 Hickory township recorded a 3.93 percent tax delinquency rate. In 1996, the highest percentage of delinquent taxes recorded by a township was in Bray township at 8.17. Another township with repeatedly low tax delinquency rates is Goodridge township. In 1997, they recorded a tax delinquency rate of .70 percent. In 1996, 1995 and 1994 there were no delinquent taxes in that township.

Among the three cities in the county, St. Hilaire recorded the highest rate of tax delinquency at 14.56 percent. It was followed closely by Goodridge, which recorded a tax delinquency rate of 10.23 percent. Thief River Falls recorded a tax delinquency rate of 3.17 percent.

Demand for FSA credit is twice annual average

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

In an "average" year, the agricultural credit division of the federal Farm Service Agency (FSA) would have 300 to 350 loan requests in Districts 1 and 2, comprising 14 counties in northwestern Minnesota. This year there are 670 applications already received with another 100 to 150 expected.

Jerry Carlson, District Director for FSA District 2 but doing double duty overseeing the farm credit situation in Districts 1 and 2, said that the two districts have 40 percent of the total loan applications received by the agency in the entire state.

The FSA's ag credit program is an extension of what was formerly the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) prior to USDA reorganization several years ago. Most of the loans it makes are guaranteed loans in cooperation with commercial lenders.

The increase in loan requests is seen as an indication of the severe problems faced by farmers in the northwest corner of the state who have been hit with crop diseases, poor weather and resulting lost crops or low yields during a time of generally low commodity prices for a period of up to five years in some areas.

"We're seeing the ones who are trying their best to survive and keep their farming operations alive," Carlson said. "We know there are others who have just decided to call it quits, but they aren't coming in with loan applications."

The glut of loan requests has left an already short-handed agency swamped with work, Carlson said. The suggestion that farm management instructors could provide valuable assistance to farmers and to the FSA in this area of the state is being followed up by the farm management program at Northland Community and Technical College.

"There is a general recognition that the loans will have to be processed in the next six weeks to two months to get farmers into the field at planting time," noted Bob Bollesen, regional dean of management education at NCTC, who directs the college's farm management program.

"This is one of the lesser rushed times of the year for our program and our instructors, and our people have the expertise to collect the data that is needed to process FSA loan applications."

The agreement for farm management instructors to assist with the program on a voluntary basis came about when several officials met while attending the recent farm crisis legislative meeting in Crookston and were discussing the problem.

Wally Sparby, state director of the FSA; State Senator LeRoy Stumpf of Thief River Falls; and Bollesen met at the meeting and Jerry Carlson (right), director of District 2 of the Farm Service Agency in Minnesota, met with Bob Bollesen at Northland Community and Technical College Monday. Northland has made arrangements to permit its farm management instructors to assist in processing agricultural loans for the Farm Service Agency in northwest Minnesota. As regional dean of management education at NCTC, Bollesen directs the farm management program.

State FSA requests additional loan funds

Minnesota's 1998 fiscal year allocation for Farm Service Agency direct, guaranteed and guaranteed farm ownership loans will be exhausted by early April and additional funding has been requested, according to Wally Sparby, state FSA director.

Sparby said the 1998 allocation was for $59,100,000 and the request has been made for an additional $34 million to meet the demands of Minnesota farm families.

Sharply increased demand for loans through the FSA is seen as an indicator of the severity of the farm crisis in the Red River Valley, the state director said. A survey of Minnesota and North Dakota FSA field personnel March 12 indicated the increased demand.

"I estimate these figures to be low," Sparby said of the survey results. "Once producers have fully identified their financial needs, I expect to see an increase in numbers. Farmers and the public can be assured that the agency is doing everything within its power to help."

According to figures provided by the state FSA office the greatest demand for loans is in Minnesota's North Dakota border counties of Kittson, Marshall, Polk and Norman.

New borrowers applying for direct or emergency loans total 30 each in Kittson and Norman, 40 each in Marshall and Polk, 10 each in Roseau and Mahnomen and 15 each in Pennington and Red Lake.

New borrowers applying for guaranteed loans are estimated at 10 each in the four border counties.

Existing borrowers who want to restructure loans are estimated at just under 140 in each of the four border counties.

Existing guaranteed borrowers who will have loans restructured by a bank are estimated at 30 in each of the border counties listed.

Puppies were popular with many of the pre-school children attending the Old McDonald's Farm activities at Challenger elementary school March 12. Matthew Sisler was one of the children who enjoyed cuddling the puppies brought by Ruth Brunkhorst.

Several area piano students win honors at state contest

Eleven piano students of Marcia M. Knuttila are winners in the Minnesota Music Teacher State Piano Contest, and will perform in Minnesota's biggest multi-piano program. One of the students, Charity Wicks, was selected as one of the top nine pianists in the Senior Young Artist category.

The 63rd annual State Student Honors Concert will be held at Northrop Auditorium, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, on Saturday, May 30 at 7 p.m. The 640 winners selected to perform are from all over the state and will perform 31 duet and piano duo music on 20 grand pianos conducted by Dr. William Jones.

A total of 4,762 students from throughout the state competed in the contest preliminaries held in February. From these, 1,833 competed in the finals held at Ferguson Hall, University of Minnesota, West Bank Campus, on March 15. There are nine categories set up according to age level ranging from the young beginner to the College "Young Artist." In some of the categories, a designated theory test level was a requirement. This is part of the MMTA curriculum which integrates theory and performance.

The alternate winner in the Primary category (ages 7-8) was Alyssa Thibert, second grade daughter of Ramona and Gary Thibert of Red Lake Falls.

The alternate winner in the Junior A division (ages 9-10) was Kathryn Knuttila, fifth grade daughter of JoAnne and Steve Knuttila of Detroit Lakes. This is the third time she has won at the contest.

The winner in the Junior B category (ages 11-12) was Brook Mattila, fifth grade daughter of Glenda and Rick Mattila of Thief River Falls. This is the second time she has won at the contest.

There were two alternate winners in the Junior B category (ages 11-12), Jillian Larson and Sarah Zak. Jillian is the fifth grade daughter of Jean and Mark Larson of Thief River Falls. This is the third time she has won at the contest. Sarah Zak is the seventh grade daughter of Naomi and Allan Zak of Thief River Falls.

The alternate winner in the Intermediate B category (ages 15-16) was Matthew Dimich, the eighth grade son of Judy and Dr. Tom Dimich of Thief River Falls. This is the sixth time he has won at the contest.

There were two winners in the Senior B division (ages 19-20), Kari Knuttila and Nikolas Kotz. Kari is the 12th grade daughter of JoAnne and Steve Knuttila of Detroit Lakes. This is the eighth time she has won at the contest. Nikolas is the 12th grade son of Sue and Jim Kotz of Thief River Falls. This is the fourth time he has won at the contest.

The alternate winner in the Senior B division (ages 19-20), was Elizabeth Munt, 12th grade daughter of Kaye and Tim Munt of Oklee. This is the second time she has won at the contest.

The alternate in the Senior Young Artist category was Erin Melby, 12th grade daughter of Barb and Cliff Melby of Oklee. This is the fifth time she has won at the contest.

The winner in the Senior Young Artist category (grades 10-12) was Charity Wicks, 12th grade daughter of Loma and Mike Wicks of Oklee. In this category, contestants must choose a repertoire representing at least three stylistic periods. Students are to prepare, at the minimum, a 15 minute memorized program. The selected repertoire must demonstrate the student's musical ability, versatility and technical facility. Charity performed "Prelude and Fugue XV in G Major" by Johann S. Bach, "Sonata in B Minor" by Franz Liszt, and "Toccata, Op. 11" by Serge Prokofiev. She received the honor of being selected as one of the top nine pianists in the Senior Young Artist category and received a score of 98. This is the ninth time she has won at the contest.

When a student wins at the MMTA State Contest, she/he is automatically moved into the next upper age division. This explains why Matthew Dimich, Kari Knuttila, Nikolas Kotz and Elizabeth Munt are competing in upper divisions.

In the event that a state winner is unable to perform in the Student Honors Concert, the alternate is called upon to perform.

Demand for FSA credit is twice annual average

Sparby asked if the farm management instructors would be able to help. Bollesen discussed it with the instructors and NCTC president Dr. Orley Gunderson, who requested authorization and funding from Chancellor Morris Anderson of Minnesota State Colleges and Universities (MnSCU).

A supporting letter to Chancellor Anderson, ensuring authority for the reassignment of instructors and appropriate funding to reimburse MnSCU for expenditures, was sent by Senate Majority Leader Roger Moe and Speaker of the House Phil Carruthers.

It is estimated that the instructors could assist with about 100 loan applications at a cost of $475 per case for salary, fringes, mileage and meals—a total of $47,500. The chancellor authorized the assistance for processing approximately 120 applications in a letter dated March 17. While participation by instructors is voluntary on their part, Bollesen said he expected nearly all of the 20 instructors would help.

Regular contract hours will not be used by the instructors for completing the additional assignment and their participation is requested to not hinder education of the regular students. Participating instructors will provide FSA with information including a whole farm analysis, cash flow, cash documentation worksheet, classification sheet and a short narrative. They will not recommend approval or rejection of the loans.

"In most cases these loan applications are somewhat complicated and some will require up to three days or even more to complete," District Director Carlson said. "In some cases they involve farmers who received write-downs or write-offs of previous loans, and the eligibility of those farmers has not been definitely determined at this time."

Carlson said that at the time of reorganization, about 120 persons fully trained in ag credit came to FSA in Minnesota from FmHA. Of these only 37 were ag credit managers and 15 were assistants. He said that about 20 loan officers and certified real estate appraisers had been detailed to northwestern Minnesota from the southern part of the state to assist the local officers with the backlog of loan applications.

Carlson said he was confident that with the extra help of NCTC and people from within FSA that the loan requests would be processed in time to get people into the field. He also said he expected some liberalization to be authorized in loan-making and that most of the loan applications would be valid.

But he noted that optimism is lacking among farmers in comparison to the area ag crisis of the early to mid-1980s. At that time most farmers felt that if they could just get past their credit crunch they would be all right in the future, he said. That attitude seems to be lacking in many of the area farmers today.

Districts 1 and 2 of FSA include the counties of Clay, Becker, Mahnomen, Norman, Polk, Roseau, Red Lake, Pennington, Clearwater, Marshall, Kittson, Koochiching, Lake of the Woods and Beltrami.

"The nature of farming has been that it is possible to have one crop loss and rebound the next year, or even to survive two bad years in a row," Bollesen said. "With the five bad years that a number of area farmers have experienced, they have used up all their equity in trying to cover annual losses and they don't have anything left."

Involvement of the farm management instructors in loan processing is not new. A state directive in 1988 brought their services into play and there has been other involvement over the years. Much of the information that the instructors deal with in their work with farmers is what is needed for FSA loan processing.

"Our instructors realize what our area farmers are up against and they are willing to do what they can to help," Bollesen said. "I also look for them to realize a lot of satisfaction from helping in a time of extreme need."

Scott Maslowski's career cut short by Parkinson's disease

Experimental procedure offers hope

After 19 years of service, Officer Scott Maslowski poses one last time with a Thief River Falls squad car. The effects of Parkinson's disease have forced the early retirement of the 46-year-old Maslowski. An experimental device called a pallidum stimulator implanted during a surgical procedure at the University of Minnesota offers Scott hope. However, the $20,000 cost of the procedure is not covered by health insurance. Friends are anxious to help him, and an account on his behalf has been established at Northern State Bank.

by Kathi Carlson
The Times Reporter

Even if you don't know him by name, Scott Maslowski has been a friend to the residents of the Thief River Falls community for a long time.

For 19 years, Scott has been an officer with the Thief River Falls Police Department. That's about to change. At a recent meeting, the city council accepted Scott's resignation.

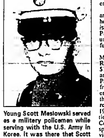
His decision to resign was not an easy one. He's lost a noticible amount of weight. He says that he hasn't slept well. He wasn't ready to give up a career he loved. Only 46 years old, Scott Maslowski has Parkinson's disease.

A progressive disorder, Parkinson's disease is characterized by uncontrollable tremors in the limbs, a shuffling gait, and generalized muscular rigidity. Most often, it strikes people over the age of 60.

The cause of the disease is unknown with no inherited, physiologic or environmental factors identified as causes. It is known, however, that Parkinson's disease is a reflection of a chemical imbalance in the brain. Those with the disease have been shown to have low levels of a neurotransmitter called dopamine. To date, no known cause for this chemical deficiency has been found.

Diagnostic evaluation involves a medical history, physical examination and observation of the symptoms. If tremors are the only symptom present, tests must be performed to rule out the possibility of other disorders such as multiple sclerosis, liver disease or overactivity of the thyroid gland.

Treatment of Parkinson's disease consists of correcting the dopamine deficiency. Since dopamine itself cannot be absorbed directly into the brain from the bloodstream, a substance called levodopa is prescribed to help the brain manufacture more of its own dopamine.



Young Scott Maslowski served as a military policeman while serving with the U.S. Army in Korea. It was there that Scott met his wife Sun and became interested in a career in law enforcement.

Levodopa has several undesirable side effects including nausea and an uneven "on-off" effect—causing the symptoms to disappear and then reappear. It also loses its effectiveness over time. Lepodova preparations are often given in combination with other drugs that decrease nerve-to-muscle transmission, allow the use of smaller amounts of levodopa and enhance the effects of dopamine.

Treatment programs for patients with Parkinson's disease often include physical therapy and exercise regimens. Also, emotional support and understanding are critical to a patient's well being. The tremors and slurred speech associated with Parkinson's disease can easily be mistaken for drunkedness by unknowing observers.

While Parkinson's disease is usually not fatal, it leads to changes in the entire body, making the patient more susceptible to other diseases. In a mild form, it can be present for 20 or 30 years, but in a severe form can lead to serious disability within five to ten years.

Scott was only 40 years old in 1991 when he was diagnosed with Parkinson's disease by a Fargo neurologist. For the disease to strike one so young is very rare. Scott's initial symptoms were tremors and a limp in his left leg.

Scott has managed his disease with the use of prescribed drug combinations. He also noted that routine, in eating and sleeping patterns, and a positive mental attitude have helped.

Scott's outlook for long-term disease management, however, is grim. As expected, the Levadopa is losing its effectiveness.

And as his symptoms have became more pronounced, Scott agonized over his job and his ability to perform as a police officer effectively. It took him six weeks to make the decision that led to his recent resignation and the premature end of his career.

Scott has been hired as a custodian at the new city offices, a position he will assume April 1 — a job he isn't sure he will be able to perform. Parkinson's disease — and its uncertainties — will dictate his future.

Last year, Congress passed the Morris K. Udall Parkinson's Research Act of 1997 earmarking $100 million yearly for reasearch and training pertaining to Parkinson's disease, an increase from the annual $34 million in federal support previously provided by the National Institute of Health for research. According to the winter 1998 edition of Satellite, a publication of the Struthers Parkinson's Center in Minneapolis, society spends $25 billion per year to provide care for the million Americans affected by this disease. Minnesota's Senator Paul Wellstone was one of four legislators instrumental in introducing and supporting this funding. Senator Wellstone's parents both suffer from Parkinson's disease.

The results of the research funded by that act, however, may come too late for Scott Maslowski. An experimental procedure currently being performed at the University of Minnesota offers Scott the most hope. Similar to a pacemaker, the pallidum stimulator is an implanted, battery-powered deep brain stimulator and was developed jointly by Medtronics, Inc. and University of Minnesota neurosurgeons.

In a relatively simple procedure that carries few risks, a local anesthetic is administered and the patient remains awake as a small hole is drilled in the skull. Guided by MRI and CT imaging, surgeons place electrodes in the pallidum, the small area deep in the brain that's involved in movement. A battery-powered generator is then implanted under the collarbone and connected to the electrodes by running a wire beneath the skin of the neck and scalp. Once in place the generator can be fine tuned to obtain the best results for each patient.

The University of Minnesota is one of only four medical centers with FDA approval to use the device for pallidum stimulation, and physicians plan to add about one new patient per month until they have enough data to apply for FDA approval for the procedure's general use. That could take several years, and even after the procedure has FDA approval, it will take insurance companies some time to formulate policies regarding coverage.

Only patients with advanced Parkinson's disease who no longer respond to medication are considered for the surgery. However, the disease can also become too advanced. Scott needs the surgery soon, before his condition reaches that advanced stage — and before the procedure has FDA approval and is covered by health insurance.

Minnesota's first Parkinson's patient to receive the pallidum stimulator was a 59-year-old retired state trooper from Chisholm.

Bob Zgonc had suffered from Parkinson's disease for 13 years when the medication's effectiveness diminished, and he and his wife began to search for other treatment options. A referral from a neurologist in Hibbing took him to the University of Minnesota.

At the time, University faculty members were testing a new procedure called a pallidotomy, a fine incision in the pallidum that interrupts electrical signals that cause aberrant movements. Zgonc had a pallidotomy on the right side of his brain. The procedure stopped movements on the left side of his body. However, his condition on his right side continued to deteriorate, and while a second pallidotomy on the left side of the brain was considered, it was not performed because it could have damaged cells that control speech.

It was then that the University offered Zgonc the option of being the first Minnesotan to try the pallidum stimulator having recognized that the device had the potential to achieve the same effects as a pallidotomy but without the risks of surgery.

With no guarantees that the stimulator would work, Zgonc was anxious to give it a try. The largest obstacle he faced was $20,000 cost of the procedure, but when his friends and neighbors in Chisholm learned of his plight, they rallied around him and organized a fund-raising effort. Zgonc had the surgery.

The change in Bob Zgonc's physical condition has been dramatic. With the stimulator off, his face is contorted, his body wracked with tremors, and he is scarcely able to walk. After turning the stimulator on by passing a magnet over it, he is a different person. His facial features are composed, his muscles relaxed and his gait is smooth and easy.

More than a year after the procedure was performed, Zgonc has suffered no side effects and is able to once again do the things he enjoys — hunting, fishing, refinishing antique furniture.

Scott, too, is anxious to give the pallidum stimulator a try. Like Zgonc, however, he finds the $20,000 cost of the procedure a major obstacle.

When I visited with Scott last week, his bright smile and infectious laugh were present even though he was noticeably thinner and the effects of Parkinson's disease more pronounced. He talked about the career he was about to leave and what lies ahead.

Scott was born and raised in Cloquet, and it wasn't until he was drafted into the army and served as a military policeman in Korea that he considered law enforcement as a career. He also met his wife, Sun, while stationed in Korea, proposing "long-distance" three months after he returned to the States and marrying her three months after that.

Scott began his law enforcement training in Alexandria in 1973, and after completing the course of study in 1975 was hired as a deputy sheriff in Marshall county. He worked as deputy for three years before becoming a police officer in Thief River Falls.

Scott considers Thief River Falls the right size community — large enough to keep a policeman busy and the job interesting, but small enough to allow him to get to know the people he served. He enjoyed helping people. No citizen's concern is too small or unimportant for him to address, whether or not it fits the job description.

Scott described working with the CounterAct program as the highlight of his career in 1990 and 1991. CounterAct preceded DARE, and was a classroom program that taught young people to deal with peer pressure and make healthy choices. "I enjoyed working with the kids," Scott said.

Often, it is usually the policemen who have reputations as being tough and "hard-nosed" who are more well-known in a community, a reputation Scott Maslowski never earned with his easy-going style.

He has been active in the community over the years, playing softball and bowling and involved in various clubs. Scott and Sun have also raised two children. LuAnn, who will be 23 next month, lives in Lincoln, NB and plans to be married Labor Day weekend. Shawn, 19, plans to continue his education at Bemidji this fall.

Sun enjoys her job cleaning at Arctic Cat every day from 3 p.m. until midnight. In his position as a custodian for the city, Scott will work from 1 until 9 p.m., hours that will coordinate better with those of his wife — if, that is, his Parkinson's disease allows him to do his new job.

Scott Maslowski's friends are never far away these days, aware of how difficult these past weeks have been for him, and they are sure to be around in the uncertain days ahead also.

They're encouraging Scott to pursue the pallidum stimulator — the surgery a chance for him to reclaim quality in his life. An account has been established at Northern State Bank to help fund the procedure. Various other fund-raising efforts are being considered.

Those close friends are hoping that the community will join them and rally around Scott Maslowski who, as a police officer for 19 years, has been everyone's friend.

Scott Maslowski described his time as a CounterAct instructor in 1990-91 as the highlight of his career. CounterAct was a youth program that preceded the current DARE program and taught children how to deal with peer pressure and make healthy choices. "I enjoyed working with the kids," Scott says.

Reflections

On Principles Of Truth

Sarah Reese
Our Saviour's Christian Academy

Encouragement

Encouragement is a very special thing. It is something that, when you receive it from someone, just sort of lifts you up and makes you feel better in some way. It is also something that you can give away. It takes a little courage to do, but once you do, you see that it is worth it to build someone else up, and make someone feel better about themselves. Think about it. When was the last time that you encouraged someone? It didn't have to be anything great that you said, maybe just a little word or even a note to let someone know that they are special, or that they were doing a good job, or to tell them that you simply appreciate them. You know, those kinds of things can only build up and encourage someone, and they'll seldom ever be regretted. We may go along and think that our words don't mean much, but to someone else they do, they mean a lot. And you could really make someone else's day brighter by just a few words spoken out of kindness. And it could be remembered their whole life long.

On the other hand you could really cause someone to be discouraged by your words. Just a few words spoken out of anger could cause damage that could last a lifetime, words that maybe weren't meant can really hurt someone. Maybe there has been someone in your life who has torn down what you are doing or who you are.

What a sharp contrast between encouraging someone and tearing someone down. I have experienced both, and I have to admit that I have done both. I have torn people done with thoughtless words, and I have encouraged people, all with the same mouth.

We all just need to slow down and think about what we are saying because the words that we speak are very important. Why not encourage someone, why not tell someone that they are special, and help build their self-worth, and tell someone you appreciate them, or tell them in a special way that they are doing a great job. Why not? Everyone needs encouragement, including you and me. It builds our self-esteem and boosts our confidence when someone speaks a few words to us unselfishly.

I encourage you today to encourage someone in your life. You could really make a difference in someone else's life just by the words that you speak. You could help people who are really hurting and maybe not feeling too good about themselves, your words could make such a difference. Even if the person you're encouraging isn't struggling with self-confidence, you could still place a smile on his face by just saying a few kind words. Who knows? You may really need some encouragement someday and someone will say just the words you need to hear, just because you encouraged someone else. "Whatsoever a man sows, that also shall he reap." (Galatians 6:7) Take some time and encourage someone today. Believe me, it's worth it.

In spite of a storm, many attended the 50th anniversary celebration of Plummer American Legion Auxiliary 623 on February 14 including guests John and Carol Columbus of Red Lake Falls and Rob and JoAnn Reeve of Thief River Falls. The men of the post served dinner.

Following a welcome by Legion Commander John Helley, the program was turned over to Auxiliary President Ruth Wilkens. Ruth noted that on November 17, 1947 20 women met in the Plummer Municipal Hall to organize an American Legion Auxiliary. The charter was dated January 29, 1948. Mrs. Walter (Idella) Peterson was the first auxiliary president, and Mrs. Kenneth Haaven was the first secretary. The dues were $2, and meetings were set for the second Thursday of each month.

Each year the auxiliary donated 12 pairs of hand-worked pillowcases to the gift shop. Needy children and shut-ins were all remembered at Christmastime. A citizenship award was presented to an outstanding graduating girl, and later a scholarship was also awarded. Each year a girl was sent to Girl's State. The unit sponsored an annual Poppy Poster Contest for fifth grade students. The auxiliary joined the Legion in conducting Memorial Day services each year. Gold Star mothers or sisters were honored, and all veterans were remembered with the placing of flags and poppies on their gravesites.

Three of the original 34 charter members are still members of the unit. They are Amelia Eskell, Bunny DuChamp and Jean Matt, all of Plummer.

While many of the original activities still take place, there have been a number of changes over the years. A March birthday supper is held for all Legion members. The Auxiliary takes part in the Veteran's Day program held at the school gymnasium. The Auxiliary prepares and distributes candy bags donated by the Community Club to all school children at Christmastime. A Teachers' Tea is held and apples are provided for teachers and school employees during American Education Week. Currently, the auxiliary is helping the Senior Citizens group purchase Minnesota flags for the school.

The Auxiliary ended 1997 serving Christmas parties and is off to a good start in 1998, helping the Legion with a pancake breakfast on the first Sunday of each month, helping with bar bingo on Friday evenings and serving hamburgers on the fourth Saturday of each month.

Following her commentary, President Wilkens presented a long-stemmed red rose to each of the three charter members. Short talks were given by the guests, and Chaplain Fern Eskell closed the program with a prayer.

The auxiliary is appreciative to all who came to celebrate this special milestone with them.

The Size of Thighs

As always happens in March, I get the itch to go hiking. This March proved no exception. Last Wednesday I woke up, saw the sun and my legs demanded I take action! So strong was the urge to go that later, while refereeing the boys at breakfast, I could almost feel the blood pulsing through my thighs, pushing me away from the table, pulling me out the door. "Get Up! Get Out!" my blood cried. "Take those thighs on a ride!"

"Wow, I sure feel like a bike ride!" I exclaimed, well within earshot of the boys.

"Yes! Yes! Yes!" cried three-and-a-half year old Toby, dumping his cereal bowl on the floor. "Let's go on a bike ride! Let's go!"

Morgan, not knowing what Toby was so excited about, but certain it must be good, stood straight up in his high chair and threw his two cents in.

"Yea! Yea! Yea!" he cheered, cereal spoon flailing in the air.

I thought ruefully about what I had just done, how I must now disappoint my sons, because I lacked the equipment to take them on a bicycle ride together, and disappoint my thighs — which I fully expected to retaliate by forcing new cellulite deposits where I needed no more.

I wasn't sure which was worse.

"Boys, boys!" I soothed. "I'd like to go on a bike ride, too, but the bike's not ready yet, and, besides, I don't know how I'd be able to take you both. The bike trailer is only big enough for one."

Toby looked up at me sincerely. "That's okay, Mom. We can leave Morgan behind. He won't mind."

"Toby!" I cautioned, shaking my head in disbelief. "You know, too, your brother would mind!"

"I know," he agreed.

"You knew," I agreed, as well. I sighed and looked out the kitchen window.

I guess it was then that my thighs understood they had been given a definitive no, as I felt a sudden urge to eat a large sweet roll.

I denied to myself this was happening, of course, but there it was.

I needed a sweet roll.

And I ate one.

Not getting the message, my one-and-a-half year old climbed out of his chair and headed for the door. "Outside! Outside!" he cried.

I looked down at my nightgown and bare feet, and then at the still full cup of coffee on the table and began silently cursing my thighs. "Now, look what you've done!" I hissed. "How could you do this to me? You know full well it's only March! Jeez! Waking up and insisting on such a ridiculous idea!

"What if there was snow on the ground?" I argued. "Would you still expect me to drop everything and go bike riding down the road?

"What if it was twenty below?

"Right! Uh huh! You wouldn't be so anxious then to slip into tennis shoes and risk frost bite to your toes!"

Tossing my coffee into the sink and stooping over to clean the boys' faces and fingers, I couldn't believe my bad luck. It was only seven-thirty in the morning! I wasn't dressed! I hadn't had even my first cup of coffee, and I was about to step out into that cold, March world with two enthusiastic kids, a pair of mutinous thighs and nowhere to go.

"Look what you've done!" I cried miserably to my thighs. "You've ruined my life!"

I grabbed another sweet roll.

And hoped it wouldn't show.

ACTIVITIES

Hats, Hats, Hats

Tin-Pan Hats

Disposable aluminum pie tins are great for making shiny hats. Have your children turn the tins upside down and glue on cotton balls, doilies, paper scraps, ribbons, tinsel, etc.

Cone Hats

Fold an 8 1/2 by 11 inch piece of colored paper into a cone shape. Tape the ends together to secure them. Tape the corners of the paper to reinforce them, then use a hole punch to make a hole in each corner. Tie a 14-inch piece of yarn through each corner. Let your child decorate the hat as he/she wishes. [Variation: Provide materials to make thematic hats. Possibilities include a magician's hat (gummed stars on black, blue or purple paper), a princess' hat (pastel paper with a long crepe paper streamer stapled on top), or a clown hat (circle stickers on bright paper).]

SCAVENGER HUNT

For next week's Activities feature, you will need cardboard tube, cardboard, Con-Tact paper, scissors, tape, rice and straight pins.

BOOK OF THE WEEK

The Thief River Falls public library invites you to browse through its new selection of children's books including the following:

Geddes, Anne. ABC. Learn the alphabet in a most delightful way through colorful, childlike illustrations that only Anne Geddes could conjure up.

Bourgeois, Paulette. Franklin's New Friend. When a moose family moves next door, Franklin is very skeptical of making a new friend. Despite the size differences, moose and turtle become good buddies and share lots of cookies together.

VIDEO VARIETY

Tom and Huck. An outrageous adventure is in the making when Tom and his rebellious friend, Huck, witness a midnight killing and swear not to reveal what they saw.

MAGAZINE MENTION

They're big and hairy and not too scary! Take a good look at the not-so-terrifying tarantulas in the March issue of Ranger Rick.

WONDERS OF THE WEB

"Flags of the World." A simple sight with color images of flags from most of the world's countries, created by Jim Croft of Australia. http://155.187.10.12/flags/nation-flags.html

Remember that the Thief River Falls public library has preschool storytimes every Wednesday at 9:30 a.m. These are co-sponsored by the Thief River Falls ECFE and Learning Readiness. PARENTING TIPS

Loving Without Smothering

It can be hard to be a parent. Sometimes all the advice from "experts" can make you worry that you're not doing enough. This guilt can make you over-protective of your child. Try to be alert to how your behavior affects your child without becoming anxious about it.

If you make mistakes, try to learn from them and then let go. The wonderful thing about young children is that you get a new chance with each moment. They don't hold resentments.

Give your child a chance to be her own person. Don't do things for her that she can do for herself. Don't protect her from the natural consequences of her own mistakes. Expect her to take responsibility for herself whenever possible.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

If you feel your child is able to hang her coat on a hook (for example) then tell her so. In a matter-of-fact voice, say, "I expect you to hang your coat on the hook when you take it off." And then let her do it. You may have to repeat your statement.

ON THE OTHER HAND

Dan Carpenter, Lincoln High School

I have seen high school students take part in a lot of different activities. Some of them have been really good, and, of course, some of them were bad. Rather than gripe and complain about the antisocial (and sometimes illegal) things that students take part in, I would like to highlight the good things that teenagers are capable of- to be more specific, the capacity of our students to give to the needy.

On Tuesday; March 17th, there was a blood drive at the high school. This was an opportunity for Lincoln students and faculty, 17 years and older to donate a pint of blood. Of course, the students had different reasons to give: to obtain community service for various organizations, to get out of a couple hours of class, or to give just for the sake of giving.

This was the second year that I participated in the blood drive. Although I feel really good about giving, there are a few "bad" side effects in giving blood.

The most immediate effect I noticed was the extremely uncomfortable feeling that the needle gave me. It was like a behemoth mosquito wedging itself into my arm for fifteen minutes. The needle was about an eighth of an inch in diameter. This was all right, but the nurse kept poking the thing around in my vein.

This year the nurses took special care of me. This was because last year I nearly went unconscious from the rapid blood loss; and to make matters worse, I had the medical careers class observing me. One of the students astutely pointed out that all the color had drained from my face. I called for the nurse to come and help me. I was so dazed I felt like I was at the bottom of a two-hundred-foot well. I could barely understand anything that she said to me. Had they kept drawing my blood, I'm sure I would have passed out completely.

Another bad part about the whole process is the embarrassing questions that are osked. They asked such questions as whether I had had intimate relations with men or women from third world countries since 1977. Although I can understand why they ask these questions, I still feel they are pointless to ask of me. I myself have never even met someone from a third world country, and, although I'm not homophobic, I find it funny ond a little weird that someone would ask if I had had relations with a man.

They were able to take my blood this year without my fainting, but I suffered from a general weakness ofterward. In my Literary Arts class during sixth hour I was so woozy, I had to lie down on the floor. I fell fast asleep while I was trying to do some writing. I was groggy for the rest of the day. It was like my brain decided to take a trip to Saturn and forgot to invite the rest of my body. I couldn't focus properly, and my head was constantly swimming.

The next day at work I nearly collopsed from exhaustion after lifting 40-pound sacks of flour. I found out that the weakness can last for longer that 24 hours.

All in all, I still feel great about helping out by donating blood on Tuesday. It was worth it to help out, and I highly recommend it for everyone to do. Although there are a few side effects, the great feeling that comes from giving outweighs the bad side of the whole thing. Lincoln's students and faculty donated o totol of 55 units of blood (that's olmost seven gallons). Good job, Lincoln!

James Solsten, includes Alex Primakov on piano, Sally Erickson on keyboard, Amy James on flue, Jan Klopp on bassoon, Cody Hempel on guitar, and three percussionists — Jeff Buzzell, Jayne Buzzell, and Mike Lehrer. Collin Browning will perform on bass.

Organizers of the event say the cast and orchestro have had a wonderful time working on the production. One cast member was quoted as saying she never gets tired of the music.

Rob Burkel, director, ogrees saying, "This is the only show I've done where the cast has liked all the music. Normally, you have one or two songs that actors dislike; but here they just ask to sing it all the more."

The songs are all written by Marty Haugen, a native Minnesotan who has made a career of writing music for the Catholic Church. His Mass of Creation is the most commonly used mass in American parishes. Haugen's music is moving, tuneful, and should be a joy for all to hear.

"The Song of Mark" is a great source of reflection for Lent and an exciting way to prepare for Easter.

Please plan to attend on March 27, 28 or 29. Tickets are on sale at Budget in Thief River Falls and at the door the night of the performances.

SPEAKING OF . . .

Sherry LaCoursiere

...School Uniforms - Yes!

There's been a lot of discussion about school uniforms since New York decided that their school children will be wearing them come 1999. I like the idea. Of course I can safely say that, since I don't have any children in the school system any more and they can't all yell at me for saying it.

But really, uniforms would be cute. Wouldn't you just love to see a bunch of neat, navy blue and white-clad young people coming out of the schools in the afternoon? (Dare I say, as opposed to what we see now.)

What, you say they would all look the same? You say there would be no individuality? I say, is there individuality now? I don't think so. For years I've had trouble telling which child was my own when I met him or her on the street because they looked so much like every other kid in town. In fact, I'm known as a rather jovial old lady, because I wave a lot at every young person I see – they just don't realize I am only thinking they are one of my own.

What, you say uniforms would cost a lot of money? I say, "Hogwash." I remember saving all year for Before-School Shopping, and that was quite a few years ago. I can't even imagine what it must cost for today's parents to outfit a school child (or, worse yet, children) at the prices nowadays.

Uniforms would eliminate much of the expense of clothing kids. I mean, how many different outfits does a kid need when they are all the same? Only as many as can last from one wash day to the next. They could get jobs to buy the fancy, dandy, out-of-school, going-out-on-a-date duds that they want, so Mom and Dad would have only the expense of the uniforms and some everyday clothes, which could be picked up at rummage sales. Once the uniform program was in place, there could be a uniform trade every so often so nobody would have to wear a uniform that was too small.

There were dress guidelines in the schools back when my older children were there. Some of the guidelines were that girls must wear skirts and not any type of pants at all and boys could not wear blue jeans, but colored jeans were all right, although dress pants were better. Even though tissues had actually been invented, both sexes were to carry handkerchiefs (suitably inscribed with their names, lest they lose them [something I am sure that they wanted to do anyway])

My kids were in a private elementary school and there was once a movement to have the children wear uniforms. After much discussion (parents in favor, kids not), it was decided not to require uniforms, but that all children must dress neatly and nicely.

Then, as more of my children went through school, something happened. First of all, the neatly and nicely went out the door and sloppy came in. Then came the wonderful fashion of women wearing pants suits and all of the girls were allowed to wear pants. Soon the boys were wearing blue jeans, then T-shirts, then both sexes were wearing T-shirts with sayings on them, some of which were not too nice. No one carried a handkerchief, either.

Now, not only is any type of clothing acceptable in school, but I've noticed that any size seems to be all right too. Some youngsters appear to think "bigger is better." For example, I bought my grandson a shirt for Christmas (he's 12, and a long and tall 12, but not burly by any means), and his mother said he wanted a large size. "Large?" I asked. Yup, large, men's size. That's what he got, too. Far be it for me to change his styles in mid-stream. Then again, some of the little teeny bopper girls appear to think that "smaller is better" and appear in public in skirts and tops that look like they belong to their little sisters.

Frankly, I'm glad I don't have to contend with today's fashions. One advantage to getting old is that nobody really cares what one wears, or even notices what the old lady is wearing, for that matter. There is no peer pressure at all when one is old and it is a good thing, too.

As to the matter of school uniforms, I still like the idea. However, I wish to remind you that there is a wonderful place in this newspaper called, "Letters to the Editor," and I would invite opinions on this subject. If you think I am an old prune, write a letter to the editor. If you agree with me, write that, too. I would really like to hear what kids think about this uniform idea, and parents, too. Write, FAX, e-mail your feelings about school uniforms.

Peer mediation program tried in School Dist. 564

Peer mediation, a systematic approach involving trained fellow students as facilitators to resolve conflicts which might arise between two students, is being attempted this school year in School District 564.

"Everyone has problems getting along with others in school at one time or another," notes Franklin middle school counselor Bob Stenson. "It could be a misunderstanding between friends, teammates, classmates or the kid who has that locker next to yours."

On February 19 and 20, four students each from Challenger elementary school fifth grade and Lincoln high school ninth grade and 12 students from Franklin middle school (four each from grades six, seven and eight) were guided through a two-day workshop on peer mediation by Rob Kesselring, a trainer from Apple Valley.

Kesselring was assisted by school counselors Lori Beck of Challenger, Val Bakken and Bob Stenson of Franklin and Terri Staples of Lincoln.

Peer mediation has few rules, but they are important, Stenson said. Both sides must agree to work to solve the conflict. Each person in the dispute must listen and not interrupt, and no name-calling or threats to the other person are allowed.

Each person in a dispute being mediated must honestly present his or her side of the story. The entire mediation situation must be held confidential by all people in the room, with only a very few limited exceptions.

Students come to peer mediation as a personal choice and any agreements must be honored by both sides. The mediators are trained to determine that, if they believe one or both persons are not willing to come to an agreeable conclusion, the process will stop and some other course of action will be considered.

Mediators do not take sides, punish, advise, judge or spread rumors. They simply lead the mediation, keeping each side respectful of the other during the process, and work toward a mutually agreed upon resolution to the interpersonal conflict.

"Our peer mediators trained in this process were selected by teachers and school counselors for their ability to listen, objectivity and reasoning skills, among other qualities," Stenson adds.

Selected for and participating in the training were:

Grade 7—Nathan Browning, Brittany Haviland, Frannie Mann and Anthony Wold;

Grade 8—Matt Dimich, Molly Hanson, Nick Mattila and Karie Zblewski; and Grade 9—Karen Christensen, Brian Loe, Taryn Pream and Dewey Worker.

Under the program, mediations are arranged by going through the counselors' offices or each building's administration. Disputes can be referred by third parties or by one of the two parties involved.

"For most students, it will be a service that won't be used much, if at all," Stenson said. "But for those students who do have conflicts with others, it could be the right thing and often the best thing to do."

Bill Fogerty Jr., son of Bill and Katie Fogerty of Thief River Falls and a 1996 graduate of Lincoln high school, recently completed U.S. Army Airborne school at Ft. Benning, GA. A sophomore ROTC student at St. John's University in Collegeville, he spent his three-week January term qualifying as a paratrooper. He is a member of the St. John's ROTC Ranger Challenge Team which took first place among colleges in a three-state region in competitions of physical and military skills this past fall at South Dakota State University. He also competes on the university's varsity track and field team as a pole vaulter.

Final EIS on Tallgrass habitat area released

United States Fish and Wildlife Services has released a Final Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) evaluating the establishment of a Northern Tallgrass Prairie Habitat Preservation Area in western and northwestern Iowa. The goal of the project is to permanently preserve remnant tracts of northern tallgrass prairie in Minnesota and Iowa through the voluntary cooperation of landowners, conservation groups, and local governmental entities.

America's native grasslands are a vanishing ecosystem, and mounting evidence indicates many species are disappearing as fast as the prairie habitat on which they depend. Few other ecosystem types have experienced such a large degree of loss and alteration. In Minnesota and Iowa, the native northern tallgrass prairie has declined to less than one percent of its original 25 million acres.

Through an integrated ecosystem approach, the Service, with its partners, proposes to protect fish and wildlife habitats by using a wide variety of tools and techniques. The Service proposes to participate in public and private partnerships at many levels, complementing other existing prairie projects such as those of the Iowa County Conservation Board, the Iowa and Minnesota Departments of Natural Resources and the Nature Conservancy.

Three alternatives, including a "No Action" alternative are included in the EIS. The action alternatives are aimed at permanently protecting and enhancing prairie remnants. Alternative "B", the Services preferred alternative, would permanently protect and enhance prairie remnants through partnerships, incentives, education, and cooperative agreements. Service acquisition of easements and fee interest in lands would only be pursued on a voluntary basis from willing sellers. Any conservation easements, or acquisition of full title would be done by the Service and Service Partners.

A decision on which alternative listed in the EIS to adopt will be made after a 30-day waiting period. For more information, contact Jane West, Project Manager, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, BHW Federal Building, 1 Federal Drive, Fort Snelling, MN 55111.

Equity Network workshop at NCTC Thursday, April 2

West Central Equity Network will present its third annual workshop on equity, excellence and education Thursday, April 2, at Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls.

Dr. Cathy Nelson and Dr. James Knight will present the workshop for area educators, professional staff, board members, child care providers, service providers, parents and community members interested in the areas of equity, excellence and education.

Registration fee is $50 and includes lunch. Registration and check-in begin at 8:30 a.m. and the session is scheduled to be completed by 3 p.m.

"The educational reform movement in America has had a profound effect upon how we approach teaching effectiveness, achievement, discipline, diversity, equity and 'at risk' individuals," states Northland's Shawn MacDonald.

"Drs. Knight and Nelson will have workshop participants interacting on topics of excellence in the classroom and beyond, on equity issues and how they relate to a lifelong commitment of responsibility and on creating environments for positive learning experiences," MacDonald added.

"The workshop will include information that is practical and useful with specific methods and strategies for dealing with student and client issues. Participants will learn how the current changes in family structure and ethnic demographics necessitate greater sensitivity in schools and the workplace."

Dr. James Knight is an adjunct professor at the University of Arizona. As a classroom teacher and professor he received numerous awards and recognition for his teaching skills, including the Alumni Distinguished Teaching Award at Ohio State University in 1987—one of eight recipients among 3,500 faculty members.

Dr. Cathy Nelson taught secondary social studies in Minnesota public schools for 16 years and is currently the diversity coordinator for the Fridley public school district. She is executive director of the Minnesota Inclusiveness Program, co-directs the Minnesota Seeking Education Equity and Diversity (SEED) project, and was project director on the K-12 curriculum projects "Promoting Excellence through Equity" and "Navigating the Quincentennial."

Dr. Nelson is the 1990 Minnesota Teacher of the Year and one of eight recipients of the Minnesota Chamber of Commerce "Teachers of Excellence" award.

The workshop is sponsored by the West Central Equity Network, representing secondary schools and colleges from Little Falls to Thief River Falls and Brainerd to East Grand Forks.

Pre-registration is requested and can be accomplished by calling Geri Pohlkamp at Central Lakes College in Brainerd (1-800-933-0346) or Shawn MacDonald at Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls (681-0779 or 1-800-959-6282).

1997-98 Northland men's basketball...

NCTC awards are announced

Most valuable player honors went to Chaka Ali, a freshman forward from Minneapolis, as the Northland Community and Technical College men's basketball team handed out post-season awards recently.

Melvin Whitney Jr., a sophomore forward from Chicago, IL, was named recipient of the Hustle Award and Josh Whitlock, a sophomore guard from Lancaster, was named the Pioneers' Most Admired Player.

It was a tough year from the won-loss standpoint for Northland and first-year head coach Ted Krize. The Pioneers went just 1-20 and lost their final 19 games.

The losses got old, admitted Krize. "Any coach will tell you that they want to have more wins than losses," he said. "I knew it was going to be a rocky situation with a new coach and a new system."

And with the new coach being hired well after the prime recruiting season, the Pioneers' faced an uphill battle from the start.

"We didn't have a whole lot coming back as far as kids who had played very much the year before," noted Krize. "We were pretty much starting from ground zero."

Once the team took the court, the Pioneers' biggest obstacle was their lack of height. At 6-4, Ali and sophomore reserve Jeremy Larson were the tallest players on the roster.

"The lack of size was a huge disadvantage," confirmed Krize. "Teams with big post players, even if they weren't that good, wore us down with their physical play."

But the Pioneers didn't back down, pointed out Krize. "I give the kids a lot of credit," he said. "They didn't quit–They could have easily folded with 8-10 games left, but they didn't. They played hard. It was a good group of kids. They hustled. They played with a lot of heart."

Whitney, Whitlock, Larson, Nic Thompson of Warroad, and Garrett Borowicz of Stephen, completed their sophomore eligibility this winter. "I was really happy with the collective efforts of our sophomores," offered Krize. "They gave it their all."

Ali will be the top returning player next season after averaging 19.5 points per game in his first season in the Minnesota Community College Conference.

"Chaka is respected in the league," noted Krize. "He had a great year."

Dwight Goodwin (Milwaukee) has another year of eligibility, and Krize is looking for a solid contribution from Ryan Teiken (Fordville, ND) as a sophomore in 1998-99. He's also high on Roy Smiley, a point guard who transferred from the the University of Nebraska. He practiced with the team throughout the year and will be eligible next season.

"One win was better than none," said Krize in assessing the recently-completed campaign. "We had a chance to win a couple more games that got away from us."

It was a season that included four-point losses to Minnesota West and MSU-Bottineau and a three-point defeat at the hands of Hibbing. But it was also a season that included a 105-58 loss to Vermilion and a 137-71 season-ending defeat at the hands of eventual unbeaten national champion Fergus Falls.

Individual honors at the Thief River Falls girls high school basketball banquet Thursday went to, front from left, Nicole Kopari, named most valuable and recognized for leading the Prowlers in points, rebounds, steals, assists, and free throws; and Laura Follett, selected as the team's most improved player; back from left, Amber Klinker, who received a captain's plaque; and Becky Mooney, who was presented with a captain's plaque and was voted the Prowlers' hardest worker and best defensive player. Kopari's efforts this winter also found her joining the 1,000-Point Club and setting school career records in assists and blocked shots.

Kopari top TRF award winner

Nicole Kopari was named the most valuable player on the 1997-98 Thief River Falls girls high school basketball team, it was announced Thursday at the Prowlers' annual post-season banquet.

That was one of an arm-full of awards for the junior who also received plaques for leading the team in scoring, assists, steals, rebounds and free throw shooting.

It was also noted at the banquet that Kopari joined the 1,000-Point Club this winter, ranking No. 2 on the Prowlers' career scoring list behind Jodi Krota with 1,251 points; and has established school career records with 408 assists and 146 blocked shots.

Senior Becky Mooney was selected the Prowlers' best defensive player and the hardest worker, while junior Laura Follett was voted the most improved player.

Plaques were presented to Mooney and fellow senior Amber Klinker as the Prowlers' 1997-98 captains.

Athletic letters went to seniors Beth Olson, Stephanie Leach, Mooney and Klinker; juniors Taya Hunt, Katie Harbott, Kopari, and Follett; sophomores Kara Skiple, Rachel Mathson and Erika Hudson; freshman Sara Jensen; and student managers Valerie Bushier, Angie Hanson, Angie Johnson, Bryanna Helgeland, and Kyle Williams.

The Prowlers finished the year 6-17. They recovered from a 1-5 start to stand 6-10 at the end of January, but lost their final seven games, including a 59-32 opening round North Sub-Section 8AAA tournament decision to Alexandria.

A string of close early-season losses haunted the Prowlers throughout the 1997-98 season, pointed out Thief River Falls head coach Jeff Loe. First four setbacks included a two-point loss to Little Falls, a three-point defeat at the hands of Crookston, a four-point decision to Warren-Alvarado-Oslo, and a five-point contest with Detroit Lakes. Later in the year the Prowlers would fall to Fertile-Beltrami by a single point and Bemidji by three, meaning six of their 17 losses came by a margin of five points or less.

"It was a frustrating season due to the fact that we lost a lot of close games, especially early in the season," said Loe.

Thief River Falls' struggles stemmed mostly from shortcomings on offense, pointed out Loe. "Our shooting just wasn't very good," he said. "We didn't shoot very well and we didn't score much."

Kopari drew special defensive attention from most opponents, and the Prowlers' success depended upon the rest of the team turning opportunities into points. "A lot of teams focused on Nicole," said Loe. "It was better toward the end of the season, but early in the year we had kids who didn't even look to shoot. We didn't have the girls who were confident enough to take the shots."

Kopari, too, might have fallen short of preseason expectations, admitted Loe. "There was a lot of pressure on Nicole," he noted. "Part of the problem is that we've never been able to leave her in one spot. We've moved her from point to wing to post. We'd like to leave her at the wing, where she can face the basket and use her passing ability."

While the offense struggled, the defense was more often than not top-notch. "Defensively, we played well in most games," pointed out Loe. "There were only two games we didn't hold teams down."

Despite the sub-.500 finish, Loe enjoyed the recently-completed season. "It was a real fun group of kids to work with," he offered. "They are a class act, good athletes and good students."

The seniors will be missed, said Loe, noting Mooney's tireless efforts on defense; Klinker's work ethic; the physical play of Leach on the inside; and the contributions off the bench by Olson.

In Kopari, Follett and Harbott the Prowlers have three returning starters. Hunt and Mathson were top substitutes, and Jensen has the size that could make her a key player in the middle over the next three years.

"There are some expectations for this bunch next year," said Loe, "but the kids have to put the time into basketball in the off-season."

Track team opens season at Bemidji

Performances by Rachel Mathson and Nicole Kopari highlighted Thief River Falls efforts Saturday as the Prowlers opened their 1998 high school track schedule at the Paul Bunyan Indoor Invitational at Bemidji State University.

The large meet drew 21 schools, with the Grand Forks Red River boys and the Fargo South girls winning team titles.

Mathson, a sophomore, was a double-event winner with a 27.35 in the 200 and an impressive 62.46 for an easy victory in the 400.

"Those were outstanding runs – especially the 400," pointed out Thief River Falls coach Tim Olson. "That's a great time for indoors."

Kopari, a junior, placed second in the shot put with a Lincoln High School record toss of 40-2.

"What a way to start the season – with a school record," noted Olson.

Those were the only place finishes for the Thief River Falls girls. The Prowlers failed to pick up a point in the boys' portion of the meet.

"It was a good starting point," noted Olson. "We have a lot of young kids, and with the number of teams, and the kind of teams that were there, it was an eye-opening experience for them."

Thief River Falls' brief 1998 indoor schedule will be completed Thursday with an appearance at the Moorhead Invitational beginning at 6:30 p.m. at Concordia College.

John Belyea steps down as coach of wrestling program

Resignation of Thief River Falls head high school wrestling coach John Belyea was accepted Monday at the regular meeting of the School District 564 board.

A former University of North Dakota wrestler who commuted daily between his home in Grand Forks and Thief River Falls during the season, Belyea coached the Prowlers the past three years.

The Prowlers, fielding a young team with a number of open weights, struggled through an 0-18 dual meet record this winter. They were 3-11 last year and 4-10-1 in 1995-96 when Belyea succeeded John Anderson.

Thief River Falls wrestling has an active youth program sponsored by the Takedown Club, but it's a patience-wearing process waiting for those youngsters to develop into varsity-caliber competitors.

Lorenson named RLCC MVP

Mark Lorenson, a 6-2 junior, was named the most valuable player on the 1997-98 Red Lake County Central boys high school basketball team, it was announced recently.

Other post-season awards went to 6-2 junior Nick Waldal, who received the Mustang Defense Award, and 5-10 junior Jarrod Johnson, selected as the team's most improved player.

All-Polar Conference honors went to Lorenson and Waldal, with 5-9 senior David Fox being named as an Honorable Mention pick.

Lorenson averaged 15.2 points per game this winter as he hiked his career total to 1,005 – joining the 1,000-Point Club in the Mustangs' final game, a 67-57 Sub-Section 30A semifinal loss to Win-E-Mac. Waldal carried an 11.7 scoring average.

The Mustangs went 8-16 this winter under first-year head coach Chris McLean. They were 6-19 the year before under Ryan Sedler and 18-7 in 1995-96 with Brad Borene.

"We didn't win as many games as we thought we would," acknowledged McLean. "But I was real pleased with our effort night in and night out. The kids worked hard. It's tough on them to play for three difference coaches in three years."

After a 3-11 start, the Mustangs came up with a brief four-game win streak before losing their final four regular season starts. They beat Fisher/Climax 39-34 in the Sub-Section 30A tournament opener, then lost to eventual title winner Win-E-Mac in Round 2.

"There were two things that really hurt us this year," explained McLean. "We had too many turnovers, and we didn't shoot very well at the free throw line. During our winning streak, we didn't turn it over so much, and we hit our free throws."

With only one senior in the starting line-up, the Mustangs expect to be competitive 1998-99. "We're excited about next year," noted McLean. "The key is that the kids have to commit themselves to basketball. They have to make themselves better basketball players in the off-season."

DNR Award

Senator Steven Morse's reputation as one of Minnesota's most effective environmental lawmakers is well-deserved, according to Department of Natural Resources Commissioner Rod Sando, who made that point when he explained why Morse had been chosen to receive the DNR's Meritorious Service Award.

In the recent remarks, Sando cited many of Morse's achievements, including the authoring of the wetlands protection and groundwater protection acts, and chairing the Legislative Water Commission and the Legislative Commission of Minnesota Resources. He also noted Morse's record of advocating an array of important conservation measures, including support for the Environment Trust Fund, Youth Conservation Corps, and state parks and trails improvements.

"We are very fortunate to have someone with Sen. Morse's insight and creativity overseeing the complex budgets and programs affecting our natural resources," said Sando.

Rydell Refuge will sponsor Duck Habitat Day March 28

Spotting the brightly colored male wood ducks returning in March and April is one of the annual rites and joys of spring – as is preparing nest boxes for them to use for raising their young. If you would like to help provide more homes for these returning beauties you are invited to come to the Rydell National Wildlife Refuge Saturday, March 28, any time from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. to learn more about wood ducks and build a wood duck box that you can take home and put up to help ducks in your area.

To promote use of wood duck boxes, these houses are being provided at no cost to the public as long as the recipient agrees to put it up in a suitable location and do basic maintenance, such as annual cleaning, over the years. This is a fun activity for the whole family to get involved – from making the house, putting it up, watching it get used, and cleaning it out for ongoing use.

Lumber for the wood duck boxes is cut up and ready to be assembled. Volunteers will be on hand to help anyone make a house. A video and short program will be repeated throughout the day to provide information about wood ducks and offer tips on placement and maintenance of your wood duck house. An information packet will also be provided. Door prize drawings will be held and refreshments will be served during the day.

Many conservation and sportsmen's clubs and private landowners have put up wood duck boxes in northwest Minnesota over the years with good success. The Minnesota Department of Natural Resources and the United States Fish and Wildlife Service annually maintain a large number of wood duck boxes on public lands in the area.

Groups from Crookston, Red Lake Falls, Fertile, Twin Valley, Fosston, Mentor, and Erskine are working together in promotion of Duck Habitat Day at the refuge.

With iridescent blue, green and purple highlights, trimmed with white stripes and bright red eyes, the brightly colored male wood duck is easy to identify. This beauty of the bird world was nearly extinct around the turn of the century. In fact, population levels were so low due to habitat loss and heavy market hunting that all hunting of wood ducks was closed nationwide in 1918. Wood duck populations have come back strong over the years as habitat is preserved, hunting is managed and nesting boxes are constructed and readily used.

To reach Rydell Refuge, go 3 miles east of Mentor or 3 miles west of Erskine on U.S. Highway 2, and turn south on Polk County 210. Follow 210 about 2.5 miles south to the large entrance sign and main gate of the refuge. If arriving from the south, turn north off Polk County 41 onto Polk County 210 and go about 3.5 miles north and turn left at the refuge sign.

"He doesn't always agree with us, and we know that when we do disagree we are up against a formidable opponent."

"But the reason Sen. Morse is receiving the DNR's highway award is not because he controls the money for our work," Sando said. "He earned this award because he is that rare policy maker who can see beyond the four-year election cycle and understand the long-term implications of today's policy and funding decisions. This is reflected in the breadth of his work on a number of issues that have statewide and even international implications."

Morse lives in Dakota in the southeastern corner of the state. He grew up there on a family apple orchard, which he later operated. Hunting and fishing on the nearby Mississippi River have been among his important pastimes.

Consumption under age incidents in LEC reports

Law enforcement officials responded to several reports of loud parties last week. As a result, several underage minors were cited for consumption under age.

Consumption under age. On March 22 at 2:18 p.m. an officer observed several youngsters under the Eighth Street bridge. Upon investigation, Quin David Trenbert, 19, Thief River Falls, was cited for consumption under age.

On March 22 at 2:25 a.m. a police officer on patrol observed a vehicle on Gulf Street. Upon investigation, the officer discovered that three trees had been run over, but the vehicle had left the scene. At 7:47 a.m. police received a report that a mailbox had been damaged in the 800 Block of Alice Drive. Damage to the mailbox matched the vehicle observed earlier. The vehicle was later found and in plain view were some bottles of alcohol and a no parking handicapped parking sign. Samuel Edward Rustan, Oklee, 18, was charged with consumption under age, two counts of criminal damage to property, and possession of stolen property.

On March 21 at 3:11 a.m. police received a loud party complaint. Upon arrival a number of individuals fled the scene. The following were cited for consumption under age: Ryan Alrick Olson, 18, Thief River Falls; Jeremy Ray Johnson, 19, Middle River; Ryan Kelly Merschman, 19, Thief River Falls; and Wesley Garett Maki, 19, Thief River Falls.

Pennington County Sheriff's deputies also responding to the report cited the following who fled the scene for consumption under age: Heidi Marie Smith, 19, Grand Rapids; and Michael David Linegard, 20, Thief River Falls.

On March 20 at 11:38 p.m. police on patrol observed an individual swinging from a traffic signal at Third and LaBree. Jacob Ronald Maynard, 18, Red Lake Falls, was cited for consumption under age, and disorderly conduct after struggling with officers.

Drugs. On March 20 at 3:10 p.m. police and ambulance responded to a report of a person down at Lincoln High School. The individual had apparently overdosed on drugs. A pipe was found in his possession. The 17-year-old male was charged with possession of drug paraphernalia. The individual was hospitalized.

Hit and run. On March 20 at 9:16 a.m. police received a report that a portable sign at Third and Davis had been struck by a vehicle that had driven over the curb. Damage to the sign was estimated at $400.

Accidents. On March 21 at 6:36 a.m. the sheriff's department received a report of an accident five miles west of Highway 32 on State Aid 3. Kelly Ryan Larson, Grand Forks, was driving a truck east on State Aid 3 when it struck a deer. The vehicle rolled after the driver attempted to avoid the collision. Larson had a cut to his forehead. The sheriff's department estimated damage to the vehicle at $3,000.

On March 21 at 4:43 p.m. police received a report of an accident at Highway 59 and the service road in front of Kmart. Nathan Patrick Laroque, Thief River Falls, was attempting to cross Highway 59 traveling east when his vehicle collided with a car driven by David John Quandrud. Quanrud of Red Lake Falls, was attempting to turn left to travel south on Highway 59. Police estimated damages at $600 to the Laroque vehicle, and $800 to the Quanrud vehicle.

Assaults. On March 18 at 10:28 p.m. police received a report of an assault. Kent Wayne Dokkin, 32, Thief River Falls, was charged with fifth degree assault.

On March 21 at 4:38 a.m. police received a report of an assault. The male victim was found walking down the street. He had a fat lip. Facing a charge of fifth degree assault is Loretta Joann Stavenes, 18, Thief River Falls.

These reports include names of individuals charged, arrested or cited with various crimes and offenses by police, the sheriff's department or other law enforcement officials. Depending upon the circumstances of a case, charges can be, and sometimes are, changed or dropped by law enforcement officials or attorneys even before the case reaches court. Readers should also realize that under the American system of jurisprudence, individuals charged with crimes are innocent until proven guilty of those crimes in a court of law.

Not all activities at the Old McDonald's Farm event for pre-school youngsters and their parents at Challenger elementary school in Thief River Falls recently were entirely harmonious.

This youngster was a little impatient with her older sister's use of an eyedropper during an experiment with color disappearance.

State orders EIS on animal ag

Minnesota Environmental Quality board has ordered a generic environmental impact statement on animal agriculture in Minnesota, contingent on funding by the state Legislature. A generic environmental impact statement reviews activities of statewide concern that cannot be adequately evaluated one project at a time.

"In Minnesota and throughout the United States, there is increasing concern about the long-term impact of large livestock facilities, as well as about existing, smaller feedlots," said Rod Sando, chair of the environmental Quality Board and commissioner of the Department of Natural Resources.

"The GEIS will provide an objective, independent and thorough study of the social, environmental and economic factors that are critical to addressing this important issue facing rural Minnesota," Sando said.

The decision follows a February 19 meeting at which the board received written and oral public comment on the need to conduct this study. In December 1997, Governor Arne H. Carlson recommended that the Environmental Quality Board order this study. He requested $1.2 million from the Legislature for the first year of the study.

The EQB also authorized the creation of a public advisory committee to help plan and carry out the feedlot study. The EQB encourages Minnesotans who would like to participate on this advisory committee to submit their names, addresses and telephone numbers to: Environmental Quality Board, Minnesota Planning, 658 Cedar Street, St. Paul, MN 55155, or by e-mail to eqb@mnplan.state.mn.us

The Environmental Quality Board, staffed by Minnesota Planning, draws together five citizens and the heads of 10 state agencies that play a vital role in Minnesota's environment and development. The board develops policy, creates long-range plans and reviews proposed projects that could significantly influence Minnesota's environment.

TRF receives Tree City award

Thief River Falls was named Tree City USA at the Northwest Urban Forestry Workshop held recently at the University of Minnesota at Crookston (UMC). Tree City USA is an annual program that recognizes communities for their urban forestry programs and activities. It is sponsored by the National Arbor Day Foundation in cooperation with state foresters and the USDA Forest Service.

To be recognized as a Tree City USA, a community must have a legally constituted tree board or tree department, have a tree ordinance specifying who in the community is responsible for public tree care, have a comprehensive community forestry program supported by a minimum annual expenditure of $2 per capita and annually proclaim Arbor Day and hold an Arbor Day observance.

Thief River Falls was recently presented a Tree City USA award, which recognizes communities for their urban forestry programs and activities: (from left) Bob Fogel, West Central Shade Tree Advisory Committee president and director of parks for Moorhead; Thief River Falls Mayor Mark Borsheim, Madelyn Vigen, parks and recreation director in Thief River Falls; Curt Howe, building and grounds supervisor; Myles Olson, forester and parks and maintenance director; John Johnson, Headwater Agassiz Shade Tree Advisory Committee president and city forester for Thief River Falls.

Western states prying dairy away

Unless Minnesota's dairy industry changes course it is in grave danger of losing market share to Western states such as California and Idaho, warns a Minnesota Department of Agriculture dairy specialist.

The growth of Western states' dairy industries in the last few years has been phenomenal, said MDA Livestock Development Specialist Harold Stanislawski. California overtook Wisconsin to become the nation's top dairy state just four years ago. Today California produces as much milk as Wisconsin and Idaho (another top Western dairy state) put together.

California milk production accounts for 17.6 percent of the U.S. market, while Wisconsin's share has slipped to 14.3 percent and Minnesota's share has shrunk to just 5.7 percent. Assuming a conservative five percent annual production gain, California will produce 30.5 billion pounds of milk by the turn of the century. That total will be nearly as much as Wisconsin and Minnesota combined.

With such a massive shift in dairy production, there is growing concern that dairy processors will follow the cows and move their operations west.

"News of the Minnesota moratorium debate has reached the West coast and those dairy producers are delighted," said Stanislawski. "They see an opportunity to take more of our dairy business, and they will do that if our policy decisions give them half a chance."

Stanislawski fears the competition for market share will grow so long as the dairy industries in Minnesota and other Upper Midwest states show signs of weakness.

"It won't be hard to figure what our future will be if we do not compete," Stanislawski said. "California dairy farmers receive $1 to $1.25 less per hundred weight for milk than we do in Minnesota and yet they continue to expand."

Here are the average herd sizes in several Western states, as reported by California's Frazer and Torbed, LLP, a leading dairy accounting firm: Southern California 1,421 cows; San Joaquin Valley in California 1,766 cows; Arizona 1,273 cows; Idaho 1,347 cows; New Mexico 2,053 cows; and Texas 852 cows.

Finseth Approach To Personal Watercraft Regulation Reasonable

State Representative Tim Finseth of Angus has a reasonable approach to the question of personal watercraft regulation and especially the proposed ban from smaller lakes that was presented in the 1998 legislative session.

Finseth points out that opponents to PWCs had been making their case in the House throughout the session, repeatedly charging that the craft are loud, annoying and dangerous. Their efforts led to the bill that proposed banning PWCs from all lakes 100 acres or smaller (nearly seven out of 10 of the state's lakes), expanding the no-wake zone to 200 feet from shore, docks, swimmers or other craft and limited operation to between the hours of 10 a.m. and 7 p.m.

"I agree that personal watercraft can be loud, particularly when used in one area for an extended period of time," he said. "And they can be annoying. But let's fact it—a ban is a ban is a ban. If we pick on personal watercraft just because some people think they are annoying, what's next? Powerboats. Lawnmowers? Chainsaws? Bans don't solve problems.

"Our lakes are, after all, public waters," he adds. "We start down a dangerous path if we ban one segment of the population from using public property, particularly when the ban affects 67 percent of the state's lakes. And we certainly don't resolve public concerns over noise or safety issues when the state's 27,000 personal watercraft are concentrated on the 3,000 lakes not eliminated by the 100-acre ban."

While the all or nothing approach is not the right way to deal with the issue, other provisions in the bill have merit, the Angus lawmaker said.

"Limiting the time and areas the machines can be on lakes seems a reasonable solution to the peace and quiet argument," he said. "And for those dangerous few who operate their machines in a reckless manner, I have no problem with enforcing the law and holding them responsible for their actions. Safety courses, licenses, certification and tougher enforcement are all ways to deal with safety and nuisance issues, and all have been included in this year's omnibus environmental bill that is currently in conference committee."

Rep. Finseth said he was pleased when the ban was eliminated from the bill by an overwhelming majority of his colleagues. Without the ban in place, the author asked that the bill be tabled and it is not expected to come up again.

"If it does," Rep. Finseth says, "I will look carefully at regulations that deal with hours of operation and promote safety on the lakes. We can't solve the problem by banning personal watercraft from public waters, but we can get at the root of the problem by addressing public concerns over noise and safety."

Owners and operators of personal watercraft collectively would be well advised to feel a little bit like they are on parole this summer. Careless, insensitive, illegal or improper operation of the sporty little boats will bring a new round of complaints to the next legislative session. And the next time, or the time after, legislators may not be so willing to be lenient in regulation.

A Provocative Angle From Up In the Angle

Tongue-in-cheek though it was, the request by some residents of the Northwest Angle in Minnesota to secede from the United States and be annexed to Canada so resorts in the area could have Canadian fishing rights for their guests has accomplished its purpose. It has caught the attention of people in a number of areas of the federal government, most of whom probably never heard of the Angle or haven't heard of it since grade school geography classes.

Congressman Collin Peterson carried the Angle residents' wishes to Congress in the form of a bill which he introduced, and which he also acknowledged was a publicity ploy. The real purpose of the bill, he said, was to call attention to the plight of Northwest Angle resorters whose guests are not permitted to keep any fish caught in Ontario waters.

The Province of Ontario introduced the ban this year after having cut the keepable limit from six fish to two fish a few years ago. And the Ontario lawmakers couldn't even do that without lying. They said the reason was conservation of the fishing resource. That isn't even close to believable. The real reason is protectionism of Ontario resort operations. People can understand that, so why not just say so? Are there treaty restrictions that would prevent that admission?

We can understand the concern of Angle business people. Their customers come there to catch fish, and Ontario has much more fishable water in that area than the United States. For many years the resorters were able to utilize the Ontario waters of the lake for their guests' fishing territory—subject, of course, to Ontario licensing. It seemed like a good deal for everyone.

Then the Provincial government became much more......well.....provincial. It adopted unilateral regulations and promptly got in a hassle with Minnesota, which imposed retaliatory sanctions of its own, further punishing the U.S. fishermen in the process.

If Ontario were sincere in its announced concern for its fishery, there are other means available to protect it, including reducing or eliminating commercial fishing, shortening the sport fishing season or making other adjustments, such as imposing slot limits or closing specific areas. But the issue isn't about protecting fish, it's about protecting businesses.

Ontario resorters have done a whale of a job in lobbying provincial government. They have succeeded in securing restriction after restriction which contribute to their control of access to large areas of Ontario's public waters.

None of this is to say that Ontario has overstepped its bounds. Certainly the provincial government has the right to control the resources of the province in the way it deems best. But it has certainly created the impression that non-residents are unwelcome and establishment of that attitude may well contribute to Ontario legislating itself out of the foreign tourist business. And don't expect Northwest Angle resorters to be sympathetic.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To The Editor:

It is approaching the time of year when we should be thinking about recognizing our community volunteers. I think we all can recognize the impact that volunteers have on our lives throughout the year, but nationwide volunteers are traditionally recognized during the month of April.

Gov. Arne Carlson has proclaimed the week of April 19-25 as Minnesota Volunteer Week. The theme for 1998 is Building Stronger Communities. Volunteers need to be recognized for strengthening our communities and for making us all better citizens. I encourage all volunteer organizations to make an effort to recognize your volunteers in some way during this week in April or at another time if this week is inconvenient.

Second, I would like to call your attention to, or remind all, that the Governor's Act of Kindness award is also a program to recognize and honor groups of volunteers or individuals who give of their time, talents and service to improve the lives of others.

If you know of someone, or some group, that you would like to nominate for this honor, I encourage you to do so. Nominees can be of any age and the organization of any size. Each economic development region in our state will have a winner. Previous winners in our region were from Thief River Falls, Argyle and Red Lake Falls.

Nominations must be postmarked no later than April 30, 1998. Forms will be available at The Times office, other media outlets and senior centers, and at other places. I will also send you a form if you desire. Write to me at 102 Spruce Avenue North, Thief River Falls, MN 56701 or call me at 218-681-1190.

The third item I wish to alert you about is a volunteer seminar to be held in Thief River Falls. Bonnie Esposito, director of the Minnesota Office of Citizenship and Volunteer Services (MOCVS), will be conducting this seminar at Northland Community and Technical College theatre from 1 to 3 p.m. on May 5. Everyone is welcome and there is no charge.

Bonnie will discuss the State of Volunteerism report in 2000 and other issues involving volunteerism in our region. Regional meetings on the State of Volunteerism will be held in 1998 and 1999, during which a draft plan of community involvement and citizenship issues will be drawn. She will also discuss the Alliance with Youth, which is a statewide coalition of public/private stakeholders to promote the goals of the National Initiative led by Collin Powell and America's Promise.

There will be more detailed public service announcements to be made later. I just want you to circle May 5 on your calendar and plan to come to meet this delightful person.

Sincerely,
Cliff Larson,
MOCV Advisory Committee Member

APRIL 1ST
The Jones-Meehan Case to be Tried on that Date
IT'S COST MONEY
Enough, Perhaps, to Burn a Wet Elephant

"Word has been received in this city from Washington to the effect that on or about the first of April in the United States supreme court briefs will be submitted and argument made in the celebrated case of Ray W. Jones vs. P. & J. Meehan, and that the case will be decided in the fore part of the summer. This will forever settle a case which has divided this city into factions, retarded its growth and cost the participants a small fortune.

The suit in question is over the lease of some 32 odd acres of land lying just above the North Spring mill. It was leased by Moose Dung to P. & J. Meehan, when they first came to this city, and could probably have been purchased at that time for a price not exceeding $10 an acre. Moose Dung subsequently leased it to Jones and he had it approved by the department of the interior. The case has been bitterly fought in all of the lower courts and now it is before the highest tribunal in the land for final settlement. The Meehans have been victorious in all the former suits and are confident of winning this time.

"Mr. Jones is represented by Frank Kellogg, a well known attorney, and the Meehans were represented in former trials by John C. Judge, whose untimely demise a short time ago left them without their legal advisor. They are now represented by Davis, Kellogg and Severance, of St. Paul, of which United States Senator C. K. Davis who will make the arguments before the supreme court, is the senior member."

"Everyone is glad the case is to be decided for the last time soon."

EVERY DAY
The Great Northern Puts on a Daily
LOTS OF WORK
And the Prospects for More Are Good

"Superintendent Jenks and Assistant General Superintendent Gruber were up to this city last Friday and brought the pleasant information that a daily train would be put on the Thief River Falls branch. A daily train will also be put on the Fosston branch. The prospects for plenty of work on this branch this summer are excellent and we only wish there was enough for two trains a day. The new time card went into effect yesterday."

The entertainment is free to the public and everyone is invited to attend. Full program will be printed in next week's issue of The Tribune."

Students read poetry at FMS "coffee house"

As a conclusion to a month of writing and reading poetry in Mrs. Leslie Nordheim's communication classes, seventh grade students at Franklin middle school read their original poems for fellow students at a "coffee house" arranged Monday, March 16, in the school media center.

Tables were arranged in a circle and a couch, plants and other materials were added to create a coffee house atmosphere. Students sat on the couch and used a microphone while reading their original poems.

Additional decorations included a teapot collection owned by Donna Knott, a staff member at Franklin, and coffee mugs brought by other staff members.

Background music was provided by Joe Kezar of Kezar Music and Lincoln high school senior Barry Belcher. Participating seventh grade students were served hot chocolate, cookies and mints.

Jessica Liden and Tabitha Anderson won the contest to name the media center for the day. Their winning suggestion was "Poetry Pit."

Selected for honorable mention were the following: "Cup of Words," Frannie Mann and Kaija Hanson; "Poems Without Parents," Ryan Broden and Ryan Forney; "Cafe ala Poems," Ashley Harbott and Riely Jesme; "Unplug," Tera Fugleberg, Janna Clow and Ashley Sullivan; "Poem Pit," Tiffany Sorenson and Eryn Clow; "The Cosmic Java," Peter Ihle and David Stoutenberg; and "Cafe de Poem," Kari Thompson and Paige Panek.

Poetry written by the students will be on display in the media center for other Franklin students to read.

"This is one of the most exciting things Leslie and I have done for the kids," noted Franklin media center director Merijo Paschke. "They loved it!"

Guitarist Barry Belcher, a senior at Lincoln high school, provided background music for Franklin middle school students during a poetry reading session last Monday, March 16. Also playing for the event was Joe Kezar of Kezar Music. The Franklin media center was transformed into a "coffee house" for the poetry reading which concluded a section on poetry in Leslie Nordheim's seventh grade communication classes.

Reading their original poems, written in Leslie Nordheim's seventh grade communication classes at Franklin middle school, are (from left) Kelsy Christensen, Rebecca Oelmere and Kara Larson. To conclude the poetry section of the classes, Franklin's media center was transformed into a "coffee house" for the day and students read their poems for other members of their classes.

Walking helps arthritis sufferers go the distance

If you have arthritis, exercise might be missing from your list of priorities. Walking is good, self-paced exercise for anyone, too often overlooked because it's so simple. Walking strengthens your heart, lungs, bones and muscles, and helps build stamina and improve joint flexibility according to Dr. Kurt Zimmerman, an Edina rheumatologist.

The Arthritis Foundation offers many tips to help walkers with arthritis. Talk with your doctor first to determine the level of intensity that's right for you. Then choose comfortable, supportive shoes with flexible soles and good arch supports, find a safe course with resting points, and be sure family members know your route and how long you'll be gone. Consider these options to help keep your walking time more interesting: try strolling in different locations, such as the local mall, airport concourse, or a different neighborhood. Find a regular walking partner to relieve boredom and reinforce your commitment. Regular walking groups can be found at community centers, shopping centers and fitness centers.

For a free brochure about Walking and Arthritis, call the Arthritis Foundation Minnesota chapter at 612-644-4108 or 1-800-333-1380.

STATE OF MINNESOTA DISTRICT COURT
COUNTY OF PENNINGTON NINTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT

TO ALL PERSONS WITH A LEGAL INTEREST IN THE PARCELS OF REAL PROPERTY DESCRIBED IN THE FOLLOWING DELINQUENT TAX LIST

A list of real property in Pennington County on which delinquent property taxes and penalties are due has been filed with the Court Administrator of Pennington County. This list is published to inform all persons that the listed property is subject to forfeiture because of delinquent taxes.

The property owner, taxpayer, or other interested person must either pay the tax and penalty, plus interest and costs, or file a written objection with the Court Administrator. The objection must be filed by April 10, 1998, stating the reason why the tax or penalty is not due on the property. If no objection is filed, a court judgment will be entered against the property for the unpaid tax, penalty, interest, and costs.

For property under court judgment, the period of redemption begins on May 11, 1998, and ends three to five years later, depending on the type of property and where it is located. The period of redemption means the time within which taxes must be paid to avoid losing the property through forfeiture.

To avoid forfeiture, taxes on property located within a township must be paid by May 12, 2003. Taxes must also be paid by May 12, 2003, if the property is one of the following types in a city: (1) residential homestead, (2) farm homestead, (3) private cabins, (4) resorts occupied by the owner, and (5) resorts in operation for not more than 225 days a year. Payment of tax by May 14, 2001, is necessary to avoid forfeiture of any property in a city which is not described in the preceding sentence.

To determine how much interest and costs must be added to pay the tax in full, contact the Pennington County Auditor's Office, Pennington County Courthouse, P.O. Box 616, Thief River Falls, Minnesota 56701. The telephone number is 218-683-7006.

Consider moisture if building a new house

Moisture control, along with low energy use and indoor air quality control, should be one of the main considerations for persons building a new house this spring and summer Quality is important in the construction of comfortable, durable homes

According to the Minnesota Department of Public Service (DPS), the wet summer of 1997 underscored the need for moisture control—a major part of which begins with preventing wet or damp basements

"Home moisture problems are the number one reason builders are called back by new home owners," notes Kris Sanda, DPS Commissioner. "Studies show that 10 gallons or more of water per day can evaporate into a house from the basement, sometimes resulting in a damp basement, but even more often resulting in water on windows and other moisture problems that can damage the home."

DPS energy specialists have worked closely with building scientists to develop the recommendations summarized below for preventing moisture problems caused by damp basements. Those planning to build a new home should discuss these recommendations with their builder. Preventing moisture problems during construction is easier and costs less than correcting problems later.

- Site selection. The first and perhaps most important step is to select a suitable site. Moisture problems are probably inevitable if a home is built on a site with a high water table.
- Surface drainage. Landscaping should be graded to direct rain water and melting snow away from the foundation. DPS recommends as much slope as possible—at least six inches over the first 10 feet from the foundation wall.
- Dampproofing. The Minnesota building code requires a dampproof coating on the below grade portion of the foundation wall Tell your builder you want a high quality, durable waterproofing. A thin dampproof coating is vulnerable to damage during construction.
- Floor slab. The basement floor can be a significant source of moisture. To reduce water absorption, the concrete slab should be poured on top of three to four inches of washed aggregate, with a sheet of polyethylene installed beneath the aggregate. In Minnesota's climate, insulating the floor slab saves energy and improves comfort and reduces basement condensation in the summer.
- Drainage system. An effective exterior drainage system drains bulk water away from the foundation. A channel of coarse rock or drainage tile may be used. The drainage system must be installed on the outside, and near the bottom, of the footing.
- Foundation wall insulation. Foundation insulation may be placed on the exterior wall, be an integral part of the wall, or be placed on the interior of the foundation wall. Regardless of where the insulation is placed, a moisture barrier is required to reduce outdoor moisture from coming through the foundation wall

In the case of insulation placed on the interior side of the foundation wall, both sides of the insulation must be protected. A moisture barrier is required between the insulation and the wall from floor to grade, and a vapor retarder is required on the interior side of the insulation.

Details on these and other measures to prevent wet basements are included in a DPS Home Builders' Energy Update. To receive a free copy, call DPS Energy Information Center at 1-800-657-3710 from outside the Twin Cities area

Folks in northwest Minnesota are enjoying the first week of Spring and hoping it won't be many more weeks before we'll be seeing tulips and daffodils poking their lovely shapes and colors through the dark garden soil. Hazel found a plant about six inches high which had decided it was time to start growing and was pulled out of the ground when she removed the straw bales off her flower bed She is planning to replant it so is keeping it in a wet paper towel for a few days. With Spring here Summer can't be far behind

I was lucky to get back home in time to see the last amaryllis in full bloom. Roy must have been telling those flowers a lot of "sweet nothings" because one had six huge blossoms at one time and then came out with a second stem with three more He caught about three gallons of rain water for the flowers the other day, but that could have come from the half inch of snow that melted as soon as the sun came up There has been so little snow since in October that he has almost run out of the special drink he gives the plants rain water or melted snow

Supplement to The Times Wednesday, March 25, 1998

A letter of thanks

Dear readers,

This Kid's News section of The Times is truly special. Students at Challenger Elementary School, St. Bernard's School and Our Saviour's Christian Academy drew the pictures and wrote the copy for the advertising. Sixth grade students at Franklin Middle School wrote the stories, reviews, opinions, interviews, advice columns and horoscopes and designed the games found in this special supplement.

This educational activity was held in conjunction with Newspapers in Education Week, March 2-6. The Minnesota Newspaper Association lists several reasons why teachers should use newspapers in their classrooms. Newspapers make learning fun, are a common community link and help students understand freedom of the press and other rights guaranteed by the constitution. Newspaper articles and photographs can be clipped, pasted and saved.

Reporter Kathi Carlson spent Monday, March 2 with the sixth grade English classes of Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Diaz at Franklin Middle School telling students about newspapers and her job. She was impressed by the students' interest and enthusiasm.

We are grateful to the advertisers who sponsored this special newspaper. Without your support, the paper would not have been possible. We are also grateful for the teachers who helped us organize the project and encouraged their students to write or draw something for this special issue.

Most of all, we want to thank the students who did the writing and artwork. Each of you did an excellent job, and choosing what would go into the paper was difficult. While we wish we could have printed everything, there was just not enough room. The ads which do not appear in the publication are posted at the place of business they advertise. Be sure to stop by and take a look.

We look forward to your participation again next year!

Sincerely,
Your friends

TRFHA Peewee B Blue take first

By Travis Klinkhammer

On February 21, 1998, Thief River Falls PeeWee B Blue went to Park Rapids for a tournament. Four teams, four trophies, however there was only one first place trophy, and everybody wanted it.

First game for the Peewee B Blue was against Morris. It was probably over when the Peewee B Blue scored two goals in forty-eight seconds. The final score was 16 to nothing.

Their next game was against Fargo Patriots who had beaten Wadena (who Peewee B Blue played next). It was a close game when Fargo Patriots scored, however the Peewee B Blue lead two to one. The Patriots kept the puck pretty much in Thief River Falls zone, for the last five minutes of the game. But Peewee B Blue hung on to go two and zero on there record in the tournament.

The final game was against Wadena, who had last their lost two games against Fargo Patriots and Morris. Because Thief River Falls beat Morris sixteen to nothing you would think that they would be a push over. However, it was one to one going into the third period, and it looked like any team could win. With 13 seconds left, Peewee B Blue scored the winning goal.

Thief River Falls took first and got a trophy to keep and a traveling trophy. A traveling trophy is a trophy that you keep for a year. Then next year you bring it back with your name on it.

The perfect book

By Vanessa Tieman

Just recently, I read the "Perfect Book". It is called Homesick: My Own Story. It is about a girl, Jean Fritz, who was born into a country that hates her, China, but knows that her home-roots will always be in the United States. In the story, Jean encounters some very serious problems, but knows that she can't fix them. Even though she goes to a British School in Hankow, China (which will always be better than going to a Shanghai school), she still refuses to say the pledge to the flag. But sure enough, the Fritz's soon make it to the United States with the help of Jean's nanny and her best friend, Andrea. This book has been the "Perfect Book" for me, and if you read it, I'm sure you'll like it too!!

Games, games and more games

By Aaron Bendickson

Hey you Ninendo maniac, do you want to know what nintendo games are hot on the shelves? Well if you do, I have just the right thing for you! For Playstation, Residant Evil 2 is probably the most magnificant game that's come out this year. Only if you like fighting games. If your looking for a sports game try out NHL98–it's fantastic. The game's graphies are so realistic it's almost like you're in the game. Great games for N64 are (007) Double-O-Seven. It's an adventure game, and it's great fun. For the sports games the N64 is probably not the system your looking for. At least I think so. Those are the games right now that are at the "TOP SPOT" in the game category.

Paulson's Hatchet gets high marks

By Derek Sorenson

If you have never read Hatchet by Gary Paulsen, you are missing a very exciting book. It's about a young boy who is flying up in northern Canada to visit his father. The two passenger plane, he is riding in, crashes when the pilot has a heart attack. This is just the beginning of Brian's frightening and exciting adventure, as he is left alone in the wilderness with only his hatchet, a lake and a forest. Will he survive? How?

After you have read Hatchet, you will also want to read the sequels to it, The River and Brian's Winter. Once you start reading these books, however, it's hard to put them down!

See "An American Werewolf in Paris"

By Chris Molstad

The movie, "An American Werewolf in Paris," was spectacular. The most amazing thing was the special affects when the people changed into werewolves. Well I suppose that's only 'my opinion. I give it two thumbs up. If I had more money, I would go see it again. The music was awesome, but they played it at the wrong time I think. Well you'll have to decide for yourself. Watch the movie, you'll like it!

Two movies reviewed

By Daren Moen
and Tanner Nelson

Hello, we will be your critics for this week. We call ourselves Nelson and Moen!

For our first movie "Con Air!" Its starts out with this guy who gets back from Vietnam and he gets into a brutal fight and blah, blah, blah. He goes to jail for ten years. Then the plane comes to transfer the prisoners and it gets hijacked. And the guy saves the day. It was a four-star movie.

And for our next movie "Gone Fishin'!" Three guys go fishing in the everglades and this other guy steal their car and blah, blah, blah. They catch the bad guy and he was a criminal so they got $100,000 but they only made a $46 profit! A five-star movie because it was very funny!

Well, that's all for this week. Hope you enjoyed it!

Space Monkeys CD is awesome

By Matt Bauer
and Ryan Mattison

If you're someone who likes music you would like this. Ryan Mattison and Matt Bauer think you should by the CD "Space Monkeys," it is cool. It has a hit song called "Sugar Cane." It's one of the best songs. Some other cool songs on this CD are Acid House Killed Rock and Roll, Blowing Down-Styles, Inside My-Soul, Ready For The Rampage, and We Are Super Cool. They have a great singer. This CD costs only 12-16 dollars. It helps Ryan with his math. When he listens to the music he gets A's and B's. Ryan and Matt think you should buy this CD because it's awesome.

R.A.K. is a hit at Franklin School

By Jeremy Gerardy and Chad Rosencrans

A few weeks ago we celebrated R.A.K. (Random Acts of Kindness). It's important to be kind to others. That's why we procticed this important skill. We had lots of fun.

The first day we brought canned foods for the food shelter. The second day we did nice things for our family. For example, helped do the dishes. Then, the next day we helped out our teachers and staff. For example, ran an errand for them. Finally the last day we did Acts of Kindness for our friends and peers. For example, gave them some gum.

During that week, we wrote letters to our former teachers. A few students are getting letters back answering the questions we asked.

In the end we all had fun and did some nice things to people who appreciated it.

Science students study Mars

By Bruce Stavenes

We are studying the solar system in science. My group chose the planet on Mars. We're creating our own planet and making a brochure. We get to display our work in the library.

Here's some information I learned about Mars. Mars is a red planet. It is a windy planet and we can't live on it. Mars is the fourth planet from the sun. Mars has a lot of crators and mountains. We enjoyed working on it.

Kids rule the school at FMS

By Ashley Holthusen and Adrianne Erickson

Every kids dream is to have a day of school without teachers. That dream came true at Franklin Middle School.

It started with one suggestion then more votes came along. There was 95% votes for kids to rule the school and 5% votes for teachers to rule the school. It would happen one day a week, and you should see what happened when a teacher gave a student a assignment. The student pressed charges. That students name was Bendickson. He's the one that takes care of the teachers who misbehaved. It is very fun and educational for the students to make up new ways to teach. It has been decided to do this every Friday. It teaches the teachers how to respect kids as their teachers. We are now going to interview the dean of students. Mr. Mills thought it was a good idea, and that if a teacher got a detention, it would be fair because teachers should face consequences. "Some students might take advantage," said Mr. Mills, "but I think it went well."

Friday the 13th

By Tami Dowers

For many centuries people have feared the number 13, but why? And why do they fear Friday the 13th? Many people have feared Friday the 13th because Friday is the day Jesus was crucified and 13 is an unlucky omen.

Many people don't believe in unlucky numbers and days. For some people 13 is a lucky number! Many authors have writen stories, fiction and non, on Friday the 13th. Weather or not you believe omens and other stuff like that is up to you.

There has been two Friday the 13ths all ready and one to come in November! So, watch out, there might just be a goblin standing behind you!

Discrimination against blacks

By Alison Schmidtgall and Cassandra Smith

Do you know what blacks have to go through every day, every week, month and year? Well they already know. They are treated unfairly because of the color of their skin. They are like a white person who has gotten a dark tan.

Just think of what they have done for us. They introduced us to wonderful, popular music—jazz. And think of how they have changed history— with people like Martin Luther King Jr. and Rosa Parks.

Personally, we think it's pathetic how you discriminate against black people. They are related to us whether you like it or not, because we are all part of the circle of life.

Almost all of us, as people, have friends that are black.

Our advice to you is to see what blacks are like, and if you can't, we are sorry because a lot of blacks are very nice

Give them a chance.

Leave the president alone

By Jill Lappegaard

I've been listening to the news and all you hear is about President Clinton and his affair. My feelings are if Mrs Clinton doesn't care, why should the people care? Gossip is a disease, and I think it's time people quit. He's done a good job in this world. I think it's time we forgive and forget and let him go on with his job.

Why uniforms?

By Lyndsey Engelstad

Why do we have–gym uniforms? People say it's to prevent our clothes from getting stolen! How can someone steal your clothes when you're wearing them? They could go in the locker rooms and steal your stuff. My friend had money stolen. What good do they do in swimming? I know it's also to keep us looking neat. What's next? Prowler swimsuits?

Everyone entitled to his or her own opinion

By Cassandra Anderson

Hello, my name is Cassandra Anderson. This has happened to me and I notice it happening to others. Have you ever liked something or somebody and your friend did not like them so you could not like them because your friend did not. It happened to me with a music group called Hanson. I really like them, but my friend did not like them so I could not like them because she said if I did we would not be friends. So I told her that I had my own opinion and she said that she did not want to be my friend so we are no longer friends. What I am trying to say is each person has their own opinion. People shouldn't ruin a nice friend ship. We are all entitled to our own opinion.

Short Stories

Titanic

By Carolyn Poulson

I can't believe it. Me—Ellen, age 12—was actually going to be on the big beautiful ship, the Titanic. I was going with my mom and dad. I wasn't at all afraid to go on the ship like some kid's my age would be. It was the unsinkable ship!

When we got on the ship we were taken to a room in the 3rd class part of the ship. The Titanic was so beautiful! When we got to America my mom said I could get a pet cat. I knew just what to name it—Titanic!

At dinnertime we went to a big dining room. The food was the best food I had ever eaten. After we were done eating, we went to a big dance. A few boys my age asked me to dance, and I danced with a few of them. Many people were at the dance. They were all dressed in beautiful clothing. I was dressed in a long dress. It was an ivory color. It was quite pretty.

When I went back to the room, there was a big boom! It made our room shake. I ran out. The ship had hit an iceberg.

I ran around and tried to find my parents. They were nowhere in sight. I asked some people if they had seen them. They asked what they looked like. I told them, and they said they had fallen off the ship when it hit the iceberg. I started crying. There wasn't much I could do. Some people started screaming and running. I turned around. They were yelling, "The ship is sinking!"

People were getting on lifeboats and floating away. I tried to get on a lifeboat, but people pushed me away. I could feel the ship tilting. I pushed my way to the front of the line to get on a lifeboats. They asked where my parents were. I said that they had died. They got me on the water just in time. The ship's back end was in the air. All I could do was watch the ship sink.

There, before my eyes, was a beautiful ship sinking to the bottom of the ocean, probably never to be seen again. When the ship was gone, all we in the life boats could do was wait for someone to come and get us. That was the worst and best day of my life — April 14, 1912.

The New Kid

By Corey Thorstad

One day at our plain old school, my friends and I were playing hopscotch. Recess was almost over when a weird looking vehicle drove up the school driveway in Maine. The whistle blew, and we had to go inside.

Later that day, I saw strange people in the principal's office. They were black! The next day I saw a black girl my age, and everyone was teasing her because of her skin color. At lunch, she sat at the table I was at, and everybody moved.

The next day I was going to try to become friends with her. In the morning I went to her locker and said "Hi!" She looked at me strangely and then said "You're the first person to talk to me. Thanks!"

"I wonder why she thanked me?" I said to myself. Then I realized that she doesn't have any friends. That day at lunch I asked her to sit by me, and her smile was so big, and her eyes sparkled like lit candles. She and I became friends and though I lost my best friend, I got a new one.

Spring is coming!

By Nicole Thibodeau

Jenny came running in through the front door and yelled, "Spring is coming." She was so excited that she ran into her mother. Jenny is four years old. She lives in Thief River Falls, MN.

Even though it was a mild winter she was excited. "Mom, when is the first day of spring?" Jenny asked. "Well, it's March 20th," her mother answered. "Why, didn't you know? It's your birthday." "I forgot, Mom," said Jenny.

During the next couple of days she made a birthday list and spring flowers out of paper. "Mom, how many more days until March 20th?" Jenny asked. "Five more days, Jenny," her mom answered. "I can't wait," said Jenny.

She counted three days, then two to go. On the day before, she was so excited that she ran around the backyard all day. That night Jenny asked "Why do I have to go to bed?" "Because you need your rest," her mother replied. "Oh all right," Jenny said.

The next day she woke up, and it was snowing. "Mom, it's snowing and it's spring!" Jenny cried. "I don't understand." "Even though it's spring, it will snow," said her mom. "O.K." Jenny said.

Jenny had the best birthday and first day of spring ever. From then on, she remembered the first day of spring.

The Times of My Life

By Ellen Heschke

It was all a big mistake, me being here and all. I just wanted to scream! "Its not fair!," I thought. The thing I was so upset about was that our BIG social report was due on Monday, and it was Sunday. "Well," I thought, "I only have to type it."

So I got down to business. I only typed for about 2 hours! I was so tierd!! To make matters worse, I also had math to do. I didn't get to sleep until about 9:30.

The lesson I learned from this is never, ever eat apples (they bring you bad luck).

WE SURVEYED 55 KIDS ON WHO THEIR FAVORITE BASKETBALL TEAM WAS AND THEIR FAVORITE PLAYER. HERE'S WHAT WE FOUND OUT.

31 kids said they like the Chicago Bulls, 15 kids like the Minnesota Timberwolves, only 3 like the L.A. Lakers, and 4 kids said they liked other teams in the NBA.

Then we surveyed 23 kids for Michael Jordan, 4 kids liked Coby Bryant (my partner put him in), 19 kids said they liked Kevin Garnett, and 9 had others they liked.

We took these polls at Mr. Wienen's and Mrs. Johnson's period 2, 6th grade classes at Franklin Middle School.

By Aaron Kalsness & Aron Muetzel

We did a survey on what's in and what's out. It was a fun survey. Out of three classes, the results were:

In		Out
60	Boxers	4
60	Chains (Necklaces)	29
31	Highlighting Hair	16
2	Tucking In Shirts	59
55	Baseball Caps	19
21	Trapper Keepers	57

Dear Abby- Advice Columns

Advice
by Emily Passey and Kyla Genereux

Dear Abby,

I like this boy. He is really cute, but he doesn't even know I'm alive. How can I go on living if he doesn't ever see me? I really would love to go out with him, but I'm much too shy. He won't ask me out even if he knew me. See he's in the 8th grade and I'm in the sixth grade. Please, if you possibly, possibly can help me!

Signed,
In Love

Dear In Love,

Maybe you should ask a friend to ask him if he likes you. IF he says yes you should ask him out. If you are to shy you could ask a friend to go with you, but you should ask him so he knows you have the courage.

Signed,
Dear Abby

Dear Abby,

My friend likes two boys, but she doesn't know if they like her. Is there anything I can do to help?

Signed,
A concerned friend in Minnesota

Dear "concerned friend in MN",

You should only help if your friend wants you to! If she does want your help you could ask one of the boys if he likes her, then tell your friend. If he does like her, you and your friend should figure out what to do next. If that boy doesn't like her then ask the other boy, and if neither of them like her, your friend might be upset but she'll be fine soon. I hope one of them likes her. Good luck!

Signed,
Dear Abby

Dear Abby,

I have a big problem. I am not very smart and I feel like nobody likes me. My teachers ignore me and the other kids make fun of me. What should I do!

Signed,
HELP!!

Dear HELP!!

I am sure there are people who like you but it seems as if you do not have a lot of confidence in yourself. It is important that you ask for help from your parents and teachers if you are having a hard time with your school work. You will find that once you get over your problems with that your confidence will increase and you will find that kids will start to notice and like you. You also need to find other things you may be good at like sports or music. Learn to be a good listener for your friends as well and this will help friendships to grow and increase. I hope this helps you and that when you grow up you have a successful job and lots of friends!

Signed,
Dear Abby

Advice
by Jenni Woodruf and Nicole Skagstad

Dear Abby,

Everyone at school makes fun of me because of what I wear. Everyone says that the glasses I wear are too big and cover my face, but I think they are just fine. I wear black spandex pants with a yellow night shirt. I'm tired of going to school every day and getting teased. I think their clothes are ugly. They always make fun of me. Do you have any advice?

Signed,
Desparate for Advice

Dear Desperate for Advice,

It doesn't matter what other people think. If you want to do something about it, ask your parents for some money and buy some clothes kind of like yours but then again, theirs.

My family is the solar system

By Katie Solberg

My family is the solar system. My dad is the Sun, because he's lots of fun.
My mom is the Moon, 'cause she's a big baffoon.
My sister is Saturn, her days are like a pattern.
My other sister is Jupiter, but she's not stupider.
And me, I'm the Earth because I was here at birth.

Untitled

By Kyle Larson

In the summer I am hot.
Now its in the 100's.

So, I go to the basement where its nice and cool.
Under the trees, in the shade,
I can lay
my eyes shut and I sleep.
Memories fade away like clouds in the sky.
Even when I sleep I dream of a cool breeze.
Right on my nose, a butterfly stands.

Days are flying by like rivers under the sun,
And suddenly it's fall and the leaves are falling.
You and I miss the summer.

Sun's surprise

By Ilayda Huntington

The round moon rolled behind the hill, as the sun raised up her head. She hardly believed her fiery eyes for though it was day, to her surprise all went back to bed

St. Patrick's Day

By Maureen Duffy

St. Patrick's Day is the best of all days.
You dress up all in green, and celebrate the Irish way.
Lots of hugs, lots of kisses
"Erin go brough," and good luck wishes.
Corn beef and cabbage,
pints of good ale,
rivers of green,
and a leprechaun tale.
The legends go on from Emerald Isle, putting a twinkle in your eye,
with a great smile.

Kathy Lofgren of Falls Books

By Ben Lofgren

I interviewed Kathy Lofgren owner of the Falls Book Co. so people will know some of what it is like to own a retail store.

Do you like owning a bookstore? Usually. I like meeting and visiting with people who look at and buy books. I like feeling like I am doing something good for Thief River Falls. I love keeping up with new books and interesting authors. It's fun to look at new gifts, music and try to think what people will want to buy. I like the people who work at the bookstore. But the bad parts are I never have enough time to get things done. I feel like I'm away from my kids too much sometimes. And bookkeeping drives me nuts.

What is your opinion on being the boss. AAARRRGGGHH. Sometimes it is good. I like deciding what will happen. But it is hard because I have to decide what will happen. I like exploring new things to have in the store. But the bank thinks I should pay my bills on time and not overdraw my account in the process. Sometimes people think the "boss" is the bad guy. "Who is she to tell me what to do?" Sometimes they don't know the whole story.

If you were going to do it again, what would you do differently? I wouldn't grow quite as fast. I borrowed more money than I am comfortable repaying. I would take a class or try to learn more about managing before I started. I would try to work in a bookstore for someone else before I started.

What are you satisfied with? What do you think you have done well? I wanted to help people in TRF explore their world. Books are great. I wanted to give them a places to find Christian books, general books, both fiction and nonfiction. Books help people do things, learn things, have a good story to read. A bookstore is an asset to a community. I've worked really hard and learned a lot. I have a lot of good customers.

What is the most fun or interesting part of having a store?

Books and people.

What's the least fun? Bookkeeping, and people. It's really hard when I tell my employees they have to do something differently than they are doing. I don't like it when people order something and it doesn't come or comes wrong. I don't like when we make mistakes when people order books.

If you wouldn't have started this bookstore what do you think you would be doing now?

I graduated from college with a degree in Medical Technology and worked as a med tech until I became a mom. When we lived in Wahpeton I was taking classes to learn how to be a teacher. After I started the store my mom told me she would have rented an apartment in TRF for a year so she could help take care of my kids and house so I could have finished learning how to be a teacher. I probably would have done that.

Are you glad you started the bookstore instead? Probably. You can't go back. You have to look at what you have learned from what you have done. And I believe God has a good plan for me and for my family and even when I make mistakes He works good from it. I thought I would be able to have more flexible time if I had my own business and would be able to be home if my kids were sick or had a special program at school. Usually this is true. But the work still has to be done even if it is late at night. There are some times when I wish I could just stay home and clean house and get caught up on the laundry.

In what ways is ordering fun? It's great fun to see what books are on the top ten lists and what people are writing and reading. I really like to get a book for a customer that's just what they wanted. For example, how to cook Chinese, or be a better parent, or just the right gift for someone. And sometimes it's fun to buy new stuff. The trick is to buy new stuff that customers want to buy from you!

How is it hard to order stuff? You have to get the right product, the right amount, the right time and not go over your budget.

What would you say to someone who is thinking about starting a retail store? AAAAARRRRRGGGGGHHHHH! Go in with your eyes open. You won't make a profit for a few years. You will be learning for a long time. Employees will get sick on the day you son has a solo in the band concert. It is a lot, lot, lot of work. The word merchant comes from the old Latin word which means to serve. Go in expecting to serve your customers. Get enough money up front. Guard your cash flow. Your family won't always appreciate your store. Sometimes your spouse will yell about it!

Embarrassing Moments

By Jacinda Bergeron Samantha Jorde and Danielle Sorvig

Teachers

A few years ago I backed into a light pole behind the police station. Three officers were watching!

I was walking out of a restaurant with my in-laws. I turned around to say something and I walked right into a pole!

In 7th grade I went skiing and I skied right into a tree stump. That's not even the worst part! I started laughing so hard I peed my pants.

In high school I dyed my hair black. I had completely forgot that we had swimming the next day. When I got into the pool the black dye went all over. It was so embarrassing!

When I was younger I was dared to stick my tongue on a cold pole in the winter. Stupidly, I did it. I couldn't get my tongue off! The teacher had to come out and pour water on it and pull it away. Everybody teased me!

I was playing basketball and got the ball. I decided to go for a dunk shot. I missed completely! The coach took me out of the game, and everybody teased me!

We were in Gallingburg, Tennessee on a vacation. We decided to have an old-time photo taken. I was dressing as a bar maid. I was a little embarrassed about the whole thing so I kept my back to the window that overlooked the street. I didn't realize that the dresses were open in the back and I had been mooning all of Gatlingburg!

Kids

I was playing outside at school on the swing set. I was hanging upside down when my pants got hooked on the swing! Then my pants ripped!

I was changing clothes for gym. Then I walked out and someone yelled, "Hey, your pants are on backwards!" Right in front of everyone!

I was at my mom's friend's house. I decided to climb this really big old tree. I was getting pretty high when I started getting tired. I saw a branch and decided to go and sit on it. Little did I know that this tree was dead. When I rested on the branch, it fell. I blacked out and got lots of scratches on my face and arms! To make thinks worse, it turned out that the boy that I really liked was my mom's friend's kid.

I was at the state wrestling tournament and I was standing up to say something in front of alot of people when I noticed that my zipper was undone. I didn't know what to do! I just said, "Excuse me, I'll be right back!"

I was on vacation with my parents when I got lost. I saw someone that I thought was my dad, so I ran up to him and grabbed his hand. Then he looked down at me and said, "Who are you?!" It was so embarrassing!

My mom and I were going to my sister's friends house to take pictures of them because it was Snow Fest. I thought I knew what house her friend lived in. We found a house that looked like the house we were looking for. We rang the doorbell and they let us in. We were standing there for at least 5 minutes when my mom said, "I think we are at the wrong house." It wouldn't have been so bad, but they had even camcorded us!

My cousin and I were playing outside. I went in to get something, and when I came back she had a bucket stuck on her head! I tried to pull it off, but I couldn't! We had to go to the hospital to get it off!

My mom and I went shopping, and she told me to go out and start the car. I went out and got into a van that looked just like ours. I had started it and everything when I noticed it wasn't ours!

WE SURVEYED 55 KIDS ON WHO THEIR FAVORITE BASKETBALL TEAM WAS AND THEIR FAVORITE PLAYER. HERE'S WHAT WE FOUND OUT.

31 kids said they like the Chicago Bulls, 15 kids like the Minnesota Timberwolves, only 3 like the L.A. Lakers, and 4 kids said they liked other teams in the NBA.

Then we surveyed 23 kids for Michael Jordan, 4 kids liked Coby Bryent (my partner put him in), 19 kids said they liked Kevin Gamett, and 9 had others they liked

We took these polls at Mr. Wienan's and Mrs. Johnson's period 2, 6th grade classes at Franklin Middle School.

By Aaron Kalsness & Aron Muetzel

We did a survey on what's in and what's out. It was a fun survey. Out of three classes, the results were:

In		Out
60	Boxers	4
60	Chains (Necklaces)	29
31	Highlighting Hair	16
2	Tucking in Shirts	59
55	Baseball Caps	19
21	Trapper Keepers	57

Aries 3/21 to 4/20

It's a month to work hard and play hard. Expect an invitation to travel mid-month. The destination? One of your favorite places. Around the 5th, you'll meet new people at an outside sporting event. The full moon on the 13th brings even more people. An extra-fun weekend follows.

Taurus 4/21 to 5/21

March came in like a lion and goes out like a bird. Make goals. Talk to friends. If you owe somebody an apology, make that apology. Lay low and relax.

Gemini 5/22 to 6/21

You will feel like meeting your challenges head on. Your social schedule will be catching up with you. Take some time for yourself. Life is a little more exciting around the 15th. The last week of March brings more challenges than expected.

Franklin Hot Lunch Program

By Nicole Colbert

Judy Green has been cooking at Franklin Middle School for six years, five other people help her. Green said they serve about 500 lunches a day. The favorite lunch is nachos along with dunkers and tacos. Ms. Green says that students have to take items from at least three of the five food groups according to state guidelines.

Lunches at Franklin cost $1.50. If a student can't afford this, they can apply for free or reduced lunch which is a federal program.

The food service director and cooks go to food shows to try out new menu items. New items are selected based on nutrition guidelines and how it fits into the menu.

The Franklin lunch program has two hot choices and one cold choice each day. Franklin cooks also serve breakfast each morning for $1.25.

Franklin Orchestra competes at Staples, MN

By Josh Swenson

The Franklin Middle School Orchestra will be going to Staples, MN on March 13. There they will compete for first, second, third and fourth places. If they succeed they will go to St. Paul to compete again. I recently talked to a student at Franklin named Matthew Langevin. Matthew plays the violin in orchestra. "Orchestra is enjoyable, it soothes the soul," Matthew said. "It also makes it great pastime." A recent study showed that kids that are in after school activities like orchestra are less like to do drugs, join gangs, or drop out of school. I asked Matthew some questions. "Matthew, how do you like Mr. Druse, the orchestra director?" was one of the questions that I asked him. He answered, "Mr. Druse is kind, funny and a great director." Also, on March 9 the orchestra will be holding a concert in Franklin's multi purpose room. As I was leaving Matthew said one more thing, "I encourage all kids to think about or try out for orchestra."

Loose cat at FMS

By Tina Kezar

Yesterday I got up for school, got ready, and left for my Aunt Carmen's house. Right when I got there I heard a low "meow." I went to may aunt's room. "Can I let the cat in?," I asked. "Yes," my uncle said. I went to the front door and got the cat. I picked him up, and brought him to my uncle. When it was time to leave I let the cat out.

We started walking, and the cat followed us. About a block away, my cousin said, "Go home." The cat didn't listen. So when we got to Lions Park some kids started playing with him, and we thought he would go home. We started walking faster so the cat wouldn't see us.

Ten minutes past and I was in the commons area. The cat got in the school. Some kids were chasing him. I saw a girl holding him. I told her to give him to me, she did. I put him out and told him to go home. After school I was hoping he would be at home, but he wasn't.

6th graders prepare for trip to Twin Cities

By Cody Walseth

The sixth graders are going on a class trip to Minneapolis. We've been selling magazines, McDonald's coupons, and now we are selling candy bars to raise money. We are going May 13-15, 1998. We will be visiting places like the State Capital, MN Science Museum, and the Kelly Farm. It should be fun!

The Bowling Kid

By Stacey Olson

There was a kid named Stacey Olson. She was in league bowling. One time she was bowling and got nine pins down, but then the luck began. All of a sudden the tenth pin went down. So that made it a strike. Then I threw the next ball — strike two! When you get two strikes in a row, you get a free pop (you have to be in league bowling to get a free pop). So I got a free pop. Then I threw the next ball and I got another strike so that was the third strike. Then a got a fourth strike. So I got four strikes in a row then I missed the next ball, but I got a spare on that ball. Then I got another strike. I did really well that game with a score of 180. Now my average is 93. I have made it to the districts. They will be held on March 28, 1998. I am going to bowl at 1:00 on that day in Detroit Lakes.

Orchestra concert and competition

By Marit Dalen

Next week (3-8-98 through 3-14-98) there will be two orchestra occurrences. On Monday, March 9, 1998 there will be an orchestra concert in the Lincoln Auditorium at 7:30 p.m., and on Friday, March 13, 1998 there will be a competition in Staples, Minnesota. 6th, 7th and 8th grades will be leaving Friday morning at 9 a.m. and returning around 9 p.m., and on the way home we will be stopping for supper.

The hurt drunk drivers cause

By Ashley Morkrid
and Ann Marben

We did an interview on Tawnya Panek. She was in a car accident shortly after 11:00 p.m. on January 30th about 4 miles west of TRF on Highway 1. Here are some the the questions we asked her, and after all the questions we added a poem about drunk drivers. You shouldn't be drinking while you are driving.

Q. Has opinion of drunk drivers changed?

A. Yes, before I knew it was a bad thing, but never stopped to think the heart break it could cause.

Q. Are you feeling better?

A. Yes, I'm still in a lot of pain. Can walk short distances with a walker or canes and can sit up in a chair for an hour.

Q. Are you glad to be out of the hospital?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you believe that God was watching over you that night?

A. "Most definitely." I don't think I would be alive without Him there.

Q. What happed to drunk driver?

A. He was arrested that night and released from jail on his own personal recognizance.

Q. Did anyone who stopped and helped you get hurt?

A. Yes, Brandon Bremseth received a back injury.

Q. Did the O. Oriver get hurt in any way?

A. No, not to my knowledge.

Q. Were you wearing your seat belt?

A. No.

Q. Do you think that you would've died if you had it on?

A. In this case maybe, but I do believe in the use of seat belts.

Q. How long were you in the hospital?

A. 2 weeks.

Q. Were you lonely?

A. Yes and no. I had lots of company and the days went by fast, but missed family.

How it all happened: On the way home from work Tawnya came past a grove of trees, and it was very windy. She hit a patch of ice and lost control of her pickup. The pickup rolled and as it rolled she was ejected through the driver's window. The Toyota landed on its hood in the opposite lane. She slid down the tar about 30 ft. from her truck. She checked all her body parts to make sure they were O.K. and they seemed to be O.K. A vehicle came by from the east, then turned around to help her. At least one more vehicle stopped to warn on-coming traffic. One of the drivers informed her that they had already called the ambulance and state patrol and told her not to move. So she layed back down on the tar. In a matter of minutes she saw a vehicle that was coming from the west hit her truck. She saw her Toyota start to spin towards her. Then she saw the head lights of the drunk drivers vehicle coming towards her, and she curled her body into a fetal postition. The first impact was a blow to the head. Then she felt something go over her. She felt like a bouncing tire. She landed face down in the snow in the ditch. She couldn't move except she could slightly move her head. Very soon, the ambulance and police were there then they took her to Northwest Medical Center's emergency room. Then she was transferred to Altru Hospital in Grand Forks.

Q. Did you like it at Altru?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you think this accident has changed your life forever?

A. Yes.

Q. Did the D. Driver leave the scene?

A. No.

Q. Was there any damage to the D. Drivers vehicle?

A. I don't know.

Q. Was there any damage to your vehicle?

A. A total loss.

Q. What were you thinking when you saw the D. Drivers vehicle coming at you?

A. "I'll never see my family again." I was not afraid of dying because I am firm in my faith.

Somebody Should Have Taught Him

I went to a birthday party but I remembered what you said.
You told me not to drink at all,
so I had a Sprite instead.
I felt proud of myself,
the way you said I would,
that I didn't choose to drink and drive, though some friends said I should.
I knew I made a healthy choice and your advice to me was right as the party finally ended and the kids drove out of sight.
I got into my own car,
sure to get home in one piece, never knowing what was coming, something I expected least.
Now I'm lying on the pavement.
I can hear the policeman say,
"The kid that causes this wreck was drunk."
His voice seems far away.
My own blood is all around me, as I try hard not to cry.
I can hear the paramedic say,
"This girl is going to die."
I'm sure the guy had no idea,
while he was flying high,
because he chose to drink and drive that I would have to die.
So why do people do it,
knowing that it ruins lives?
But now the paid is cutting me like a hundred stabbing knives.
Tell my sister not to be afraid,
tell Daddy to be brave, and when I go to heaven to put "Daddy's Girl" on my grave.
Someone should have taught him that it's wrong to drink and drive.
Maybe if his mom and dad had,
I'd still be alive.
My breath is getting shorter,
I'm really getting scared.
These are my final moments, and I'm so unprepared.
I wish that you could hold me,
Mom,
as I lie here and die.
I wish that I could say
I love you and good-bye.

Basketball tournament held

By Josh Evenson and Preston Peterson

On Saturday, February 28, 1998 the boys Bakcourt Basketball tournament was held. These are the results, the Pistons came in 6th, then it was the Lakers in 5th, Bucks in 4th, 76ers in 3rd, Spurs in 2nd, and the Timberwolves took 1st, winning the tournament.

After the tournament a banquet was held in the Franklin Middle School cafeteria. Everybody got a ribbon and a certificate. The 1st place players were awarded a gold medal, 2nd place received silver medals, and 3rd - 6th got bronze. Everybody got pizza, pop, Rice Krispie bars, and cookies. Then after that everybody went home.

This was a great way to end the season.

Pee Wee B-2 Hockey Action

By Ben Clark and Shawn Olson

The TRF Black Pee Wee B-2 team had a rough season. They had 8 wins and 20 losses. Frankly, they stunk. But when it counted in the district 16 tournament, they pulled it together. They beat East Grand Forks 3 to 5 to be the district champions with goalie Shawn Olson in net. They were going to be the first Pee Wee B-2 team from Thief River Falls to go to regional tournament. The tournament was held in Morris, MN. They beat their rival, the Detroit Lakes Lakers, who had previously beat Thief River Falls twice in the regular season, 2 to 5 to get third.

5th and 6th grade basketball playoffs

By Kayla Harris (#12 Knicks)
and Casey Nelson (#15 Heat)

On February 28, 1998 we had basketball playoffs at Franklin Middle School. Boys and girls basketball games started at 9 a.m. We're going to talk about the girls games. The first game was between the Heat and Jazz in the gym. The Heat won. The next game was at 10:15 a.m. in the multi-purpose room. This game was between the Supersonics and Magic, and the Magic won. The third game was at 11:30 a.m. in the multi-purpose. This game was between the Heat and Pacers. The Heat won, but it was a very close game. The coaches had been yelling at the referees. The fourth game was at 12:45 p.m. in the multi-purpose room. This game was between the Knicks and Magic. The Knicks won, and the refs had been a lot better than the third game referees. The fifth game was at 2:30 p.m. in the gym. This game was between the Supersonics and Jazz, and the Supersonics won. The sixth game was at 3:15 p.m. in the multi-purpose room. This game was between the Magic and Pacers, and the Magic won. It was a very close game.

The championship game was at 4:30 p.m. in the gym. This game was between the Knicks and the Heat and the Knicks won 36 to 32. The Knicks were down by a couple of points, and with about five minutes left in the fourth quarter, they tied it 24 to 24. Then, with a minute left, the Knicks dribbled down the court with the basketball. They set up a play called Macaroni and made a basket so that they were ahead by four. The Heat was terrified, but they still placed second, and the Knicks got first.

The standings are:
1st - Knicks; 2nd - Heat;
3rd - Magic; 4th - Pacers;
5th- Supersonics; 6th - Jazz

Winter sports end, spring sports to start soon

By Kendra Mooney
and Tana Lamm

Basketball for 5th & 6th graders ended on Saturday, February 28. The Knicks took first along with second Heat, third Magic, fourth Pacers, fifth Supersonics, and sixth Jazz. The team that won the most games over the season was the Pacers. The Pacers received trophies for this. Overall everyone played very well. For the boys, the Timberwolves took first and they received trophies for winning the most games over the whole season. The Spurs took second, 76ers third, Bucks fourth, Lakers fifth, and Pistons 6th. The leading scorers from each team were chosen to form a competitive traveling team.

Track is starting soon for 6th grade and up. Check with the activities office at Lincoln High School for further details. For the 6th, 7th, and 8th graders there is a Junior Varsity team and for the high school there is a Varsity team. Track includes field events and running events.

Hockey season will end for the middle school in two weeks. There was a District Tournament about two weeks ago. The only team from Thief River Falls who made it to Regionals was B2s who got third place in the Regionals.

Winning isn't everything

By Cami Hendrickson and Katie Majstoric

When girls and boys start sports most want to win, but some just want to have fun. Having fun is what sports should mostly be about.

Good sportsmanship is what makes sports fun! If you have good sportsmanship it's not about winning or losing. Sure, everyone likes to win, but whether you win or lose shake the other person's hand.

Not everyone can win. If you lose a game your still a winner for trying.

Improving you own capabilities is better than winning. Try hard and do your best then you'll always be a winner!

LHS students attend Close-Up

Twenty students from Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls, under the direction of teachers Charlie Comell and Jeffrey Loe, attended the Close Up Foundation Washington program March 22-28 in the Washington, DC area.

Students making the trip were Kelly Almquist, Trisha Eide, Ben Erickson, Elizabeth Goddard, Sarah Hagen, Kimberly Haugen, Alissa Hays, Julie Johnson, Jessica Kostrzewski, Jessica Krankkala, Jason Leach, Trevor Lee, Michael Morris, Christopher Munim, Bret Newton, Brent Rohl, Monica Schroeder, Stephanie Stamm, David Voecks and Eeva Young.

Lincoln's students were among 161 Minnesota high school students and teachers to attend the March 22-28 session. Other schools included Northfield, Eden Prairie, Saint Peter, Waubun, Deer River, Chisholm, Cloquet, Montgomery-Lonsdale and Norman County West at Halstad.

During their week in Washington the students attended seminars with members of Congress, met with a representative of the Washington press corps, lobbyists, government officials and political figures to learn more about the federal governmental process. Time was also set aside to tour the city, visit universities in the area and participate in cultural activities.

Local students were mixed with students from other areas of the country in workshop groups where they had daily discussions and activities focused on current events and on the governing process.

"We offer the students the opportunity to see Washington as a living city by taking them into the buildings they often see only on television and having them question law and policy-makers they may only read about," states Steve Janger, president of the nonprofit, nonpartisan Close Up Foundation.

"Through the experience we have found that they return home with an interest in both national and community affairs. They want to become involved. One of the main goals of the program is to show students that each person can have an impact on the community."

Since 1970 more than 475,000 students, teachers and others have taken part in Close Up Washington programs.

Friday, Thief River Falls Regional Airport took delivery of a new Aircraft Rescue Firefighting Vehicle (ARFV). The airport was faced with replacing a fire fighting vehicle at the airport because it no longer met requirements for the airport. The city then joined a group of cities (Grand Rapids, Bemidji and Hibbing) to save money by ordering several trucks. Public Works Director Ron Lindberg said they saved several thousands of dollars through this arrangement. The new fire truck can hold 1,500 gallons of water, 200 gallons of foam, and 500 pounds of dry chemical. It has a 585 horsepower Detroit diesel engine and was manufactured by E-One of Florida. The vehicle also came fully equipped, which included four sets of proximity suits and a generator. The total cost of the vehicle was $274,000, of which only 10 percent was the city's cost. Lindberg said this new truck will meet federal requirements well into the future, even if the airlines start flying larger airplanes into the airport. Pictured on the truck are the airport fire fighting crew: (from left) Irv Schmitke, Michael McLean, Matthew Roberg, and Mark Josephson. All four are fully trained and certified. They are also required to participate in continuing education.

TRF Council approves $1,000 donation to American Festival

Tuesday night the Thief River Falls council approved a $1,000 request to the American Festival. The council also approved the donation of services, such as electrical and water. The American Festival will be held June 27 and 28. Most of the activities will take place on Sunday, June 28.

In his presentation to the council, Paul Nelson, event organizer, explained that there were some major changes made to the festival this year. Originally, the festival has been held on the Fourth of July weekend. Nelson said organizers had a terrible time reserving people for that busy weekend, and keeping people in the community. Holding the event one week earlier will hopefully attract more people to the event. In addition, organizers were able to reserve the Lumberjack show, which was so popular a couple of years ago.

The date was also changed so that the events will be held on Sunday. Nelson said as they began to get organized they learned that a large celebration was planned in St. Hilaire. That event has secured the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band for a performance on Saturday, June 27. Holding American Festival activities on Sunday will dovetail nicely with that event. Events on Sunday also include a parade.

Construction on a new power line in Thief River Falls will begin this summer. Harvey Gahbert of Minnkota Power Cooperative explained that new line will be constructed from Oslo to Thief River Falls in the summer of 1999. The new line will connect to a new 115 kv substation, already named the John T. Anderson substation. As a result of these additions, there needs to be some changes to lines within Thief River Falls. Those changes will take place this summer. Changes will include new higher poles, which will be closer together and carry stronger lines.

The council later approved a conditional use permit to construct the new substation and for a 115 kv transmission line upgrade. Essential services, such as the proposed 115 kv electrical transmission line, are considered to be conditional uses in residential districts.

Tommy Butler, MMUA safety coordinator, presented information about the AWAIR Safety Program for the City of Thief River Falls. The city already participates in the program. Following the presentation, the council approved an update to the program. The program is implemented by a city committee and involves monthly meetings, reviews of injuries, inspections and discussion of safety issues. All records are kept and maintained by the city. This program is used by 80 cities in the State of Minnesota.

The council approved a conditional use permit by Les's Sanitation to use an existing building located at 1414 Highway 59 and 1 West for the storage of their garbage trucks and for a future office addition. There would be no outdoor storage of any type on the property at this time. Dumpsters will be stored at a different location.

The council approved a proposed option to purchase agreement with Jobs Inc. for the Gilbert Industrial Park. According to the agreement, Jobs Inc. will finance the sewer and water to the property. In return, they will have first right of refusal.

The council authorized execution of an agreement with the State of Minnesota. The resolution makes it

Farm Family of the Year for Pennington county, Clayton and Inez Mathson of Thief River Falls, received recognition March 19 in Minneapolis. Pictured from left are Phil Larsen, Associate Dean of the College of Agricultural Food and Environmental Sciences; Clayton and Inez Mathson; Van Swenson, Pennington county extension educator; and Katherine Fennelly, Dean and Director of the University of Minnesota Extension Service.

Mathsons honored as Farm Family

Clayton and Inez Mathson receive award for Pennington Co.

Clayton and Inez Mathson of rural Thief River Falls were recognized as Pennington county honorees at the University of Minnesota's 18th annual Family Farm Recognition Program Thursday, March 19, in Minneapolis.

The annual salute to Minnesota agriculture is jointly sponsored by the university's College of Agricultural, Food and Environmental Sciences, the University of Minnesota Extension Service and the Minnesota Agricultural Experiment Station. It salutes outstanding farm couples, families and individuals from across the state for their contributions to both agriculture and their communities.

Honorees are nominated for the award by local county extension staff and agricultural leaders. This year, 90 families and individuals representing 72 counties were recognized by the university, including 10 honorees for contributions to new initiatives in agriculture.

The Mathson farm has been the site of a number of different agricultural enterprises involving livestock and crops. When the couple was farming with Clayton's parents, the focus was on dairy. During the early 1980s Clayton and Inez were milking as many as 100 cows.

During the 1990s the dairy herd was replaced with around 600 Angus crossbred beef cattle. Now the semi-retired couple has sold the cattle and concentrates on 650 acres of hay and 170 acres of wheat.

Both also work part-time off the farm, Clayton as a school bus driver and Inez as secretary of their church in Thief River Falls.

The couple's eldest son, Bruce, is part of the farming partnership. The other four children—Brenda, Clair, Chris and Brian—have grown up and moved off the farm.

When not working or spending time with family, Clayton and Inez have been active in their church where he serves on the church council and she is president of the WELCA. Clayton has also served 35 years as a Rocksbury township supervisor.

Armed robber pleads guilty

Monday afternoon, Michael George Guillemette, 37, Thief River Falls, pled guilty to armed robbery in the first degree and burglary in the first degree. It was his first appearance in a Ninth District courtroom in Pennington County on the charge of robbery, which stems from the Petro Pumper robbery last week, and a burglary which took place in late February.

After listening to Guillemette recount what happened during each incident, Ninth District Judge Dennis Murphy accepted Guillemette's plea. Guillemette was represented by Michael LaCoursiere. Although there was no plea agreement prior to the court hearing, two assault charges against Guillemette, which also stemmed from the robbery were dismissed.

Judge Murphy ordered a pre-sentence investigation. Guillemette is being held pending sentencing.

Charges have also been filed against Rory Glenn Wallestad, 31, Thief River Falls. Charges could be filed against a third individual.

Pennington County Sheriff Gerald Moe reported Monday morning that through investigation they had learned that Guillemette had acted alone in the actual robbery. He also said Guillemette had admitted to the robbery.

Guillemette was arrested Friday afternoon following an intensive investigation involving many people. Sheriff Moe said hard work by two agents of the Bureau of Criminal Apprehension, the Thief River Falls Police department, the Sheriff's department and numerous individuals led to the arrest in less than 48 hours after the actual robbery. Sheriff Moe said security tapes from Petro Pumper and Westside Motors helped identify the robber and the car used. He explained that Westside Motors has a security camera focused on their lot and the highway. By looking at tapes they were able to identify the vehicle used by Guillemette.

TRF man pleads guilty to robbery warrant was executed at a residence in the 400 block of North State Friday afternoon. A light brown Oldsmobile Cutlass, allegedly used in the robbery, was impounded. Other evidence seized included parts of a snowmobile suit burned in a barrel stove in the garage. Sheriff Moe said they also recovered $233. A total amount lost in the robbery was listed as only over $500 and under $2,500. In court Monday, Guillemette said the total amount was about $650. He said he gave some of the money away, and while he was asleep someone took the rest of the money.

Early in the investigation, Moe had said that four suspects had been questioned in connection with the robbery. Moe said Monday that those individuals had nothing to do with the robbery.

Wallestad has been charged with conspiracy to commit first degree armed robbery — and after Guillemette's testimony Monday — aiding in aggravated robbery. In his hearing Monday, Wallestad did not enter a plea. The next hearing on the matter was scheduled for 9 a.m. Monday, April 6. Bond was set at $30,000 cash or a $70,000 surety bond.

Class helps area seniors adjust to blindness

by Kathi Carlson
The Times Reporter

Feeling isolated is one of the largest elements facing an older person who is losing his or her sight. The individual feels as if he or she is the only one. Overcoming those lonely feelings are just one of the many advantages of participating in the Older Person Blind Project, a program of the State Services for the Blind and Visually Impaired (SSB).

Four area residents made up Thief River Falls' first Adjustment to Blindness group, and last week they celebrated the completion of Classes for Independence, a 12-week program designed to teach participants alternatives to sight.

Because visually impaired older people can be easy targets for various types of crime, participants chose to be identified by first names only for this story.

Olga, Mabel, Florence and Edwin all have macular degeneration. The condition occurs when newly formed blood vessels leak into the eye and is the leading cause of central vision loss among older people. There is no way to recover vision lost to macular degeneration.

For 12 weeks, the group met on Fridays at Redeemer Lutheran Church. The sessions dealt with many areas of daily living such us cooking and cleaning. Participants learned ways of marking items with rubber bands or safety pins so that they are able to find and identify them. They gained knowledge about how to use taped books and studied beginning Braille.

Group members played games and had fun together, discovering that while they may be without vision, they do not need to be without enjoyment in their lives. They became aware of the various leisure and recreational activities available to them.

Participants learned about ways of getting around the community, how to shop, take care of their business and use a white cane.

Everything the participants learned to do, they learned while wearing blindfolds.

During one of the sessions, the foursome enjoyed a presentation by guest speaker Terri Cuppett who has been blind since shortly after birth. The group shared their own ideas as well as the ideas of others about ways of coping without sight.

Their rehabilitative Instructor was Diane Grundyson of McIntosh. One of the women commented about how grateful she was to Diane. "One of the greatest things about the class," she said, "was how Diane instilled a feeling of self-worth in us." The other class participants chimed in in agreement.

Friday, March 27 was the group's last official meeting, and they celebrated the completion of the course with lunch and an informal graduation ceremony at the Evergreen Eating Emporium. Grundyson and class participants were joined by family and friends as well as Rehabilitation Counselor Cheryl Chappuis from the office of Minnesota State Services for the Blind in Bemidji and Judy Sanders, Older Blind Project coordinator for the SSB in St. Paul.

Members of Thief River Falls' first Adjustment to Blindness group celebrated the end of their participation in "Classes for Independence" with a luncheon and informal graduation ceremony at the Evergreen Eating Emporium recently. The classes were held for 12 weeks and are designed to teach participants alternatives to sight. The program and classes are sponsored by the Minnesota State Services for the Blind and Visually Impaired. Because of privacy issues, participants chose to be identified by their first names only. Pictured from left are Mabel, Edwin, Florence, class Instructor Diane Grundyson and Olga.

The program included an overview of the classes by Grundyson and comments about the program from Chappuis and Sanders. Sanders, who is blind, offered listeners more insight as to how to live and function successfully as a sightless person.

Diane presented each of her students with a yellow rose, a diploma and a warm hug. She also gave them each a personalized achievement certificate that reflected on the time they spent together. Mable is the "Recipe Enthusiast," anxious to share recipes and cooking ideas. Olga was noted as the "Straight Walker." Diane labeled Florence as the "Best Teacher I've Ever Had as a Student," and Edwin was recognized as being "Speedy." Unable to attend a couple of the classes, he had studied on his own and jumped ahead of the others.

Chappuis asked each of the class members to share a favorite memory from the class or note something special that they learned.

Olga found the numerous ways they had learned to mark their possessions so that they could find them as the most valuable thing that she had learned. Florence agreed with Olga and noted also how special it had been to her to begin to learn Braille. Mable is a seamstress, and, thanks to the class, can once again thread a needle. Edwin couldn't come up with a specific item to share but enthusiastically stated that everything he had learned was of value to him.

Olga, Florence and Edwin live in their own homes while Florence lives in an apartment complex. Each feels differently about his or her loss of vision and how it affected his or her life. Edwin had to give up his driver's license a year ago and misses the freedom the license afforded him. Mable felt very isolated and was, at first, hesitant to participate in the group. The class rid participants of those feelings of isolation and prepared them to go forward in life with more confidence. As Edwin said, "You do what you've got to do."

Each of them is unique in their situations and the choices that they make for themselves. The classes, however, brought them together and gave them the opportunity to recognize their common bond and realize that they are not alone. The second component of the Older Blind Project, Friends for Life, gives participants the opportunity to stay in touch with other successful blind persons who reinforce what they learned in the classes. Often, class graduates form their own support groups.

Future availability of the program in the Thief River Falls area will be based on interest and need. If you have significant vision loss and are 55 years of age or older, you are eligible to participate in the program. The cost of the program is covered by SSB through a grant from the U.S. Department of Education, Rehabilitation Services Administration.

The SSB has a trained group of teachers throughout the state with whom it contracts for instruction. While some are private business people, others work for nonprofit facilities with experience in teaching alternative skills to blind persons.

To determine eligibility or obtain more information, contact State Services for the Blind Counselor Cheryl Chappuis at 1-888-234-1257.

A very important activity the group took part in was the writing of its own "10 Commandments for Dealing with Blindness." Copies were distributed at its last meeting. These are the things that Edwin, Olga, Mabel and Florence want their family members and friends to remember:

- Remember we continue to be pretty normal people.
- Remember we don't have to be feared.
- Remember to give your name to me so that you may be recognized. That means so much!
- We prefer patience to pity.
- We prefer information to silence.
- We enjoy being included and involved in conversation.
- An offer of help is welcome.
- Please inform us when our possessions are moved.
- Please inform me when something is out of place (i.e. collar).
- Please continue to be my friend.

The Case Between Husbands and Dogs or Things A Real Dog Wouldn't Do

After three weeks of dog obedience school, and twenty-one days of patient, but futile, practice, I have admitted defeat and let our German Shepherd, Maggie, go free. Returning home from class Tuesday night, I hung up her training leash for good. "No more," I told her. "You're a great dog, but this experience has been a total waste of time. Go chase a squirrel."

She seemed fine with my decision, and then she was gone.

I hung up my coat in the entryway and walked into the kitchen.

"How did the class go?" my husband asked.

I looked at the dirty dishes on the table, stove and counter. "About as well as Francis did cleaning up after dinner," I told him, collapsing into a chair.

"What?"

I gestured to the mess in the kitchen. "I said, it went about as well as Francis did cleaning up after dinner!"

"Huh?"

"It didn't!!" I explained miserably, recalling the class with despair. "I told the dog to sit! She didn't. I told her to heel! She didn't. I told her, "Stay!" and she pretended not to understand! Only when I told her it was time to go home, did she do it, and then she raced to the car and waited for me to open the door."

"You're telling me it didn't go well," he said.

"No!" I corrected him. "I'm telling you it didn't happen at all! That dog wouldn't do a thing I told her to do! I can no more train a dog to sit and stay, than I can train our 13-year-old to wash the dinner dishes. No one takes me seriously! Not the dog, not our daughter, not our sons, not –"

I looked him squarely in the face. "I have to go change my clothes."

He followed me up the stairs to the bedroom. "Well, I listen to you!" he said.

"Listen! Whose talking about listening! It's doing! Nobody does what I tell them to do!"

He followed me into the bedroom. "I do what you tell me to do."

I bent down and picked up a pile of dirty clothes blocking the closet door. "Hmm, these look like yours..."

"New habits take time!" he replied.

"So you've told me!" I said, tossing the clothes into a basket. "And, after 14 years, I see some are going to take longer than others."

"Well, what can you expect from an old dog?" he asked.

I shook my head and sighed. "Which brings us back to the other dog — the real one, the more honest one — who, like you, has decided she's not going to do what she's told, so, I've decided not to force these classes anymore."

His eyes lit up.

"But, who, unlike you," I said, pulling another dirty sock out from under the bed, "never promised me anything in the first place! As ideas go, this one was my strictly mine, she just couldn't comply."

"Sounds like there's a lesson there somewhere!" he was quick to suggest.

"I thought so, too" I agreed. "Maybe — A Real Dog Wouldn't Make Promises it Didn't Intend To Keep!

"Or, this! This one's good! — In A Case Between Husbands and Dogs (And Daughters, Too), Expect A Dog To Tell You The Truth, While The Others Play You For A Fool!"

"Direct hit!" he cried. "But that last one's not true! I don't think you're a fool."

"Then you're going to pick up your clothes!"

"Sure," he said. "Or, I'll let you!

Kim Ditz-Willis is one of many volunteers who have assisted Challenger Kindergarten students at learning centers as they've studied wood and magnets through hands-on activities. Children have stained, nailed and sanded wood and made mock plywood and particle board. They have played games with magnets, explored magnetic fields, witnessed the strength of various magnets and learned what is and what is not magnetic. The hand lense will be the topic of future activities.

Parenting class for divorcing couples to be held in TRF

"Parents Forever," a parent education program for divorcing parents, will be held at the Northwest Service Cooperative in Thief River Falls for five consecutive Thursdays from 7 to 9 p.m. beginning April 9 and continuing through May 7.

As of January 1, 1998, a new state mandate requires divorcing couples who have conflict regarding minor children to attend a parent education program. The purpose of the program is to serve as an early intervention mechanism to encourage cooperation between parents and reduce adversarial behavior and conflict. Its goal is to educate parents about the impact divorce has on children and families, teach them positive communication techniques, methods for preventing visitation conflicts and dispute resolution options and to encourage parents to always place the best interests of the children above what they may perceive as their own "rights."

Children are often affected for many years by the decisions divorcing parents make during the initial legal phases of divorce. The "Parents Forever" sessions will provide divorcing couples with information they need to make decisions that will minimize the stress of transition on the entire family. Topics for the sessions include, "Impact of Divorce on Adults," "Impact of Divorce on Children," Money issues in Divorce," "Legal Issues and Role of Mediation," and "Pathways to a New Life," which will include adjustment to a single parent household, possible new relationships and step families. Classes are taught by area professionals with training or experience in family life education, counseling, child welfare and related fields.

The area program is being coordinated by the District Court, University of Minnesota Extension Service and Northwest Service Cooperative with assistance from representatives of the Family Preservation Project, Early Childhood & Family Education, school counselors, clergy, attorneys, divorce mediators, the Thief River Falls Police Department, Violence Intervention Project, Crossroads, Pennington County Social Services and others.

Cost of the fives sessions is $50 per person, with a $35 refundable book fee. Registration forms are available from area law firms, clergy, court administrators and county extension offices. Participants are asked to register through their county court administrator, and to be the most effective and useful, parents are asked to enroll in the course as early in the divorce process as possible. The course is open to those in the process of divorce, contemplating divorce or who have been divorced for some time and are seeking assistance for themselves and their children.

The Northwest Service Cooperative is located at 114 West 1st Street. For more information about the course, call Gleniee Johnson at the Pennington County Extension Office, 683-7030 or 1-800-681-2116

SPEAKING OF . . .

Sherry LaCoursiere

...What Lesson Can We Learn From This?

The shootings of school children and teachers in Jonesboro, Arkansas, last week have brought out a number of interesting speculations as to child violence. Why would an 11-year-old boy and 13-year-old boy dress in camouflage outfits and tote several firearms to an area outside the school where they would lie in wait in order to kill classmates and teachers?

There is no doubt they planned to kill. The rifles, shotguns and pistols they equipped themselves with, as well as the ammunition, indicated definite killing power. If the guns could kill an animal, they could kill a human. Indications are that they also planned to flee, with a ready van full of camping equipment. What did they plan to do? Shoot, kill and run to hide out in the woods? What was in their minds? What type of events led to this incident? How can it be prevented from happening again in other places?

We have heard that the violence in television and movies have helped to precipitate child violence. Other contributing factors we have heard are music and reading materials, the ease of obtaining and prevalence of firearms in our culture, lack of parental guidance, working mothers and fathers, poor or no family moral values, overworked teachers and underfunded schools, a poor legal system.

One can't help but think that a combination of all of the above has contributed to the actions of today's youth. In other words, if this is a test, "all of the above" should be marked.

Oh, yes, special interest groups are appearing on every talk show around, saying, "Oh, no, it isn't our fault. It's somebody else's fault." "No, it isn't television violence." "No, it isn't the blood and gore in movies." Oh, no, it isn't the music – or the books or the newspapers or the magazines." "It isn't because of the guns in homes or the guns that are so easy to buy." "It isn't because both parents are working." "It isn't because families don't go to church anymore." "It isn't because there are too many students and not enough teachers or because schools can't afford to hire psychologists." "It isn't because young people are rarely disciplined by the court system and commit misdemeanors over and over again without being sentenced to any degree.

Heaven forbid that less violence be portrayed in any of the media. It might make people stop spending their money on them. Heaven forbid that gun controls become tighter and owners be forced to register the guns they have. It might step on our Constitutional rights. Heaven forbid that employers be forced to pay a living wage to employees so that both parents don't have to work to make a decent living and mothers (or fathers) can be home for their kids. Heaven forbid that families attend church. It might get them involved. Heaven forbid that teachers are paid decent salaries and don't have to teach over-capacity classes so that the best people will become teachers and they will be able to actually know each student and might nip a problem in the bud. Heaven forbid that schools have enough money to hire psychologists and other professionals who can help kids in need. Heaven forbid that children are punished for crimes. It might damage their little psyches.

People say that child violence has been around all along and this acting out is nothing new. I think they're wrong. Of course children were just as capable of violence in the olden days as they are now, but they were prevented from acting upon it. Preventions came from home, from school, from church, from the community and from fear of punishment. When such deterrences are removed, as they are now, violence erupts. Maybe we need to go backward in order to move forward.

"Cooking for one or two — Lucky you" offered

Preparing a meal for a family or guests often brings a sense of accomplishment, but making a lunch or dinner you'll be eating alone can seem like a big effort with small reward. If you have just yourself and maybe one other person to feed, you may feel it isn't worth the time and trouble to put forth a lot of effort into food preparation. This is unfortunate because it doesn't have to be difficult or time consuming to cook delicious healthy meals. Eating well brings its rewards — enjoyment, good health, and reduced risk of diseases such as cancer and heart disease.

Pennington County Extension Home Study Groups will be discussing these issues in their April lesson, "Cooking for One or Two — Lucky You!" The leader training session will be held on Friday, April 3, at 1:30 p.m. in the courthouse meeting room. Marshall County Program Coordinator Linda Gornowicz will be presenting the lesson.

Whether you are a young single just venturing out on your own, a new bride beginning to manage your new home, a couple who finds themselves in the "empty next", or a widow or widower, this lesson will help you with ideas and tips for meal preparation for your situation. We will also share pointers in management, shopping tips, and recipes geared for one or two people that make meal preparation fun.

Good nutrition is important for people of all ages. It takes just a few minutes each week to plan your meals and meal strategies. Come join us and get some fresh ideas. There is no cost for the session and the presentation is open to the public.

Clark, Kopari on dean's list at Joshua Clark, a sophomore in engineering technology and Paul Kopari, a freshman in mechanical engineering, have been named to the winter quarter dean's list at Michigan Technological University at Houghton, MI.

The list included 1,091 students who earned a grade point average of 3.5 or higher. Clark was among 235 students with a 4.00 (straight A) average.

Pastor Marcia Sylvester presented Boy Scouts Peter Ihle (left) and Matthew Dimich with their "God & Church" awards at a recent service at Redeemer Lutheran Church. To qualify for the award, scouts have participated in a series of meetings and completed a number of community service hours, learning about how the church relates to their lives. Peter and Matthew are members of Troop 59 of Zion Lutheran Church. Jim Hoks is the Scoutmaster. Assistant Scoutmasters are Tom Dimich, Roger Ness and Gary Johnson.

Placing third out of 36 teams in Marketing Product Plan at the state DECA meet recently were Stephanie Stanina, Mandy Inglis, Brent Rohl and Dustin Carlson of Lincoln High School. TIMES FOR TODDLERS

ACTIVITIES

Rattling Rainsticks

Fascinated youngsters are sure to shake this rainstick in hopes that it will summon a rainstorm.

To help your child make one, cut two cardboard circles from Con-Tact covering that are slightly larger in diameter than the ends of a cardboard tube. Place one of the circles over the end of the tube. Secure the covering over the end of the tube, reinforcing the ends with tape if necessary.

Fill the tube with several large spoonfuls of uncooked rice. Now push several straight pins through the cardboard tube into its center (the more pins, the better the rattle). Cover the other end of the tube with the other circle of Con-Tact and secure it with tape if necessary.

Cover the length of the tube with Con-Tact covering. Give the rainstick a shake, then find an umbrella!

Signs of Spring

Signs of spring are all around us! Children love to explore and learn about the wonders of nature. The arrival of spring is an excellent opportunity to introduce youngsters to the renewal of life going on all around them.

On a nice day, take a walking tour of your yard or neighborhood. Keep a watchful eye for the changes taking place. Point them out and explain what's happening. For example, warmer temperatures mean trees and bushes begin to bud. Look at the ground for signs of budding flowers. Watch in the next few days to see what changes take place.

Days are getting longer and birds are returning from their winter homes and will soon be looking for new homes. Can you see any birds at work? Continue to watch for spring changes over the next few weeks.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Talk about the changes you see. Check every couple of days to see what's happening.

ON THE OTHER HAND

Jenna Tsukichi, Lincoln High School

Last Friday I attended the writers conference in Grand Forks. The theme of the conference was "The Use of History." On the way there, the trip was full of talking and bumps. I also distinctly remember talking about last year's writers conference and eating cookies. We finally reached Grand Forks and headed straight for the student union, where the conference was being held. We made it just as the noon panel was beginning. Writers on Friday's panel were Susan Yuzna, a poet, Toi Derricotte, a poet; John Hanson, a film director, and August Wilson, a playwright. Since the theme of the conference was history and genre, some of the authors on Friday's noon panel shared memories and ideas that helped to inspire their stories.

As most of you who read this column already know, I'm adopted. The historical emphasis made an impact on me because I have been working on a scholarship essay for the past month and a half. The scholarship is made available to me because my grandfather is a Korean War Veteran.

My heritage often comes up in my writing, and it was interesting to listen to these writers talking about their heritage. For example, August Wilson spoke at Friday night's Presidential Lecture. He read pieces from some of his plays, Fences and Jitney. One cutting was about a boy who wanted to play sports, but his father believed he wouldn't amount to anything because he was black. The whites would just exploit him. While listening to Wilson's plays, one could see how wonderfully he used his heritage in the story. No wonder he has won the Pulitzer Prize.

Another author that brought up her heritage was Toi Derricotte. At one point, she mentioned how her college professor told her he didn't use black writers in his class because he didn't want to "sink that low." That incident took place in 1984. Although it has planted seed of doubt about her writing ability, she still continues to write.

Using memories, including the painful ones, is a good way to write a story, a poem, or an essay. One author, Arnost Lustig, has written a book about a girl who is in a concentration camp. She is alone, and she ends up becoming a prostitute to get by. Our booklets on the authors told us that Lustig is a survivor of the holocaust. It's really no surprise, then, that he wrote a story about someone in the holocaust.

After the noon panel, we went to lunch. Then we went back and went for the three o'clock session with John Hanson. Hanson is a film maker from North Dakota who has won several awards for his first movie, "Northern Lights." He is presently working on a movie version of Ole Rolvaag's Giants in the Earth. His biggest problem is getting the four and a half million dollars to start.

At eight o'clock, we went to the Chester Fritz Auditorium to hear August Wilson gave his presentation. He told us a little about himself, and then he read from his plays. The evening session got done around 9:15, and we headed back to Thief River Falls.

On the way home, we spent most of the ride talking about the Sherack Ghost and other ghost stories. History has it that people who pass there at night sometimes have car troubles, and a hitch hiker appears. A couple years ago, a reporter from the Grand Forks Herald went out to this cemetery on Halloween, but nothing happened. Did the stores scare me? Let's just say on the way home, I turned the music up really loud to keep my mind off the ghost stories - a "Use of History" I'd like to forget.

Minnesotan's volunteer efforts worth $4.9 billion

"The face of Minnesota would be dramatically different without volunteer service," said Bonnie Esposito, director of the Minnesota Office of Citizenship and Volunteer Services (MOCVS). "From cleaning our highways to deciding public policy, volunteers make the quality of life in our state among the highest in the nation." Minnesotans give more of their time and money than any other state. According to a recent survey conducted by the University of Minnesota Research Center, 63 percent of Minnesotans volunteer their time — the national average is 48 percent according to the Gallup Survey.

More than two million Minnesotans serve their communities in positive and significant ways through volunteering. To honor this tremendous effort, Governor Arne H. Carlson has proclaimed April 19-25 as Minnesota Volunteer Recognition Week. This week coincides with the 25th annual National Volunteer Week. This year's theme: "Volunteers, Building Stronger Communities," highlights the success of citizen initiatives that strengthen and improve communities throughout the state.

"Many more people are stepping forward to make a real difference in the lives of our youth, following the Presidents Summit for Americans' Future held a year ago in Philadelphia," said Donna Gillen, director of the Minnesota Alliance with Youth — Fulfilling America's Promise. To help meet the goals of the Summit, over two hundred communities are engaged in making their towns and neighborhoods "Communities of Promise." They are involving youth in mentor programs, tutoring at shelters for abused women and their families and providing quality support at child-care centers. People of all ages volunteer — they paint homes for senior citizens, distribute food through food shelves, plant community gardens and pick up debris along highways.

According to MOCVS of the Department of Administration, the following facts highlight volunteer contributions: 63 percent of adults in Minnesota volunteer in their communities; the estimated annual monetary value of volunteer service in Minnesota is $4.9 billion; 61 percent of youth, age 12 to 17 years of age, provide an average of 3.2 hours of service per week; people of all ages contribute through non-profit agencies, communities of faith, corporations and businesses, schools, grassroots organizations, civic groups and numerous other associations to build healthier communities.

This commitment and dedication is having an important impact in our neighborhoods and communities throughout Minnesota. Volunteers serve from the heart with a strong sense of community loyalty and sincerity in reaching out to those in need.

Warroad teacher recipient of grant

Minnesota Education Association's Foundation for Excellence in Teaching and Learning recently announced its 1998 classroom grants. Grants totaling $70,000 went to 34 different projects around the state. One of the recipients was Lori Schaible of Warroad who was awarded $3,000 for her "Happy Birthday, Baby!" project.

Happy Birthday, Baby! is a pilot collaboration among Warroad teachers that sends each one through five-year-old child in the district a book on his or her birthday. Along with the gift, parents receive suggestions on selecting books for preschoolers and tips on reading with children. To encourage families to use the Warroad Public Library, the gift also includes a coupon for a monthly book drawing at the library. According to Schaible, "The Warroad Reading Committee knows that preschoolers who have been read to come to school with better speaking and listening vocabularies, better attention spans and better phonemic awareness."

Schaible is the daughter of LeMoyne and Janice Brandon of Greenbush and a graduate of Greenbush High School.

Four Franklin students have poems published

Four students from Thief River Falls will have their poems published in the Anthology of Poetry by Young Americans, according to Leslie Nordheim, instructor at Franklin middle school.

"This publication receives entries from all 50 states," she said. "The publishers of the anthology believe it is important to foster the development and creative expression in young people."

One of the local students whose poem was selected, Taryn Pream, is being published in the book for a second time. She is now a freshman at Lincoln high school and is the daughter of Jon and Robyn Pream.

Others whose poems were selected for publication are seventh grader Kate Levinson, daughter of Steven and Teresa Levinson and eighth graders Brittany Larson, daughter of Mark and Jean Larson and Kay Lynn Steiger, daughter of Lois Steiger.

Poems selected for publication include the following:

POPULAR FRUIT
by Taryn Pream

I reside in New York
Surrounded by friends on all sides
I don't like to converse
With the lower class
I am chosen to be the best—
Everyone likes me I think
I'm delicately touched, not bruised
And I am never poked
Unlike the homeless asparagus
Or the unpopular alfalfa
But why should I?
Apples, peaches, pears, they are my friends
I have no time for the coconut
Only for those who are like me
The artichoke wants to be like me
But I don't really think so
Watermelon's just an in-betweenie
Like kiwi—
Friends but not close like the others
Peppers are held in high priority
They talk to no one but themselves
Fine with me
Who cares who bosses us around
As long as we aren't separated we'll be okay
My home's a grocery store
But I don't converse with the lower class fruits
They are useless—no one listens to them
We have all the good ideas, right?
Why should we bother with the ones who are less popular than we are?
For we are the popular fruit
And we live in New York

UNTITLED
by Kate R. Levinson

As I run
my mind is cleared of things
loved and things feared
With each pounding step
my mind is tossed
With each pounding step
a thought is lost
I feel peaceful
as I run
like my duty on earth is almost done
When I finally cross the finish line
I wait anxiously to hear my time
What matters is that I had fun
I wouldn't have been happier if I'd won because trophies and medals are only skin deep but the memories of that day
I'll forever keep

MISFIT
by Brittany Lorson

They sit.
Talking, but not talking to me.
Seeing, but not seeing me.
Giving, but not giving to me
Laughing, but not laughing with me
Whispering, but not whispering to me
I am there, but I am not there
I will never belong, yet I do
Should I go, or should I stay?
Will I be accepted anywhere?
Or am I a misfit?

MAJESTIC WHITE TIGER
by Kay Lynn Steiger

O Great White Tiger,
Creature of great mystery!
Why do you not reveal your secrets?
Teach us all that you know.

Great White Tiger,
You are one in a million;
Special in every way,
Set aside from the rest of your Race.

You are not quite from Earth,
But from somewhere else.
Some hunt you for your fair white coat,
And some think you can heal the sick.

Only you,
Great White Tiger,
Know

possible for the city to apply for funds to repair and replace the roof of the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center.

The council approved a memo of understanding covering the Thief River Falls flea market for 1998. The agreement is similar to ones approved in years past. It does, however, allow an extension of time. The events will be held at the fairgrounds.

An assessment of $4,398.40 will be removed from the 1994 Improvement Project Assessment roll. The assessment was to the U.S. Postal Service. Traditionally, they have not agreed to pay for assessments. The city did recover part of the original assessment of $5,108.40.

The council approved a resolution of support for Al Lamm, water department superintendent. Lamm is running for the position of section director with the American Water Works Association. If he is successful, his term of office would be from 1999 through 2002.

A low bid of $69,669 was approved as the low bid for a sewer jet truck. The wastewater department was expecting the cost of the truck to run around $100,000. They were very pleased with the bids. Due to a delay at manufacturing, the truck will probably not be delivered until February of next year.

Wastewater discharge permits for Land O'Lakes and Northern Pride are pending. The council approved the permits pending review of the final drafts and the city attorney's review. The permits were necessary to secure funding from the state for the improvements to the wastewater ponds.

The council approved a request for a no parking zone on the west side of the Best Western frontage road near the entrance to Highway 32.

The council approved the renewal of a three-year farm rental contract with Garret Reierson for 29 acres in New Solum township at $28 per acre from 1998-2000.

Revisions to the five-year Thief River Falls Airport Development Program were approved by the council. There was additional discussion about a cross-wind runway, which is included in the five-year plan.

A one-year renewal of the FBO Lease with Shefland Aviation was approved. The agreement includes a base rent increase of $50 per month and adds a one-cent fuel pumping surcharge. The lease would have expired on April 1.

The council approved a revised job description for the public works maintenance position and agreed to post the position.

In other business, the council: changing the bid opening date for the wastewater pond project to April 15; approved a salary progression raise for Mark Borsheim, CAD operator in the electric department; approved a permit to cross Highway 1 west of Oak Avenue with electrical service lines to serve the MECC project; approved a wastewater discharge permit for Arctic Cat Inc.; and approved an application for permission to have beer in Oakland Park for Dwight and Becky Johnson from 4:30 to 8:30 p.m. for a wedding and reception.

Invite citizens to advise on GEIS for animal agriculture

Members of the public have been invited to apply to serve on a citizen's committee to help guide a major statewide study on the impact of animal agriculture in Minnesota.

On March 19 the Minnesota Environmental Quality Board ordered a generic environmental impact statement on animal agriculture. This statewide, comprehensive study will review the economic, environmental and social impacts of the changing livestock industry in Minnesota.

At the same meeting, the board authorized the creation of a public advisory committee to help plan and carry out the study.

"Public input is crucial to the success of this study," said Rod Sando, commissioner of the state Department of Natural Resources and chair of the Environmental Quality Board.

The committee will advise the EQB on all phases of the generic environmental impact statement. One initial task of the committee will be to provide advice on which issues to include in the study and the extent to which each issue must be addressed.

Sando said the statewide study will provide objective, scientific information allowing Minnesotans on all sides of the issue to learn the facts, express their opinions and weigh future policy options. The broad scope of the GEIS process is uniquely suited to provide a full public examination of not only environmental issues but the equally important social and economic factors as well.

Governor Arne Carlson included funds for a GEIS on animal agriculture in this year's supplemental budget request to the legislature. It would be only the second such study done by the Environmental Quality Board. The first, on timber harvesting, has provided valuable information to environmental interests and the forest products industry and has facilitated continued dialogue among interests groups.

While the GEIS is being prepared, the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency will continue to develop new feedlot rules, enforce existing rules and review and permit new individual feedlot applications as usual. County and township oversight will also continue unaffected.

Support for funding the GEIS continues strong in the legislature. While controversy continues over other feedlot policies, the governor's funding request has moved through both the House and Senate with little opposition.

"This important process will begin early this summer and will rely on the citizen's advisory group and other public input to define the scope of the study," Sando said. "Public comment will also be requested on the results of the study. Broad public participation is crucial if the GEIS is to help set a course for the future of animal agriculture in Minnesota.

"It is my personal hope," Sando continued, "that many Minnesotans will participate in this study in the spirit in which it was initiated: a positive, thoughtful start on the long process of trying to resolve this important issue of statewide interest. I believe that through this effort Minnesota can chart a course which will provide for both a productive and profitable agricultural economy and a quality natural environment that all Minnesotans can enjoy."

To apply for consideration to serve on the committee, send your name, address, telephone number and relevant background and experience. Also list any organizations or interest groups you would represent. Applications must be received by April 24, 1998.

Send applications to GEIS Advisory Committee, Environmental Quality Board, 658 Cedar Street, St. Paul, MN 55155.

Study completed on how alcohol affects snowmobile drivers

Snowmobilers who drink and drive will discover sobering insights in a new driving and braking distance study conducted by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, Arctic Cat Inc., and others concerned about public safety.

The study showed alcohol's negative effect on operating ability and also shed light on the braking distance of snowmobiles both with and without traction devices, commonly called studs.

"No one was surprised that driving ability decreased as intoxication increased," said Capt. Jeff Thielen of the DNR Enforcement Division. "What was surprising, however, was the extent to which alcohol affected the driving ability of the two professional test drivers who were part of the four-person study. Test drivers literally fell off machines, rolled through stop signs, and exercised poor judgment at critical times. If alcohol can have this kind of effect on professionals who drive 30,000 miles a year, the implications for the average recreational rider are significant."

The study was conducted at the Minnesota Highway Safety Center at St. Cloud. Arctic Cat provided snowmobiles and professional drivers. "Without Arctic Cat's help, this study wouldn't have been possible," Thielen said. The study, using sophisticated computerized equipment, focused largely on three things: perception time, which is the time it takes a driver to notice a visual signal; reaction time, which is the time it takes to react to that signal; and stopping distance, which is the time it takes a snowmobile to come to a complete halt after the driver has noticed the signal. Perception times ranged from .48 to 1.62 seconds. Reaction times ranged from .42 to .67 of a second.

"We learned several important things from the intoxication study," said Bill Ruhr of the Minnesota Highway Safety Center. "One, we learned that alcohol slowed driver's reaction time by up to 20 percent and slowed perception times by more than 100 percent. Second, we learned study participants turned in their fastest lap times on the 1.4-mile course when they were moderately intoxicated. And three, we saw operator ability deteriorate as alcohol consumption increased. When the drivers were sober, they all had a smooth, even touch on the throttle and brake. That wasn't the case after they had been drinking. After a few drinks it was hard on the gas, hard on the brake. Real Herky-jerky. The thumb control just wasn't there."

Ruhr, an associate professor at St. Cloud State University, said split second differences in reaction and perception times may seem trivial to the ordinary operator, but have real world consequences. To prove his point, he used the example of a hazard that is one second away. A snowmobile traveling at 30 miles per hour will travel 45 feet per second, he said, meaning the driver has 45 feet in which to turn left, right, or brake.

An average perception and reaction time is three-fourths of a second, which translates into 33 feet of snowmobile travel. Then, since virtually everyone blinks when they are surprised, experts add another one-fifth of a second into the calculation, which is the average time of a blink, according to medical journals. This adds another nine feet of distance. "At this point the driver' total accumulated distance is 42 feet," said Ruhr. "That means the driver is virtually into the hazard before the brain has told the driver what to do."

Ruhr said one study participant with a blood alcohol content of .75 recorded a 1.62 second perception time and .5 second reaction time. At 30 miles per hour, he said, this driver would have traveled about one-third the length of a football field before hitting the brakes and then would have traveled at least another 70 feet before coming to a stop on most trail surfaces.

"Zero tolerance of alcohol" is important because alcohol inhibits the relay of information from the eye to the brain and from the brain to the hands," said Ruhr. "People who down a few drinks and say this won't affect their snowmobiling ability are wrong. Yes, that difference may be only a fraction of a second, but that can be the difference between kissing your kids good night and kissing you life goodbye."

Thielen, who monitored the 1.4-mile driving course test from an observation tower, was particularly struck by the fact that drivers recorded their fastest lap times when under the influence of alcohol but not legally intoxicated to the limit of .10. "The no-fear attitude came out after a few drinks," Thielen said of the three men and one woman who were told to drive as swiftly and safely as possible without endangering themselves. "They drove slower when they were sober and slower when they were drunk. But when they were in between, that's when we saw the most aggressive driving."

The second part of the study – the snowmobile braking distance study – was conducted in less than ideal conditions due to unusually warm winter weather. The study found there was very little difference in the braking distance between snowmobiles equipped with standard factory tracks and those with .875-inch traction studs. At 45 miles per hour, Thielen said, the standard track snowmobile traveled 151 feet before coming to a full stop, compared to 149 feet for the snowmobile with studs. At 30 miles per hour, he said, the standard track snowmobile traveled 84.5 feet compared to 85.5 feet for the snowmobile with studs.

Deceleration rates reflect the same information. At 45 miles per hour the standard track had a deceleration rate of 30.48 feet per second, while the studded track decelerated at 33.52 feet per second. At 30 miles per hour the standard track decelerated at a rate of 19.38 feet per second and the studded track was able to decelerate at a rate of 23.26 feet per second.

"We were unable to make comparisons on a variety of surfaces due to weather conditions," said Thielen. "These results reflect hard lock stops on one snow surface only. The study is not yet complete. This study only reflects straight line breaking distances, and not snowmobile handling characteristics with the different tracks Thielen noted. Further testing will be conducted next year as funding becomes available and snow conditions improve.

Greenbush to celebrate area snowmobile racers

Area Professional snowmobile racers will be honored Saturday, April 4, at the Annual Snowmobile Racers Appreciation night in Greenbush.

The evening will provide race fans with an opportunity to meet and visit with world class racers including: 1998 Eagle River World Champion Terry Wahl of Greenbush; two-time Formula One World Champion Dave Wahl of Greenbush; 1997 I-500 Winner Cory Davidson of Holt; Former Soo 500 Winner Troy Pierce of Greenbush; along with Keith Wojciechowski, Shannon Gust and many others. Those racers invited, who have yet to commit, include Team Arctic Riders Kirk Hibbert of Goodridge, Brian Sturgeon of Thief River Falls, and Brad Pake of Felton. Also invited is 1998 I-500 Winner Todd Wolff of Annandale who rides for Ski-Doo.

Along with autograph opportunities, video highlights from the past season will be shown. Race sleds, trophies and race related memorabilia will be on display.

The appreciation night will start with a social hour at 7 p.m. on Saturday, April 4 at Fine Tymes on the south edge of Greenbush. At 9 p.m. organizers will hold a racing memorabilia auction with dance music to follow.

Proceeds from the auction will benefit the Greenbush Town and Country Club, for continuing community promotion and development. All area snowmobile racers and race fans are invited to attend.

New snowmobile racing organization, WSA, launched

World Snowmobile Association (WSA), a new racing organization, will immediately begin providing a full-time commitment to the sport of snowmobile racing and its participants, starting with the formation of a new international snocross series, the Snocross World Wide championship."

WSA principals Joe Duncan and Scott O'Malley, along with ESPN2 Director of Programming Ron Semaio, also announced a multi-year agreement with ESPN Inc. for Snocross World Wide (SWW) to be featured on ESPN's Winter X Games, as well as full season coverage on ESPN, espn2 and ESPN International. They further announced the specific shows covering each event will be an unprecedented full hour in length, allowing for equally unprecedented in-depth coverage.

The series will include seven international races, and feature race sites with multi-year contracts to ensure continuity and a long-term commitment to ongoing enhancement of individual events as well as the series. There will also be regional and divisional series, and a four race Midwest Regional Series was announced for the 1998-99 season.

Areas the new series will be addressing include immediately implementing highly professional operational and safety standards, detailed rules, tech and enforcement, and vigorous promotion.

Semiao also confirmed WSA's involvement with the Winter X Games. "We want WSA to be our Winter X Games sport organizer for Snocross. Again, as discussed, we want that agreement to be multi-year, specifically a three-year term beginning with the 1999 Winter X Games and an ESPN option for an additional three years."

The introductory media conference, as well as participant meetings, will be held in Minneapolis on April 25, 1998. The full schedule will be released at that time, the series look and logos will be unveiled, and additional information will be made available.

Committee works on fishery at Red Lake

Several issues are being examined as components for successful recovery of the Red Lake fishery and future management of the Red Lake fish stocks, according to Dave Conner of the Red Lake Band DNR and Robert Strand of the fisheries division of the Minnesota DNR in Bemidji.

The Red Lake Fisheries Technical Committee held its third meeting March 12 in Bemidji. The committee includes representatives from the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, Red Lake DNR, Red Lake Fisheries Association, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Bureau of Indian Affairs and the University of Minnesota.

In a news release following the March 12 meeting, it was noted that the committee recognizes that substantial reductions in harvest will be necessary for recovery and long-term stability. Although all the components of long-term management have not been finalized, the consensus of the committee is that reductions in fish harvest need to occur as soon as possible to initiate the recovery phase.

The Red Lake Band closed its commercial fishery in 1997 to protect walleye stocks, but did allow for subsistence harvest of walleyes. In 1998 the Band anticipates a complete moratorium on walleye harvest. The Minnesota DNR has initiated the emergency rules process to implement a reduction in bag limit to two walleyes for the coming 1998 season.

For recovery of walleye to be successful, Conner and Strand state, strict enforcement of all fisheries regulations must occur. It is anticipated that Band and state enforcement personnel will soon convene to discuss a collaborative enforcement effort.

Band and state biologists have agreed to coordinate sampling regimes to monitor the recovering population so safe harvest levels can be determined and implemented.

All of Lower Red Lake and most of Upper Red Lake are within the boundaries of the Red Lake Indian Reservation and under control of the Red Lake Band of Chippewa. A portion of Upper Red Lake is outside the reservation boundary open to public fishing and controlled by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

When the officer arrived he noticed steam coming from the vehicle and the fire department was called as a precaution. Charges are pending against Steven Jerome Nelson, 32, Thief River Falls, for gross driving while intoxicated, refusal to test, possession of a small amount of marijuana, no proof of insurance on a motor vehicle. These reports include names of individuals charged, arrested or cited with various crimes and offenses by police, the sheriff's department or other law enforcement officials. Depending upon the circumstances of a case, charges can be, and sometimes are, changed or dropped by law enforcement officials or attorneys even before the case reaches court. Readers should also realize that under the American system of jurisprudence, individuals charged with crimes are innocent until proven guilty of those crimes in a court of law.

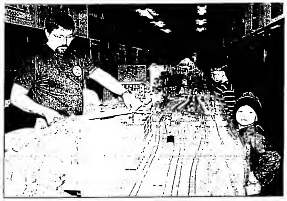
The SECOND FRONT

THE TIMES

Volume 87, Number 13 Wednesday, April 1, 1998



Big boys, little boys and everyone else enjoyed the model train display sponsored and set up by the Thief River Falls Model Railroad Club. The club put on the display during The Times 6th Annual Home, Sport and Family Show. Above, Keith Wheeler (left), club member, makes some adjustments to a display.

MN farm accidents, fatalities show decline

The year 1997 was the safest year in recorded history for Minnesota farm workers, according to the University of Minnesota Extension Service's Farm Safety and Health Program. Twenty people died in the farm workplace last year, a nearly 50 percent decrease from last year's total of 38. The 1997 figure was down 84 percent from the total of 126 deaths 30 years ago, in 1967.

"The trend over the past 10 years indicates that farm fatalities are dropping, even when we adjust for the declining number of Minnesota farms," says U of M farm safety and health specialist John Shutske. "Although 20 deaths a year is still far too many, we are encouraged by the overall trend."

The 1997 total included 19 males and one female, a 10-year-old girl who was stepped on by a horse in Anoka County. Three people were killed by tractor rollovers, and three others were run over by tractors or other types of farm equipment. Other causes of death included asphyxiation in manure pits, encounters with livestock, and falls.

Shutske says the trend toward fewer farm deaths and injuries will probably continue in the coming years. "Although we can't control the weather and other factors that contribute to unsafe farming conditions, farm machinery is definitely becoming safer," he says. Safety standards adopted in the 1970s and '80s, such as requirements for rollover protection devices and seatbelts on all new tractors, have helped. Older, unsafe tractors are gradually being replaced.

However, one trend has not changed. As in previous years, farm children in 1997 were often victims of farm "accidents." Sadly, five of the Minnesotans who died were children who were either watching farm work or carrying out chores themselves. These deaths were largely preventable, says Michele Schermann, U of M farm safety and health program coordinator.

"If someone is carrying a young child on a farm tractor or combine, something tragic can easily happen," says Schermann. "We've seen it too often. We also see too many children who are allowed to play or work unsupervised in dangerous areas, around deadly PTO shafts, around dangerous livestock, or in dangerous atmospheres such as silos, grain bins, and manure pits. Farming is dangerous work for adults. It is not child's play."

This summer, the U of M Extension Service will launch a new, community-based outreach initiative to help develop even more local programs for farmers and their families. "We will be looking for volunteer farm safety leaders to help coordinate and lead local outreach activities," says Schermann. "Here's an opportunity for farm community members to help bring the death and injury rate down even further."

Potato Growers select president

Duane W. Maatz has been named president of the Red River Valley Potato Growers Association. Maatz officially takes over his new position on April 15.

Maatz, Grand Forks, grew up on a small grains and livestock farm.

Thief River Falls Mayor Mark Borsheim (left) congratulates Steve Swenson, wastewater superintendent in Thief River Falls, upon receiving an award from the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency. The award is for outstanding operation and management of the city's wastewater ponds.

Farm safety volunteers needed

A new program to help make Minnesota farms more safe will be available to interested persons this summer. The Farm Safety and Health Program of the University of Minnesota Extension Service will work with rural community residents to set up local Farm Safety Leadership Teams.

"Your participation on one of these teams could make a big difference in the health of farm families," said Michele Schermann, U of M farm safety and health program coordinator.

Throughout the summer, the U of M program will be working with community leaders in four or five separate areas of the state. The objective will be to identify crucial issues, develop targeted solutions, and connect with state resources and funding.

Together, Farm Safety Leadership Team members might tackle projects such as: farm safety day camps for kids; training for health care professionals; farm worker training to reduce lost time and workers' compensation insurance costs; exhibits at local fairs and farm shows; farm health media campaigns.

Both volunteers and paid staff members are needed to make the Farm Safety Leadership Teams a success, says Schermann. Two paid staff members will be hired to coordinate the teams, starting in May. Coordinators must be proficient in the use of computers, possess community organization skills, and be familiar with rural health and safety issues.

For more information about the Farm Safety Leadership Teams or the coordinator positions, contact Schermann or John Shutske at 612-524-7444.

Minnesota hits record low in unemployment

Minnesota's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate was 2.5 percent in February, down from January's 2.7 percent. This February's rate is down significantly from last February's 3.4 percent unemployment rate.

The state's unadjusted unemployment rate in February was 3.0 percent, down from last month's 3.5 percent and a full percentage point below last February's unadjusted unemployment rate.

Not only are both rates record lows for February, but also the seasonally adjusted unemployment rate is the lowest rate on record. The unseasonably warm weather provided the helping hand needed to post these record-low numbers.

Eco-Warriors Short On Thought Processes

One would expect that persons with a deep commitment to environmental concerns would have studied their interest area and reached their conclusions based on experience and collection of scientific data. In far too many cases, one's expectations would be wrong.

There is nothing wrong with being concerned about the environment and how humans relate to it. Certainly an awareness based on scientific study and accumulated data is important as humans attempt to continue living on this planet which is at the same time fragile yet amazingly resilient.

Unfortunately, some people are too eager to identify with "causes" that may be projected as popular and adopt them without either study or knowledge. Such seems to be the case frequently in timber harvest controversies. Following is part of an article by Shawn Perich which first appeared in Outdoor News in mid-January and was reprinted in Timber Bulletin:

A few years ago I met some friends—and their friends—in Uptown Minneapolis. Fresh from the northwoods, I was still in the state of "culture shock" that occurs every time this jackpine savage arrives in the big city.

So I was unprepared for the young woman who, after introductions, said to me, "Don't you know that fish are going to be extinct in your lifetime?"

No, I replied, I didn't know that.

She said she belonged to a group of artists who used their art to further social and environmental causes. Their cause that week was the plight of Pacific salmon, because they'd learned spawning populations in some rivers were in trouble. The artists were making salmon postcards to save the fish.

Although she probably wouldn't have recognized a salmon if it was swimming in her bathtub, she assumed all fish, including Minnesota's bullheads and bluegills, were facing imminent extinction.

I tried to explain that I belonged to conservation groups like Trout Unlimited, got involved in environmental issues, wrote about the environment, practiced catch-and-release, and was very concerned about the future of fisheries in Minnesota and elsewhere.

That didn't matter to her. I was white, male and owned a fishing rod, therefore I was part of the problem. She said she'd "sicced" an animal rights organization on a children's fishing day just a few weeks earlier.

The real kicker came about an hour later, when she and her husband described how they planned to construct a moto-cross course on some property they'd inherited in the Wisconsin sand hills.

Incongruousness aside, they were nice people. We talked about their property for a bit. The I asked if she'd read A Sand County Almanac by Aldo Leopold, which is arguably the best environmental book of the 20th century.

She hadn't. So the next day I bought a copy and mailed it to her. When we met again a few months later, she thanked me. I asked if she read it. She hadn't.

I though about this woman last year, when I did a telephone interview with another young woman living in Uptown. This woman was an anonymous member of Earth First! and had just spent the weekend blockading a logging operation at the Little Alfie timber sale near Orr. She told me that she unequivocally believed that no one should ever cut down a pine tree anywhere in Minnesota.

I asked her if she knew anything about forestry. No, she replied, but she knew this guy in her theater group who'd read some books about it and he said that cutting down pine trees was wrong. That was good enough for her.

....Some environmentalists say they don't have anything against the local loggers. Their beef is with the U.S. Forest Service, the public agency that put the timber up for sale. But who gets hurt when Earth First! comes to town? The Forest Service? The timber corporations? Nope. The working stiffs of Orr are the ones who take it on the chin.

Do the Earth First! eco-warriors ever pause to think that perhaps some family won't be able to pay its Christmas bills or its mortgage because they were put out of work by the protest? Do they every wonder how families in Orr—many of whom have been sustained by the forest that surrounds them for generations—feel when someone tells them their way of life is wrong?

We've been told the protesters are peaceful, but on a community level, preventing people from going to work—with a blockade or a lawsuit—is an act of economic violence. While we all have a right of free speech, are the actions of Earth First! and environmental groups that support them any different than those of... other zealots within our society who so believe in their causes that they are willing to harm innocent people to make a point?

Confrontational protests capture media attention, but they also polarize people with conflicting views. When the protesters pack up and go home, people who are committed to resolving forest issues are left to pick up the pieces. Northern Minnesota residents already have a lot of scar tissue that makes them wary and distrustful of environmentalists. Regardless of what happens to the little Alfie pines, now they'll have more scars.

(The timber sale was upheld in federal court and at last report logging was proceeding after the unnecessary and costly delay caused by the protest and lawsuit.)

Beverage Industry Bluff Called In Demonstration

Assertions by the Minnesota Licensed Beverage Association (MLBA) that a 120-pound woman who went out to dinner and drank two six-ounce glasses of 13 percent wine in two hours would register .08 alcohol concentration went down the river recently during a demonstration at the State Capitol in St. Paul.

John Berglund of the MLBA had used the argument that reducing the state's illegal DWI alcohol concentration from .10 to .08 would unfairly penalize social drinkers. Berglund was invited to participate in the demonstration by bringing up to six women volunteers to participate. He declined to be present or to provide any volunteers.

Six women, including Sen. Jane Ranum of Minneapolis, were weighed in at the State Capitol and given an initial reading with an Intoxilizer operated by a forensic scientist from the Bureau of Criminal Apprehension. The women's weights ranged from 119 to 129 pounds. Each woman drank two glasses of wine over a two-hour period and was given a second Intoxilizer reading. The alcohol concentration readings ranged from .041 to .069.

Chief authors of the .08 bills in the House and Senate had requested the test which debunked the MLBA claim. It was to no avail, however, as the lower limit was defeated.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Alleluia!

Congratulations to the cast, choir and orchestra for the wonderful performance of The Song of Mark.

Special thanks go to the energetic Rob Burkel, director; the talented Jim Solsten, orchestra director; and dedicated Phyllis Dalager, choir director.

The musical performance of the life of Christ was so meaningful at this most sacred time of the year. We are fortunate to have so many gifted individuals in our community.

To The Editor:

I am writing to state my opinion on Sherry LaCoursiere's recent column, "... School Uniforms—Yes!" I strongly object to uniforms in the schools, especially public schools. Has anyone ever noticed that the people in favor of school uniforms tend to be the people who don't actually have to WEAR them? Adolescents would largely find school uniforms unbearable. Especially in teenage years, kids are trying to establish their individuality and, the last time I checked, we had freedom of dress in order to do this.

In order to dispel the myth that all children look alike, I offer this testimony: As I look around the cafeteria at lunch, there are few who are dressed vaguely alike, other than the fact most are wearing pants/jeans and shirts of some kind. Older people may think that "neatly and nicely" has gone "out the door," but times have changed, and just because some people think that baggy jeans and tighter tops are bad doesn't mean we don't dress "neatly and nicely." We just dress differently than they used to.

Now, school uniforms in big cities where gangs are a huge problem make schools safer places to be. However, in a town like Thief River Falls, school uniforms are unnecessary. The school district already has a minor dress code (i.e. no super-showy shirts; no clothing with profane, beer slogans, etc.). Besides, isn't it a decision between the parents and the kids what the kids wear? The district will overstep its bounds when it tells families what their children will wear. I believe it is up to the parents to put restrictions on what kids wear, NOT the district.

If you're thinking that school uniforms will lessen clothing costs, you are sadly mistaken. I can assure you, as a 14-year-old girl, I will STILL want clothes that suit my tastes for things other than school. So you can toss the idea of saving money right out the window.

I believe that school uniforms won't pass in the school district because I feel that a good number feel just as I do. If we have school uniforms, why not have EVERYONE wear uniforms, but then why stop there? Let's just take away free speech as well, so everyone can conform to being "normal." I hope school uniform rules NEVER pass.

Sincerely,
Kay Steiger

Morris and Marcelyn Lindstram spent the weekend with Ted and Lori Johnson and family of Osage, Jeff, Peggy and Jared Lindstrom of Akeley, and Dr. Paul and Diana Dilmanson of Bemidji. Grandson Jarod had his 11th birthday on Saturday.

Sunday afternoon a large number of relatives and friends met at the Assembly of God Church to say farewell to the John Wanerlund family who are moving to Bemidji. They are a family that will be greatly missed in this area and we hope that someday they will be back.

My highwire acrobatic squirrel with his half-hairless tail is back and in spite of this scraggly tail he has been chasing another squirrel up one oak tree and down the big boxelder outside the kitchen window like greased lightening. He acts mad enough to do that other squirrel bodily harm if he could catch squirrel number two. I hope they settle their differences before one falls to the ground.

Gully

Sanna Brovold • 268-4350

Thursday, March 19 was another "Red Letter" day for Esther Thorson since she was able to celebrate and enjoy her 94th birthday. Some of her friends remembered the special day and drove over to Fosston for the occasion. Vivian Rikja, Alice Forsberg and Cathy Sanger spent the afternoon with Esther enjoying cookies and coffee and a good visit in their own "little nook." Esther Rutkowski also joined them for lunch. Happy birthday, Esther!

Effie Handy has been busy cooking coffee again lately. On Wednesday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Marty Laven visited her. Marian Handy, Doris and Gerran Envja and Emma Nyland visited Effie on Saturday. Lyn Turonna spent Friday night with her mother.

Sarah Brovold together with youth from Hope and Kingo congregations in Fosston spent Friday night at Bemidji at a "Lock-In" at "Smart Skate."

Fargo seems quite a distance from Gully when one makes the trip to Dakota Cancer Institute at Dakota Clinic or any of the medical institutions there, but those of us who have made that trip feel so very fortunate that we can find such specialized professional help even that close by, and that we have caring friends and relatives to help us get there.

Carol and Les Torgerson stopped by to see Arnold and Sanna Brovold on Friday evening on their way to Walker to be supper guests at the Orrin and Odette Bendickson home. Linda Turanno also stopped by to see us Friday.

As we drove towards the Gully Community Center on Sunday afternoon, it seemed the building was breathing; the rafters seemed to expand. As we got closer we heard there were joyful notes already emitting from the building. The musicians were already all tuned-up, and the building was full of spectators. We don't get to see some of those musicians very often but when "The Music Day" is announced the gifted musicians show up. We have a chance to see the acquaintances we don't get to see very often too. There was Dennis, who was a fifth grader in one of the elementary school districts way back when? He was grown up now and we didn't have a bone of "contention." Dennis had respect for his teacher; especially when on the first day of school one of the less-obedient boys decided to run home. Instead of shutting the door, Dennis watched as I caught the boy out on the prairie, and in those days a teacher was allowed to take the pupil by the hand and lead him back to school. In this modern age that does not seem to be allowed.

Editorial comments from the files of Norm A. Holen

—Speaking of names, we are advised that a Miss Keto lives over on the Iron Range.

—It was, presumably, only a coincidence that wholesale butter prices leaped ten cents a pound just after Congress dropped the proposal to end the 10-cent tax on oleo.

—European Relief Program, commonly known as ERP, should get another sobriquet. Sounds too much like a belch.

—The girl, they tell us, who swears she never has been kissed can't be blamed for swearing.

—State Auditor Stafford King is evidently another of those fellows who don't believe in letting well enough alone.

—A lot of present-day taxpayers would gladly settle for the tithe collected in Biblical days.

Mystery Of Susie, Jaycee Girlfriend, Is Solved Tuesday

"Local citizens are rapidly becoming accustomed to the spectacle of a young man proceeding down the street bearing a live duck under his arm.

"The duck, gaily bedecked with flowers, made her debut Tuesday evening at a party in the Evelyn hotel given by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, the excellent specimen of poultry being introduced by President Justus Larson as the mystery-shrouded Susie, the Jaycees' girlfriend.

"Alvin Christofferson explained to the 75 members present that Susie would aid in building Jaycee membership well above its present total of 174. He stated that the duck would remain in the possession of Justus Larson until he had signed up a new Jaycee, after which he would turn it over to another member to repeat the performance.

"That the custodians of Susie didn't relish their job is indicated by the fact that the bird changed hands a dozen times Wednesday.

"Larry Churchill, the 'Singing Salesman' enlivened the party Tuesday by singing a group of selections, including the ballad, 'If You Knew Susie' accompanied by Harold Cames on the piano."

Soil Conservation District Will Be Formed In County

"A soil conservation district for Pennington county was the topic of discussion at three county meetings last week. The groups meeting in Thief River Falls, St. Hilaire and Mavie voted to go ahead and finish the work of organizing a soil conservation district in Pennington county.

"River Falls, Black River, Rocksbury, North, Norden, Silverton, and Cloverleaf have already secured a number of landowners' signatures and it is hoped that 51 percent of the owners' signatures can be secured in these townships by April 15. Numedal and Bray also could be included in the initial setup of the district if they complete the signups that have been started."

Business Office Of Telephone Company Now At 403 LaBree

"The telephone business office of the Northwestern Bell company is now at 403 LaBree avenue north in quarters which have been in process of remodeling for the past few weeks. The company recently purchased this property which has a frontage of 75 feet on LaBree avenue and a depth of 140 feet. Other service expansion work to be carried out this year will include the placement of cable to provide more lines in several sections of the city. Manager Rau says that the telephone office here is now serving 2,684 telephones, including those in nearby rural areas. The company's gain in telephones was 209 last year. At present there are about 74 applications for service which are on the waiting list because of the shortage of facilities."

No Traffic Fatalities Recorded In City In 1947

"Thief River Falls was one of thirteen Minnesota cities with a population of from 5,000 to 10,000 which recorded no traffic fatalities in 1947, it is revealed in the annual summary of the Minnesota Safety council. Pennington county, with one traffic death during the year, will receive the award plaque among counties of from 10,000 to 15,000 population."

Dennis Voge Wins Spelling Event

"Results of a spelling contest recently conducted in the seventh and eighth grades of Lincoln junior high school were announced this week by Mrs. A. C. Matheson, county superintendent of schools. Dennis Voge placed first among the 252 pupils competing, while Georgia Gulrud placed second and Lea Loeffler third. Miss Lyda Batten, junior high school principal, stated that while the winner of the local contest is eligible to enter the Minneapolis Star-Tribune spelling contest in Minneapolis April 17, it was unlikely that the local school would be represented in the contest this year."

REGULAR BOARD MEETING
Independent School District #564
March 9, 1998 6:30 p.m.
S.O.B.C. Conference Room A

A Regular Board Meeting of Independent School District #564 was held on Monday, March 9, 1998, at 6:30 p.m. in Conference Room A of the School District Service Center.

The following Board members were present: Carl Clark, Jean Larson, Cheryl Lee, Lyle Olson, Randy Twistol, and Steve Young. Also present was Dr. Jerry Robicheau, Superintendent of Schools.

Chairperson Carl Clark called the meeting to order and Clerk Jean Larson established that a quorum was present.

A motion was made and seconded to approve the agenda as amended. Motion carried unanimously.

Information on the MSBA Building a High Performance Board Phase III Seminar was distributed.

Senior students Kyle Anderson and Beth Goddard were recognized as Lincoln High School's nominees for the Region 8 Triple A (Academics, Arts and Athletics) Awards. Zach Olson was also recognized for advancing to the state swim competition in the 500 and 200 events. The Board congratulated Sterling Joppru for recently completing his graduation requirements through the Area Learning Center. Lynn Dyer was thanked for his recent donation of $300 to help purchase a laser disk player for the high school. Bridgeman's was recognized for donating ice cream bars to students at Challenger during their Good Behavior Celebration as was the TRF Dental Association for donating toothbrushes to kindergarten and first grade students as part of a presentation on dental health.

Amity Scholars Roland Cron of Wuppertal, Germany, and Mauro Hernandez of Buenos Aires, Argentina, gave interesting presentations about the educational systems in their countries. Palvi Young, the Amity Scholar Program Advisor, thanked the Board and administration for supporting the program, this being the eighth year in existence in Thief River Falls. She also noted that Roland and Mauro are the 19th and 20th scholars in the program.

Finance committee members Steve Young, Cheryl Lee and Randy Twistol noted that at a recent meeting they were given an overview of funding sources in Minnesota.

The negotiations team of Carl Clark, Steve Young and Cheryl Lee reported they met recently and discussed a number of issues including a possible step sequence for administrators, pay for performance and the contract for Superintendent Robicheau.

The facilities ad hoc committee including members Carl Clark, Lyle Olson and Randy Twistol presented the projects the committee has been discussing including the addition of classroom space at Lincoln to house the ag program and the vocational classes currently housed in the Service Center. The addition would include approximately 9,000 square feet of classroom space at an estimated cost of $750,000.00. It is proposed that the addition be paid for with money received from the sale of the Washington Elementary School, plus interest and a small amount from the sale of the Knox property. Also discussed was the proposed installation of an elevator in the District Service Center to make the building handicapped accessible. Cost is estimated at approximately $200,000.00-$258,000.00 and it is proposed the project be paid for through a health and safety and ADA levy over a two-year period. It was noted that no referendum levy dollars would be used to fund either project. Action on these issues is expected to take place at the April 9th regular Board meeting.

Business manager, Harry Nelson reviewed the proposals for banking services and the purpose of the collateral agreement recommended for approval.

Superintendent, Jerry Robicheau reviewed the recommendations for expenditure of the levy dollars for the upcoming school year.

A motion was made by S. Young and seconded by J. Larson to approve the minutes of the February 23, 1998, regular Board meeting and the March 2, 1998, special Board meeting as presented. Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by S. Young and seconded by J. Larson to approve the bills as submitted and on file in the school district business office. Motion carried unanimously.

A bill to provide up to $4,000 to northwest Minnesota farmers who had a loss on their wheat or barley crop was approved by the State Senate Rules and Administration committee Monday, April 6, sending the bill on to the full Senate.

Farmers in northwest Minnesota counties who received an indemnity payment on their wheat or barley crop between 1993 and 1997 would qualify for a state-paid rebate of their 1997 Federal Crop Insurance premiums, up to $4,000, under terms of the bill.

Sen. LeRoy Stumpf of Thief River Falls said the bill was created after a series of public meetings in Thief River Falls, Roseau, Crookston and Hallock earlier this year, when nearly 1,000 farmers turned out to express their concerns.

"I'm very pleased that we were able to convince the committee to support our bill," he said. "I know our farmers will appreciate any assistance the state can provide."

Members of the committee also approved funding for southern Minnesota counties affected by last week's tornadoes during the hearing. Several senators on the committee who attended the meetings in Crookston and Hallock commented that it was appropriate for the state to provide emergency assistance to both areas of the state.

Rep. Jim Tunheim has offered a companion bill in the House. They hoped to bring the bills before the full House and Senate within the next three days. The legislature is scheduled to adjourn Thursday, April 9.

Heart Ass'n. to conduct cardiac arrest

Residents of Thief River Falls will be participating in a cardiac arrest, not of the heart stopping kind, but a fund-raising event sponsored by the American Heart Association.

The objective of the event is to raise needed funds to support the research, education, and community service programs of the American Heart Association. The event will be held Thursday, April 30 from 5:30 to 8 p.m. at the Best Western in Thief River Falls. Participants are divided into two categories, parole officers and arrestees. It is the purpose of parole officers to motivate five or more community members called arrestees, who will then raise $100 or more for the American Heart Association. Current parole officers include Shannon Olson, Sylvia Grindley, Alicia Haviland, Glenn Espe, Michelle Johnson and Tammy Hansen.

Cardiovascular disease is the number one killer in America. According to statistics from the American heart Association, someone dies from cardiovascular disease every 34 seconds, and 34 percent of all deaths in Pennington county during 1994 were from cardiovascular disease.

The mission of the American Heart Association is to reduce disability and death from the cardiovascular diseases and stroke. The American Heart Association is a non-profit, voluntary health organization, funded solely by public contributions. There are over 60,000 volunteers in Minnesota alone.

Research funded by the American Heart Association leads to medical breakthroughs. Past achievements include cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR), medication to lower cholesterol in the blood; microscopic surgery, the pacemaker, life expanding drugs, and by-pass surgery.

About 34 cents of every dollar raised for the Minnesota affiliate is spent on research. About 15 cents of every dollar is spent on fund-raising costs, and six cents on management and general expenses. This is in compliance with the guidelines of the Minnesota Charities Review Council which recommends that the total cost for these two areas be less than 30 cents on the dollar.

During the 1995-96 year, Minnesota awarded Minnesota researchers $891,265 in fellowships and grants-in-aid. For the 1996-97 year, $950,000 has been awarded in grants and fellowships to 37 researchers in Minnesota.

Pennington county is using education programs for pre-school through the elderly. The programs are reaching residents at the school site, worksite, healthcare sites, and community sites. The community programs and education efforts address the most serious risk factors of heart disease and stroke: high blood pressure, cigarette smoking, high blood cholesterol levels, and lack of exercise.

Local volunteers for the American Heart Association include Dan Drevlow, Lori Lockhart, Myron Peterson, Howard Thorson, Sally Wilise, Beth Winjum, Bob Johnson, Sheron Stewart, and Sharon Russel. The regional coordinator is Wayne Geary.

Sylvia Grindley, Wayne Geary and Glenn Espe are preparing for the American Heart Association Cardiac Arrest fund-raising event. The event will be held April 30 in Thief River Falls.

Northwest crop loss subtle but is no less of a disaster

Two natural disasters in the south and northwest have hit rural Minnesotans and both deserve immediate attention from state and federal authorities, according to State Sen. Roger Moe of Erskine.

The tornado that virtually leveled Comfrey, cut a wide swath through St. Peter and destroyed many farm homes and other buildings in six southern counties was devastating, he said. Federal and state governments are moving swiftly to deal with this disaster.

"A more subtle disaster has struck 12 northwestern Minnesota counties," Sen. Moe said. "The devastating impact of fusarium head blight, commonly known as wheat scab, on wheat and barley crops in this part of the state has cost growers $1.8 billion over the past five years. This blight, combined with negative effects from a variety of federal farm and insurance policy changes, has hit many farm families in our area particularly hard.

"The 1996 market-oriented federal farm bill and changes in Federal Crop Insurance requirements did not account for the ongoing devastating effects of wheat scab on crop yields," he added.

"Our growers typically count on wheat yields of 50-60 bushels per acres, but scab has reduced those yields to the 30 to 40 range over the past several years. The Federal Crop Insurance calculation is based on the diminished yield totals averaged over the past six years."

Federal Crop Insurance was intended to be the safety net under a market-oriented farm economy system. For northwestern Minnesota farmers hit by wheat scab, no safety net exists and many of them are facing financial ruin, Sen. Moe said.

Minnesota Farm Business Management faculty have completed preliminary calculations of average farm income over the last year in seven northwestern Minnesota counties. Despite farmers' hard work and limited help from government transfers, the typical farmer in these counties lost $3,862 last year.

Moe says it isn't surprising to find so many auction sales these days. "They serve as a haunting reminder of the 1980s farm crisis," he said. "This is particularly frustrating after our state has taken the lead on wheat scab research, spending more than the federal government or any other state. We also have invested heavily in researching the potential of alternative crops for areas that have been prone to wheat scab disease.

"Crop alternatives take many years to develop, but our farmers are running out of time," he added. "Minnesota legislative leaders are pressing for federal action, including providing economic disaster assistance, recalculation of the Federal Crop Insurance requirements have on pre-wheat scab yields, and removal of the cap on Marketing Assistance Loans."

Under legislation passed at the state level, farmers will be eligible for Federal Crop Insurance assistance if they have sustained 50 percent crop loss during any of the wheat scab years. The legislature has appropriated $8.5 million for this effort.

"It is my hope," Sen. Moe said, "that the governor and federal government respond aggressively and immediately to both of these natural disasters. It is important that the state and federal government be aware of the less visible disaster in northwestern Minnesota. Without help this spring the failure rate of farms in our area could be very high. We need to do our best to assist all the rural communities in need, both in the south and the northwest."

Also speaking on behalf of gubernatorial candidates were Charley Borrell for Dick Borrell; August Ollrich for Allen Quist; Matt Hughes for Joanne Benson; and Lynn Willhite for Norm Coleman.

Pennington DFL elects delegates and directors

At its recent county convention the Pennington county DFL elected delegates to the Seventh District and state conventions and members of the county board of directors.

Delegates elected were Al and Phyllis Sollom, Mary Forney, Dian Johnson, Jack Haymond and Rick Nelson. Alternates are Karen Mallea, Jim Langland, Tyrone Birkeland, Betty Roadfeldt, Al Young and Judy Lindquist.

Rick Nelson was reelected county chair and the following were named to the executive committee and board of directors for the 1998-2000 election cycle: Dian Johnson, associate chair; Jim Dalager, treasurer; Ty Birkeland, secretary; Judy Lindquist, affirmative action officer; Jim Langland, Terry Blacklance, Ken Murphy, Darryl Tveitbakk, John Johnson, Karen Mallea, Deb Tveitbakk, Penny Langland, Anna Jorgenson and Ron Ostby, directors.

"We were delighted with the turnout of delegates who showed up to participate in the grassroots political process," Rick Nelson said. "We know we have some work ahead of us if we are going to remain a viable organization to help improve the quality of life in northwest Minnesota, but with the turnout at the recent convention it gives us a lot of reason to be optimistic."

Next scheduled event for the DFL organization is the Senate District 1 endorsing convention Sunday, April 19, in the elementary school in Newfolden beginning at 2 p.m.

Oklee school to offer Meet Me In St. Louis

Meet Me In St. Louis, a three-act family comedy set in St. Louis just before the world's fair in 1904, will be presented by Oklee high school Saturday and Sunday, April 18 and 19, in the school gymnasium.

Director Mike Swenson explains that the Smith family has always lived in St. Louis and Mr. Smith (Quinn Bishop) has the opportunity to double his income if he moves to the New York office. As the breadwinner and head of the household he decides to take the job.

His wife Anna (Jull Gamm) questions the decision but dutifully accepts it, depending on her four headstrong daughters who are determined to change papa's mind.

The daughters, Rose (Erin Melby), Esther (Charity Wicks) Agnes (Amber Linder) and Tootie (Jennifer Tougas) plot to stop the move. They plan to act unruly and cause minor disasters so his boss, Mrs. Dodge (Crystle Moody), will send Duffy (Adam Stoneouse) to New York instead.

"They carry out their task too well," Swenson said. "Rose loses a boyfriend, Mr. Smith loses a job, a trolley car gets derailed, their cat is being used as an attack cat. Join us for a great family comedy."

Others in the cast include Mitch Rystad as Lon, Cassie Knutson as Katie, Jessica Klasen as Mrs. Waughop, Talia Bishop as Lucille, Mandy Roisland as Grandpa, Jennifer Olson as Ida and Adam Swenson as John. Assistant director is Rachel Schue with Julaine Sparley as stage manager and Pam Kolstoe as conductor.

Vehicles banned from forest roads, recreational trails

Scientific and Natural Areas and state Wildlife Management Areas are also closed to motorized traffic. In addition, many roads and trails in state forests are temporarily posted and closed to motorized traffic during the spring thaw.

"Unauthorized traffic during the spring thaw can cause deep ruts and erosion problems, and repairing damaged trails diverts money away from winter trail grooming, trail improvements and new trail development," explained Belcher.

Most of Minnesota's 18,000 miles of snowmobile trails are grant-in-aid trails built and maintained with the cooperation of private landowners, the DNR Trails & Waterways Unit, and local snowmobile clubs and trail associations. Maintenance costs are funded primarily by snowmobile registration fees and a portion of the state gas tax attributed to snowmobile use.

"Grant-in-aid snowmobile trails that cross private property are for snowmobiling only," advised Belcher, "and only between December 1 to March 31 each season. After April 1, any use of grant-in-aid trails, even non-motorized use, could be considered criminal trespass."

Most of Minnesota's grant-in-aid trail system is built on private property. "If private landowners withdrew permission to use their land, about 90 percent of our snowmobile trail system would be gone," said Belcher. "Trespassing on their land during the spring and other times of the year puts this privilege at risk."

Belcher said the DNR does have a grant-in-aid program for off-highway vehicles. Organized clubs can develop and maintain trails and be reimbursed for much of the cost. People in search of a place to ride should contact their local DNR Forestry or Trails & Waterways office for maps and more information.

The Times Reporter

Many will be dressed to the hilt in the lastest spring fashions as they attend church and family gatherings. Children will hunt for brightly colored eggs. Easter provides the perfect opportunity to capture everyone at their best and the radiant hues of spring on film.

According to statistics, Americans take over 40 million photographs every day with over 90 percent of all households owning and using a camara.

The question is, what do we do with the photographs once we take them? We anxiously await their return from the processor, and we look at them almost immediately after we get them, often before starting the car to return home. But, then what do we do with them? Do we place them in a drawer to be dealt with at a "later" date, or do we thoughtfully preserve them in photo-safe albums to be enjoyed now and for generations to come? If we're wise, we do the latter.

Photo preservation, often referred to as "scrapbooking," is one of the fastest growing hobbies in the country with the methods and products used as varied as the photographs themselves. In fact, the avalanche of information and merchandise flooding the marketplace is enough to confuse and even scare off the novice. It doesn't have to be complicated.

First and foremost, one needs to use products that are safe and will protect photographs. The paper, adhesives and inks used should be acid-free. The term "acid-free" means that the product has a pH value of 7, a value that is neither too acidic or too alkaline and will not damage photographs. Papers and other items sold for the specific use of scrapbook enthusiasts will state on the packaging that they are acid-free. However, many other paper products not sold for that purpose are also safe and can easily be tested to assure their safety with a special Ph testing pen.

There is also a wide selection of photo albums available on the market in a variety of styles and sizes. The selection includes expandable albums, three-ring binders and spiral bound albums. Chosing an album depends largely on personal preference and product availability. One advantage of the expandable album or three-ring binder is the ability to rearrange pages eliminating the need to work in chronological order. With regard to album size, one needs to consider how many photographs will be used on a page.

The old saying goes, "A picture is worth a thousand words." That may be true when the photograph is current. However, that same photograph will be worthless in a few years when you no longer remember why the photo was taken. How many times have you been shown an old photograph with the person showing it to you unable to name all of the people in the picture?

Photo journaling is the popular term used to decribe the who, what, where and when of the photos in an album. It doesn't matter if our penmanship is perfect or even if every word is spelled correctly. Our handwriting is part of who we are, and, good or not so good, it lends a personal touch to our album pages. By describing events and identifying the people in photographs, we are telling a story and preserving our histories to be enjoyed for generations to come. Photo journaling should be done with an acid-free, fade-resistant ink. Information should also be added to the back of each phototgraph in the event that the photo becomes separated from the album.

Often a picture will include a camara strap, too much sky or even a messy countertop. Cropping can be done to remove those undesirables from the photograph. However, use care in trimming photos, remembering that cars, furniture and other background scenery often help define an era. Things that are taken for granted today may be of great interest to those viewing the photographs 50 years from now.

Once the photos are mounted and the journaling complete, scrapbook pages can be enhanced with stickers, diecuts or rubber stamps. For many, this is the fun, creative part of the hobby. Even the "creatively challenged" person can create attractive pages with the easy-to-use products available, and special software enables the computer buff to produce interesting scrapbook pages on a computer.

Basic scrapbooking supplies and many of the "extras" are available locally, and in larger cities, stores devoted solely to the craft can be found.

A wide variety of albums and photo-safe materials can also be purchased from Creative Memories, a Minnesota-based company whose products are distributed by independent consultants through educational workshops.

In addition to home-based workshops, local consultants Peggy Kenner and Tami Hemmesch offer monthly workshops for both beginners and experienced scrapbook enthusiasts at the Eagles. Both women are passionate about the importance of photo preservation and offer their workshop participants a wealth of knowlege and ideas along with quality products.

Tami is also employed at Tunberg Motors, and she and her husband Milo are the parents of a seventeen-month-old daughter. Tami started scrapbooking as a newlywed — a nice time to start.

Peggy is the wife of Lyle Kenner and besides helping Lyle in his veterinarian office, she is the busy mother of four children. Like many of us, Peggy's interest in scrapbooks began after the photographs had accumulated in large numbers in boxes and drawers.

Piles of old pictures in no particular order can be overwhelming. Where does one start? Peggy and Tami advise their customers to start with their most recent photographs and add new ones as they receive them. To tackle the old ones, they suggest that photographs are sorted by decades and then approximate years before placing them in albums. Often, we are pleasantly surprised as details of specific events resurface in our memories as we work with these older photographs.

Saturday, May 2 has been designated as National Scrapbook Day. Tp commemorate the day, Kenner and Hemmesch have planned a special all-day workshop for Saturday, April 18 from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. at First Baptist Church in Thief River Falls. Beginners classes will be held at 10 a.m. and 3 p.m., and seasoned scrapbookers are welcome at any time during the day. To register for the workshop or find out more information about Creative Memories or other workshops, call Peggy at 681-2893 or Tami at 681-2842.

Whether our scrapbook pages are simple or colorful works of art, the preservation and documentation of our photographs and memorabilia is a fun and meaningful hobby that can be enjoyed by anyone of any age. It gives us a sense of who we are and gives our children and generations to come a sense of where they came from, enhancing their self-esteem. While the world we live in seems full of disposible items, it would be a shame if we throw away our past.

As you take those pictures on Easter Sunday, think about what you're going to do with them. Will your great-grandchildren have the opportunity to enjoy them? By seeking out the photo preservation products available in the marketplace or attending the workshop on the 18th, you can be assured that they will.

Peggy Kenner (standing, left) and Tami Hemmesch (standing, right) are Creative Memories consultants who teach photo preservation techniques and offer photo-safe products in workshop settings. May 2 is National Scrapbook Day and to commemorate the day, Kenner and Hemmesch have an all-day workshop planned for Saturday, April 18 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the First Baptist Church in Thief River Falls. To register or obtain more information about the workshop, call Peggy at 681-2893 or Tami at 681-2842.

These photos were taken 19 years ago and spent 18 years tucked away in a box before being placed in a photo-safe album. Because the photos were taken within days of each other, the background of several was completely cut away from the subject adding interest to the otherwise simple page.

These photos were taken following the young man's graduation from Lincoln High School last year. The photos were cropped and mounted on coordinating colored papers. Simple stickers enhance the photos and photo journaling tells the who, what, where and when.

Kirby is a 1993 graduate of Tri-County High School in Karlstad. He studied mechanics for one year at Northland Community and Technical College and is currently employed by Western Implement in Hallock.

TRF Arts Council summer plans

Thief River Falls Community Arts Council was recently notified by the Northwest Regional Development Commission that its requests for 1998 summer theater funding have been granted. Council president Jane Anderson said, "We are excited to have received this funding. Our group has worked hard in the last few months putting the grants together, and it paid off."

Two productions, with a strong focus on youth and family entertainment, are planned for this summer and will be held in the Northland Community and Technical College theater.

The first show is the musical rendition of the children's classic, Charlotte's Web by E.B. White. Kari Frisch has been hired as the general director with Deb Jacobson in charge of technical direction. Auditions will be held on May 8 and 9 with performances scheduled for June 24, 25 and 26.

The Music Man by Meredith Wilson, the popular musical theater classic, will be the second production with auditions scheduled for June 5 and 6. Heidi Hoks will be the general director with Catherine Hagen acting as the musical director. Scott Bomholt has been hired as the technical director of this production. Performances are scheduled for July 23, 24, 25, 30, 31 and August 1 at 7 p.m.

TRF Community Arts Council president Jane Anderson said that the council chose productions that parents would enjoy attending with their children, and they also made certain that there were appropriate parts available for children and young people. "I can tell that it's going to be a great summer," Anderson said.

SPEAKING OF . . .

Sherry LaCoursiere

...Just A Little Comment

One of the little instructions I was given when I started writing a column was not to respond to any of the critical responses I received. I don't remember being told why I was not supposed to respond, or if I was told why, I have forgotten. Well, I am, more or less, still obeying the instructions given me, because this is not really a response to Kay Steiger's letter. It is, however, a comment on it.

First of all, I would like to say thank you to Ms. Steiger for her letter to the editor. I love letters to the editor and it is the very best place for anyone to voice their comments. If I didn't write a column, I might be writing letters to the editor all of the time.

Secondly, I would like to congratulate her on her intestinal fortitude. I'm so glad to see there is somebody out there with the gumption to stick up for what they believe and allow it to be published. Many times I have had to hear (through the grapevine) that someone or several people have disagreed with something I have written. They will often speak to one of the editors or the publisher, but not to me directly or through a Letter to the Editor. Usually such "grapevine" information is second, third or fourth hand and only relays inadequate and inaccurate information. I won't respond to that type of comment.

I must say, I can certainly understand Ms. Steiger's point of view. In fact, if I can remember, vaguely, how I felt about such things when I was a teenager, I would have felt the same way if someone suggested school uniforms. Everyone wants to express their individuality and what better way to do it than by the choice of their clothing?

When we speak of uniforms, there might be something good about them that should be brought up. Many of us grown-ups don't have to wear uniforms, but some do. Consider, for a minute, those who do wear uniforms, such as those in the medical profession, law enforcement officers, waitresses, druggists, sales clerks, service personnel in many stores, those in the military. Are these people looked down upon because they wear uniforms? No. In fact, the opposite is true. Generally, they are respected and trusted because of their uniforms.

Several people in my family wore uniforms, at one time or another, and I always found their uniforms awe-inspiring. One of my uncles worked for a service station and wore a uniform, three of my aunts were nurses, another aunt a beautician, an uncle was a policeman and looked impressive, despite the fact that my one-year-old son hid under the table when he saw him (I always wondered if my son was guilty of something I didn't know about), two uncles were meat cutters, an aunt and uncle owned a store where uniform jackets were worn, six of my uncles and one of my sons wore military uniforms, my sons and daughters were scouts and I was a scout leader and we wore uniforms.

No, I don't think that uniforms are always a bad thing. If someone told me I had to wear a uniform for my work, it might surprise you to find I really wouldn't mind at all.

Even though it is an interesting thing to think about, I doubt very much that students in our area have anything to worry about in regard to being forced to wear uniforms to school. I have a feeling that uniforms might be the last thing our school districts are worried about.

Nonetheless, I thank you for your response, Ms. Steiger, and I am certainly glad you are in favor of free speech too.

A Jog a Day Keeps Gallstones Away

Many of the benefits of a regular exercise program are well known to most people. Researchers are continuing to find additional positive health effects from exercise. A recent report shows that we can now add prevention of gallstones to the many benefits to be derived from physical activity.

A study published in the March 15 issue of the Annals of Internal Medicine found physical activity to play an important role in the prevention of symptomatic gallstone disease. This study followed over 45,000 men for a period of eight years. Gallstone symptoms and surgery were greater in those individuals who were the least physically active and who watched the most television. In contrast, those who were the most physically active had the lowest risk of gallstone symptoms and surgery.

Gallstone disease is a major health problem in the United States. It results in 800,000 hospitilizations each year at a cost of over $2 billion. Obesity is a major risk factor for the formation of gallstones. Rapid weight loss, however, is also associated with an increased risk of gallstone problems. Clearly any preventive measure that could reduce the incidence of gallstone disease will be useful.

This study found that the overall level of physical activity rather than any particular form of exercise was the main determinant of gallstone risk. The effect on prevention of gallstones was not found to be related to its effect on weight control. It is felt that exercise prevents gallstone disease both through its metabolic effects as well as effects directly on the gut. Gallstones are made of cholesterol and regular exercise lowers both cholesterol and triglyceride levels. Exercise also speeds transit time through the gut which helps reduce the tendency for gallstones to form.

Physical activity has long been known to have numeruus benefits for the heart and blood vessels. It has been found to reduce the risk of heart attack, lower blood pressure, blood sugar and cholesterol. Regular exercise improves work capacity and helps control weight. Exercisers have lower risks of depression and anxiety and tend to have positive self-images. If these benefits have not been enough to motivate you to participate in a regular activity program perhaps prevention of gallstone disease will make the difference.

Start your training now for the 15th annual Health in the Long Run scheduled for Saturday, May 2. This event is jointly sponsored by the Dakota Clinic and Northwest Medical Center to help promote the health benefits of exercise. For more information on this event or on gallstones, contact the Dakota Clinic Thief River Falls at 681-4747 or 1-800-550-4109.

Family Reunion:
The Planning Phase

My brother Steve called last week to tell me that our side of the family was planning a reunion up along the North Shore of Lake Superior after our stepsister Janine's wedding in Illinois at the end of June. Would I like to join in the fun? And could I find a resort somewhere north of Duluth for my younger brother Nathan to choose, this aspect of the planning phase being his responsibility?

"You mean, do the work for him?" I asked Steve.

"Well..."

"Humph."

"Come on," he coaxed, "you know Nate doesn't know the first thing about the North Shore."

"But you know plenty," I pointed out, he having lived just west of Duluth, Minnesota, for a number of years while working as a farrier.

"True, but I have so many other responsibilities ..(invisibly gesturing to his job in Savannah, Georgia, his house, his wife, his two-year-old daughter, his two dogs.)"

"And I have so many responsibilities, too," I reminded him.. (invisibly gesturing to my job in Thief River Falls, Minnesota, my house, my acreage, my husband, my three children, my two dogs, my two cats). "And need I mention they add up to a few more than yours? Besides, I have no intention of joining in on this trip."

"You haven't!" he exclaimed.

"Of course not!" I replied. "Conveniently, Janine hasn't invited me to Illinois for her wedding, but, additionally, I'd never drive all the way down to Illinois for a wedding and then drive all the way back to Minnesota for more chaos and confusion. Didn't we do something like that for Dad's funeral? Eulogize him in Illinois, bury him in Duluth?"

"But that was twelve years ago!"

"And I haven't recovered --"

"Oh, it wasn't that bad," he interrupted.

"Yes, it was," I corrected.

"Say you'll come," he said.

"If I'm in Duluth, maybe I'll drive up," I agreed.

"If?" he asked.

"I'll put it on my calendar and pack a tent."

"So, you'll help Nate out, then?"

"Okay, okay," I relented. "I'll look in the phone book for a few numbers and send them on to him. But the rest is his responsibility. What kind of place did you have in mind?"

"Something with full amenities," he replied. "Restaurant, golf course, whirlpool, sauna."

"Up along the North Shore!" I exclaimed.

"Why?" he asked. "What were you thinking?"

"Well, call me a throwback to another century," I suggested, "but in the land of the Voyageur I just assumed you'd be looking for a more wilderness-type adventure: canoeing across mist-covered lakes at dawn; hiking through old-growth forests by day, eating, talking, laughing — catching up around the campfire at night; pondering the mysteries of the universe in the stars that shine so bright..."

"What?"

"You know, ... Sore shoulders, blistered feet, scraped elbows and bruised knees; or, bloodthirsty mosquitoes, hungry ticks, black flies and biting gnats! Excitement, adventure! The great Minnesota experience! The Call of the North!"

"Oh, God, no!" he exclaimed. "Good thing you asked! I don't go anywhere anymore without HBO and a good night's sleep. If you ask me, adventures like that are for lunatics."

"Good thing I asked," I agreed. "Good thing."

Easter Cantata presented at McIntosh

The 19th Annual Easter Cantata will be presented by the McIntosh Community Choir on Good Friday evening at 8 p.m., April 10, at the McIntosh School Gym. This year's Cantata is "No Greater Love" by Lani Smith. The concert will also include "How Great Thou Art," "O Sacred Head Now Wounded" by the men's choir, and "Christ the Lord is Risen Today." Lunch will be served and everyone is welcome.

April designated as Child Abuse month in MN

More than 10,200 Minnesota children were abused or neglected according to 1996 statistics. Last year, 5,600 children from 2,900 families received temporary care in one of the state's 14 crisis nurseries. Crisis nurseries help prevent child abuse and neglect, and alleviate family stress by offering safe havens for children and resources for parents and caregivers.

"I see abused and neglected children too often in my work as a district court referee," First Lady Carlson said. "It is difficult to explain to these innocent victims that being a child does not have to be scary. Unfortunately, child abuse and neglect is a growing problem all across our state and we must act now to ensure that our children have the opportunity to grow up safe from harm. Not only do we need more programs like crisis nurseries, we need to heighten awareness about the signs of child abuse and neglect and urge our neighbors and friends to speak for those in our communities who cannot speak for themselves."

During April, proclaimed Child Abuse and Neglect Prevention Month in Minnesota by Gov. Arne H. Carlson, and throughout the year, First Lady Carlson urged everyone to take responsibility to do what they can to prevent child abuse and neglect.

"Children are our most precious resource and we must treat them as such," she said. "Each of us has a responsibility and can make a difference to ensure the safety of children."

The effects of child abuse and neglect are far-reaching, according to Mrs. Carlson. "Research has shown that children who have been abused or neglected are more likely to perform poorly in school, get in trouble with the law or continue the cycle of abuse in their own families," she said. "Preventing abuse and neglect is much more cost-efficient than the costs of long-term intervention for crime, corrections, truancy, hospitalization, special education and mental health care.

"To be effective, we must redirect our thinking to neighborhood- and community-based, family-centered services that address all of children's needs, and all of parent's needs when dealing with child abuse and neglect."

With children's needs in mind, Gov. Arne H. Carlson proposed this legislative session to designate funding for counties to invest in child abuse and neglect prevention and early intervention programs to keep children in their homes or move them quickly to safe environments.

Crisis nurseries, home visits, family counseling, parent education, parent support groups and community services are all tools for preventing abuse and neglect, according to Sullivan Sutton.

"We must use all of our resources — from education to counseling to crisis nurseries — to help children and parents," said Sullivan Sutton.

Question of the Month

Why don't you get new furniture? The library is on a five-year refurbishment plan currently. Last year the parking lot (between the library and Bridgeman's) was paved and striped. New bookshelves for the juvenile and easy reader paperbacks were also built last year. The new magazine chairs just arrived this month as did the new children's chairs and bookshelves for the hardcover easy readers. The lighting was also replaced this year and not only provides better lighting so that people can find things more easily, but is also easier on the eyes. A new children's chalkboard is also on order for this year.

Refurbishment of the library was requested both in surveys and the suggestion box. Because of the cost, it was spread over a five-year period.

Beanie Babies–what is the big deal? I know they're cute and cuddly, but come on – people are just a bit too obsessed with these little critters which, in my opinion, are nothing more than pieces of colored felt sewn in the shape of an animal and stuffed with some kind of plastic bean.

I've grown to hate these toys, and I think I have a right to. I work at a store, and we sell almost every Beanie imaginable I've sorted them all from "Baldy" the bald eagle to "Waddle" the penguin. And let me just say that Beanie Baby sorting is not my idea of fun.

I know that all Beanie lovers out there are drooling over the idea of sorting and shelving new or hard-to-find members of the Beanie Baby family, but if they had to put up with the kind of irritation my fellow employees and I endure on a daily basis they would, without a doubt, think twice before adding another one to their collection.

I first heard about Beanies in April of 1997. This is when the Wind Ensemble took a trip to Las Vegas for a short tour and some clinics. We took a charter bus and ended up eating a lot of fast-food - mostly McDonald's. McDonald's and the Ty company had just released the "Teenie Beanies" in the Happy Meal, and I, being a total cheapskate, bought Happy Meals for almost every meal. By the time we returned home, I had collected almost the whole troop of Teenie Weenies. Thus began my interest in Beanies.

In May of 1997, I started my job and was introduced to a side of the Beanie Babies that I had never seen - the dark side. All summer long we were swamped with calls from eager collectors wondering if we had received any new Beanies. We hadn't until close to summer's end when we finally got the shipment we had ordered about six months earlier. Then the horror of Beanies really hit me - the phone rang off the hook with questions on what Beanies we had. One lady actually wanted me to list every Beanie we had in the store. I politely explained to her that we didn't have enough time to list every Beanie and besides, her call was long-distance. She muttered something boorish and hung up on me. Some people..

As the Beanie craze flourished, people also became increasingly rude. They would bump, push and squeeze their way through any size crowd to find the coveted "Peace" teddy bear. One lady carried six or seven of the same Beanies around the store with her while she shopped and only ended up buying one. Another lady tore apart the entire display just seconds after I had straightened it for the fiftieth time that day. People would corner me in the flower aisle and bombard me with questions like "Why don't you have "Cubbie" the brown bear?" and "When will the next shipment be in?" These may not seem like really tough questions, but when you're asked the same questions roughly fifty times a day, you're bound to get a tad irritable.

Beanie Babies – I guess I'll never truly understand or appreciate the craze. All I know is that I have a small collection that I wouldn't mind getting rid of that includes a majority of the Happy Meal Teenie Weenies and few of the hard-to-find members such as "Peace," "Valentino," "Fleece," "Congo," and "Twigs," not to mention a few others.

Sound interesting to you? Believe me, I'll sell them in a heartbeat. Just give me a call and we'll make a deal.

Spring workshop of Horticultural Society held at Williams March 28

"S.O.S.—Save our Slippers" was the theme of the 13th District Horticultural Society at its annual spring workshop on March 28 in Williams.

Gretchen Mehmel of the Department of Natural Resources was the guest speaker. She spoke and showed slides of rare and endangered species and species of special concern. Mehmel also talked about orchids.

Tentatively, June 13 has been set as the date for the annual wildflower route tour, and another "Dig Day" will be held on June 14 to save ladyslippers along the route of a highway construction project.

Celeste Williams of the Williams Gardeners presented awards to Gretchen Mehmel for all of her assistance with the wildflower route and Dig Day projects. Gladys Krohn was also recognized for her work on those projects and her 40-plus years of gardening in the area.

District President Jean Pederson called the business meeting to order and read a thank you letter from past president Ione Carlson. The group voted to host the 1999 State Horticultural Society convention with 1999 being the 40th anniversary of the 13th district. Ribbons were given for the program books with the Williams Gardeners receiving first place, Green Thumb second and Deer Park third.

Vice President LeeAnn Haugen presented district awards. Outstanding district gardener awards were presented to Joan Baker of the Moccasin Garden Club in Thief River Falls and Helen Erickson of the Gro-Rite Garden Club of Badger. Both women are very active gardeners, exhibit at the district show and their county fairs and share their flowers during tours with organizations, schools and nursing homes in their communities. Celeste LaValle and Adele Powell of the Williams Gardeners received Gold Medal awards for their tireless efforts with the wildflower route and S.O.S. project.

Upcoming events include the possibility of a Greening Conference this summer or fall, a fall pruning workshop in Warroad, a Mn/DOT planting day on May 30 and the annual horticultural show in Thief River Falls on August 8.

At the completion of the workshop and meeting, the Williams Gardeners hosted a silver tea and distributed door prizes.

ACTIVITIES
Egg Folks

Set out plastic egg halves, marker, glue and scraps of yarn and fabric, and have your child turn plastic eggs into little people. To make an egg person, turn an egg half upside down and glue yarn "hair" to the rounded end. Draw facial features with a marker and glue on fabric scraps for clothing.

Ring-Ring

Make a long distance telephone by connecting two halves of a plastic egg with a six to eight-foot piece of string. Poke a hole in the rounded end of each egg half and thread the phone string through it. Knot the string tightly on the inside of the egg cup. Then show the children how to use the "telephone" by speaking into or listening from the open end of the egg.

PARENTING TIPS
Gentle Touching
Of Valuable Objects

One of the best ways to teach a young child the art of gentle touching is to lift them up to high objects. You then give your child a chance to touch something that would be out of reach, and at the same time you control the situation. You say, "Just touch," as you lift the child upward. If the child grabs for the object or seems to act wildly, you simply bring the child back down. By moving the child closer to the object when they touch it gently and moving them farther away when they do not, you are telling your child what is appropriate.

Even if you have removed breakable figurines from your child's level of your home, your child will find these objects somewhere else on the shelf of a store or on the coffee table at the home of a relative. You may wish to teach your child how to hold a valuable object for a few seconds and then put it down. For many children, this procedure will satisfy their curiosity about this "forbidden" object and thus they will leave it alone when you are not there to supervise.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Use words and actions to show your child what you mean by "touch gently." There are many opportunities when you can practice this, such as with people and animals as well as with precious objects.

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q. I am the representative payee for my disabled brothers Social Security check and his money goes to the bank by direct deposit. Can he sign the checks to use the money or should I do it? I actually make the decisions as to where the money goes.

A. You should sign the checks, not your brother. A representative payee is appointed by Social Security to receive the benefits on behalf of a client who is either prohibited from having direct payment of benefits, such as a person legally incompetent or receiving benefits for which a drug or alcohol addiction is a contributing factor, or who is otherwise incapable of managing or directing the use of their benefits because of physical or mental impairment. The payee is charged with using the funds in the best interest of the beneficiary, in this case your brother. In direct deposit situations the bank account should be titled to show that you have only a fiduciary interest but that the money belongs to your brother. For example, "Your brother's name" by "Your name" SSA representative payee. Since your brother needs a payee and is unable to handle his funds, you are responsible for them. Your brother is not supposed to have direct access to the account. For more information, request the free booklet "A Guide for Representative Payees" SSA Publication 05-10076 by calling 1-800-772-1213 or from any SSA office.

Q. Dad died last month and I know that the Social Security check that was deposited to his bank account is not due. How should its return be handled?

A. The family should not have to do anything. The Treasury Department has a process called reclamation by which the Social Security or Supplemental Security Income (SSI) payments made after the death of a client are automatically deducted from the bank's account on behalf of Social Security if the funds were deposited through direct deposit. The bank will then debit the individual's account. Although not as easy, a similar process between the Treasury Department and the bank cashing the check also exists if a paper SSA or SSI check was involved.

Vehicles banned from forest roads, recreational trails

Return of cold temperatures in March slowed down predictions of an early spring, but officials with the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources are still worried about the unauthorized use of motor vehicles on recreational trails and forest roads during the coming spring thaw.

"State law bans the use of 4-wheel-drives, motorcycles, all-terrain vehicles, cars and trucks on all snowmobile trails, cross-country ski trails and state recreational trails year-round," said Butch Belcher, DNR Regional Trails & Waterways Supervisor at Bemidji. "This includes both unpaved and paved trails such as the Paul Bunyan Trail from Brainerd to Bemidji, the Heartland Trail between Park Rapids, Walker and Cass Lake, and the Blue Ox Trail northeast of Bemidji."

USDA promotes new wildlife habitat plans

Wildlife Habitat Incentives Program (WHIP) is a new cost-share program for people who want to develop and improve wildlife habitat on private lands. It provides both technical and financial assistance to help improve fish and wildlife habitat.

"This is an opportunity for landowners to participate in a cost-effective, voluntary program to improve fish and wildlife resources on their property," according to William Hunt, state conservationist with the United States Department of Agriculture Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS).

Some of the opportunities include restoration and management of native grasses and wildflowers; improve forestland and pastureland, streambank protection and fish habitat improvement, establish and renovate farmstead shelterbelts.

Eligible participants include those individuals who own or have control of the land under consideration. All lands are eligible for WHIP, expect land currently enrolled in the Federal Water Bank Program, Conservation Reserve Program, Wetlands Reserve Program, or the Emergency Watershed Easement Program.

NRCS wildlife biologist Mark Oja said, "participants with accepted applications agree to prepare and implement a wildlife habitat development plan."

"The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Natural Resources Conservation Service offers participants technical and financial assistance for the establishment of wildlife habitat development practices. USDA and the participant enter into a cost-share agreement. This agreement generally lasts from five to ten years. Under the agreement, the landowner agrees to install and maintain the WHIP practices, while USDA agrees to provide technical assistance and pay up to 75 percent of the cost of installing the wildlife practices. Landowners maintain control of the land, and no public access is required. WHIP does not provide rental income or purchase easements.

In addition, if the landowner agrees, cooperating Federal and State wildlife agencies and nonprofit or private organizations may provide expertise or additional funding to help complete a project.

Applications for WHIP technical and financial are accepted by a continuous basis, with approvals made periodically through the year. For more information about WHIP, and and eligible wildlife habitat practices, call your local NRCS office.

Mild winter weather is benefit to wildlife population figures

After two consecutive harsh winters that killed whitetails by the thousands, buried pheasants and starved owls, Minnesota's wildlife is getting a much-needed break this year.

The Winter Severity Index (WSI), which measures the sum of days with at least 15 inches of snow and the days with a temperature below zero degrees F, ranged from only six to 27 points as of early February this winter. This compares with WSI values as high as 120 for the same time period in 1996 and 1997.

Deer

Under new guidelines adopted by the Department.., of Natural Resources as the result of a deer feeding work group that recently provided recommendations to the Minnesota Legislature, a WSI of 100 by mid-February would be required for the DNR to provide deer feed to local conservation organizations.

"Obviously, we didn't meet that threshold this winter, and no state-funded feeding will be conducted," said Dave Schad, who oversees the DNR deer program.

Schad compared the winter to a marathon. "Deer this winter are halfway through the race and they aren't even breathing hard," he said. "Since the goal is to get to the end of the race before their energy stores are exhausted, deer are in tremendous shape and will come through the winter with minimal losses and in good condition even if things get bad for the last few weeks."

Schad noted that radio-collared deer in the north-central part of Minnesota are still on summer range, and have not even started to move into heavier cover provided by deer wintering areas, as they would during a more severe winter. In farm county, most fields are free of snow. The mild temperatures throughout the state mean deer are in extremely good condition. "We could not ask for a better winter," said Schad.

But one mild winter doesn't make up for two consecutive brutal ones. Schad said that it will take at least several more mild or moderate winters in the north before deer populations there are fully recovered.

Ruffed Grouse

Grouse seem to be faring well this winter. "There was just enough snow in the north woods to allow some snow roosting," said Bill Berg, the DNR grouse expert. "But with mild temperatures and low numbers of avian predators, snow roosts aren't as important to grouse as they would be during a colder winter."

Berg noted that wildlife managers, foresters, loggers and others spending time in the woods are finding good numbers of birds this winter. "Barring any unforeseen ice storms or bitterly cold weather, it looks like ruffed grouse could come through this winter in great shape," he said. Sharptailed grouse, which generally are better adapted to more severe winter weather than their cousins the ruffed grouse, are also likely experiencing little difficulty this winter.

Pheasants

This winter has been balmy for pheasants and other ground-nesting birds. The combination of below-normal snow cover and mild temperatures has allowed birds to preserve fat reserves and find food.

Yet the most important factor for pheasant survival is weather during the spring when the birds nest. "The best thing for pheasants and other ground-nesting birds is a warm, dry spring," said Kevin Lines, who heads the DNR Farmland Wildlife Program.

Owls

Snow was so deep last winter that owls couldn't find rodents and died of starvation. Not this year. DNR wildlife biologists say that owls are likely doing well. One indication is that fewer sightings have been reported, meaning the raptors haven't been forced to hunt during the day as they did in the past two winters. Owl prey such as mice and voles which thrived last year due to the deep snow, are numerous and easier to catch this year.

DNR study figures show climb in bear population

Minnesota black bear populations have increased approximately 40 percent since 1991, based on an innovative bear population survey conducted by the Department of Natural Resources in the past year. The survey estimated the 1997 statewide black bear population at approximately 22,000, up from about 16,000 in 1991 when the survey was first done.

During the summer of 1997, DNR wildlife managers coordinated the placement of nearly 3,000 baits across the bear range that were laced with a common antibiotic called tetracycline. The chemical, which does not pose any health threat to the bears, humans or other animals who might consume meat from the treated bears, is deposited in the teeth and bones of animals that consume it, and can be seen under a special microscope.

Baits were placed at least three miles apart to ensure that an individual bear would not consume more than one bait in a day. The technique is so accurate that biologists can determine that a bear consumed more than one bait if baits were consumed as little as one day apart. Each of the tetracycline-laced baits was checked after several weeks. If the bait was gone, claw marks on the tree trunk were examined to distinguish whether it was a bear that had eaten it, since raccoons, fishers, squirrels and birds also sometimes took the baits.

DNR wildlife managers determined that more than 1,200 bears ate the baits, thereby "marking" their bones and teeth.

During the 1997 hunting season, bear hunting license holders were asked to submit tooth and rib samples of harvested bears to determine the proportion of bears that carried the tetracycline marker. The DNR analyzed more than 2,600 samples in the past several months. By comparing the proportion of marked bears in the harvest to the number of bears that were originally marked, biologists were able to estimate the total number of bears in the summer population.

Dave Garshelis, the DNR's black bear biologist, said that the 1997 population estimate, together with results from the same type of survey conducted in 1991, provided DNR wildlife managers with important information on which to base bear hunting quotas and manage populations. "In 1991, we were able for the first time to get a precise estimate of bear numbers in the state," Garshelis said. "The 1997 survey helped verify the 1991 estimate as well as corroborated population models and other indicators that bear abundance has continued to increase in the state."

Garshelis noted that his survey technique is state-of-the-art for estimating bear populations, which are notoriously difficult to count because they are often reclusive, occur at relatively low densities across the landscape, and are very mobile. "So far, only Minnesota and Michigan have used this technique, but I expect it will catch on elsewhere," Garshelis said.

Although additional bears will not be marked this summer, the DNR will again be asking bear hunters to submit tooth and rib samples. "Since the marks will continue to show up on bears for several years, we can refine our estimate of the 1997 bear population based on the frequency of marked bears in the harvest in 1998 and perhaps 1999," Garshelis said.

More homeowners eligible for low cost home loans

More Minnesotans will now have access to a popular home improvement loan program — The Great Minnesota Fix-Up Fund, due to an increase in program income limits, according to Inter-County Community Council. The program recently increased its gross annual household income limit from $46,000 to $49,000.

The Fix-Up Fund is an on-going joint effort of Inter-County Community Council and the Minnesota Housing Finance Agency (MFHA) to provide low cost home improvement loans that will encourage and assist Minnesota's homeowners to improve the basic livability of their homes.

The fixed annual percentage for these loans is based on projected household income — the lower the income, the lower the rate. The loan is repaid with fixed monthly payments. A typical loan in the amount of $15,000 at a six percent annual percentage rate would have 180 monthly installments of $126.60.

Popular projects financed with Fix-Up Fund loans include siding, roofing, furnaces, and air condition, kitchen and bathroom remodeling, garages, septic system upgrades, and electrical and plumbing work. Homeowners can hire their choice of contractors to perform the work; or they can purchase supplies and perform the work themselves when capable.

Two additional MHFA programs offered by Inter-County do not have a household income limit — Home Energy Loans for basic energy conservation improvements and Fix-Up Fund Accessibility Loans to improve home accessibility for a resident with a disability.

Funds are available for all of these programs. For a credit application and more information about these low-cost loans, call or see Jim Steenerson at Inter-County Community Council, Oklee, MN 56742, or call 796-5144.

Septic system meeting April 14 in Newfolden

How often do I need to pump my septic tank? How does my system work and is it effective? How do I maintain my system to prevent costly repairs to the drain field? What regulations do I need to follow when installing or repairing my system? These are questions often asked by rural homeowners who have their own septic system. Since no one ever receives an owners manual with their septic system, it's often difficult to get these answers.

These questions and more will be addressed at a meeting at the Newfolden Community Center April 14 at 7 p.m.

The proper operation and maintenance of on-site sewage treatment systems is essential to the protection of surface and ground water resources. Proper maintenance helps avoid costly repairs or premature replacement of septic systems and helps avoid any health risks to you and your neighbors. Also, conformance with septic system regulations (state or local) is important to avoid legal problems and future property resale complications.

This meeting is being sponsored by the Minnesota Extension Service and the Marshall County Water Plan. Speakers include Howard Person, Pennington County Extension Educator and Dan Halvorson, Marshall County Water Plan Coordinator. Septic system owners manuals will also be available at the meetings or can be purchased at county extension offices. This meeting is open and free to the public. All homeowners who have their own septic system are encouraged to attend.

Charges may be pending against other individuals for obstructing legal process.

Welfare fraud. On April 3 law enforcement officials completed an investigation into a report of welfare fraud. Charges are pending against Tammy Jo Balderston, 23, Thief River Falls.

These reports include names of individuals charged, arrested or cited with various crimes and offenses by police, the sheriff's department or other law enforcement officials. Depending upon the circumstances of a case, charges can be, and sometimes are, changed or dropped by law enforcement officials or attorneys even before the case reaches court. Readers should also realize that under the American system of jurisprudence, individuals charged with crimes are innocent until proven guilty of those crimes in a court of law.

The THE TIMES SECOND FRONT

Lincoln sophomores get look at state government

Not everyone has an opportunity to have a first-hand look at state government in progress, but that is exactly the experience of Lincoln high school sophomores Yvonne Asp and Julie Chrzanowski who recently participated in Project 120 at the Minnesota State Capitol in St. Paul.

Under sponsorship from The Times, Northern State Bank and KTRF Radio, the girls spent a week working directly with legislators and the legislative process during the current legislative session in St. Paul. Asp said it was exciting to see the legislative process come together.

"We met with both Representative Tim Finseth and Senator LeRoy Stumpf, and we learned how to find our way around the Capitol and state office complex," she said.

Special interests this session included much discussion about Goals 2000, including controversial legislation involving driving curfews for people under 18. Although the curfew legislation failed, Asp says it was not entirely a bad idea.

"There are a lot of people my age driving after midnight when it really isn't very necessary," she said. "The legislature had provided exceptions--for-work and it just seemed like one way to cut down on unnecessary risk."

Goals 2000 would also eliminate current grading standards and replace letter grades with a series of academic packages that need to be completed before graduation. Asp gave the entire concept an "F."

"I think our current system is fine, just the way it is," she said. "For example, with Goals 2000, in order for a student to graduate from high school, he or she would have to complete a number of packages including music—which is a specialized talent. It just does not seem realistic to fail students in high school because they don't have the talent or desire to complete a music package."

Asp said her first taste of politics was enlightening. "I know some people are turned off by politics, but I found it very inspiring. It really is the people's process. Everyone has their say, but the process can stop at any time with even one voice of disapproval. It sounds strange, but I think that it is a very effective process."

Asp and Chrzanowski thanked the sponsors for helping with their trip which they termed "a wonderful and enlightening experience."

Duray on dean's list at School of Management

Jill Duray, daughter of Gerald and Judy Duray of Viking and a 1995 graduate of Marshall County Central high school in Newfolden, was named to the University of Minnesota's Carlson School of Management fall quarter 1997 dean's list.

A junior in the school of management program, Duray achieved a 3.5 or higher grade point average in 12 or more credits.

Project 120 participants at the State Capitol in St. Paul recently were Yvonne Asp (center) and Julie Chrzanowski, pictured with State Rep. Tim Finseth of Angus on the floor of the Minnesota House of Representatives. Students in the Project 120 five-day seminar for high school students spend five days receiving an in-depth focus on state government and the political process.

Tunheim, Stumpf support aid bill

If State Representative Jim Tunheim and State Senator LeRoy Stumpf have their way, area wheat growers could soon receive a rebate of up to $4,000 on their 1997 Federal Crop Insurance premiums.

Legislation sponsored by Tunheim and Stumpf cleared its first hurdle Thursday, passing the House of Representatives' Ways and Means Committee on a vote of 20-1.

"We've worked very hard to get the message out to our colleagues that there's a farm crisis in Northwest Minnesota," said Tunheim. "It's gratifying that legislators from throughout the state seem willing to help."

The Tunheim and Stumpf bill would provide wheat and barley farmers a rebate of up to $4,000 on their Federal Crop Insurance premiums if they had losses in any year between 1993 and 1997. As the bill currently stands, farmers in the counties of Kittson, Roseau, Lake of the Woods, Marshall, Beltrami, Polk, Pennington, Red Lake, Beltrami, Norman, Mahnomen and Clearwater would qualify. The total cost of the rebate program is set at $8.5 million.

Area farmers Rob Rynning of Kennedy and Ron Anderson of Hallock testified before the committee about the unprecedented scab problem in Northwestern Minnesota, and the lack of adequate coverage from the Federal Crop Insurance program.

"The bad managers are all gone, they went out a long time ago," Rynning said. "Only the good operators are left, and they're getting hurt." He went on to comment that the problem of wheat scab, "is unrivaled by any other crop problem in the Northern Hemisphere over the last 10 years."

The lone dissenting vote on the committee was cast by State Rep. Steve Sviggum, House Republic Leader. He stated that he didn't think the state should be responsible to farmers for bad weather, crop disease or poor markets. Tunheim responded that although farmers cannot be insulated from any one of these problems, poor prices and successive disaster years of poor yields make it necessary for government to step in and help.

State Representative Phyllis Kahn (DFL-Minneapolis), a member of the Ways and Means committee agreed with Tunheim, saying that government can help make up for poor crops, "but once the farmers are gone, there's no getting them back."

Meetings held by Stumpf and Tunheim earlier this year in Thief River Falls and Roseau, and on March 7th in Crookston and Hallock were critical in revealing the severity of the financial crisis many farmers are facing, Stumpf said.

"The meetings in Crookston and Hallock were especially important. We worked hard to get federal legislators and leadership from the state House and Senate to come up," Stumpf said. "The fact that nearly 1,000 farmers showed up at these two meetings made a big impression."

Many legislative proposals on how to provide relief have been debated since the March 7 meeting. After discussions with the Minnesota Wheat Growers Association, several area crop insurance agents, legislative leaders, and federal and state agriculture agency staff, Stumpf and Tunheim settled on the rebate proposal.

"Most of the people in Northwestern Minnesota understand that the state is limited in what it can provide for answers to this situation," Rep. Tunheim said. "But for now the rebate is the easiest program to administer and will provide the quickest financial help to our wheat and barley farmers."

A prayer breakfast was held at Bethany Lutheran Church in Red Lake Falls on Saturday, March 21. The morning started with a wonderful breakfast of orange juice, coffee, muffins, great egg dish and a fruit cup, that was prepared by the Ladies of Bethany and served by the Men of Bethany. The men also did all of the clean up. After our breakfast we all went into the sanctuary of the church where we were blessed with having Vickie Martholer as the feature speaker. She started us off with several faith-lifting songs and then she gave a very spiritual talk. Vicki is a chaplain at Immanuel Nursing Home in Detroit Lakes. Christine Von Emmerik said there was over 120 ladies in attendance. Thank you, Bethany, from all the ladies of the Plummer area.

LOCK-UP

More than 40 area residents agreed to spend time in "jail" Wednesday, April 1, in a fund raising activity for the Muscular Dystrophy Association. During their "term" in the jail set up in The Gallery at the Best Western Inn, they called their "cohorts" to pledge "bail" which will be donated to the MDA. When all the "sentences" had been served, the amount raised in donations and pledges was more than $9,400. MDA will use the funds for services such as clinic visits, research, summer camp and support groups for persons with neuromuscular diseases in northwest Minnesota and in North Dakota. District director Laurie McKeever thanked all the "jailbirds," businesses and residents of the Thief River Falls area for making the lock-up a success and to the Best Western Inn, Cellular One, Pizza Hut and Metz Baking for in-kind donations. Pictured from left at the "jail" are Helen Halvorson, Jeff Tunberg and Sandy Rednlecki.

Governor approves grant to track immunizations

Governor Arne H. Carlson has announced that 21 Minnesota counties will receive a $300,000 grant from the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation (RWJF), in support of local efforts to track the immunization status of area children.

The grant will be used to support expansion of the existing Southwest Minnesota Immunization Information System (SIIS). SIIS was first launched in 1994, in a five-county area of western Minnesota served by the Countryside Public Health Service. Two more counties were added last year, and the new grant money will provide for the addition of 14 additional counties by the end of 1998.

"This is a remarkable accomplishment for the communities involved in this project, and an important step forward in the larger effort to protect the health of our state's children," said Minnesota Governor Carlson.

"Only 16 of these grants were awarded nationwide, and the competition was formidable," Governor Carlson said. "Our selection as one of the grant recipients is a strong indication of our leadership and our commitment to excellence in this area. It underscores our continued commitment to protecting all of our children against vaccine-preventable diseases."

State Health Commissioner Anne Barry cited the program as "an outstanding example of communities working together to address local health issues." She called SIIS a "testimony to the strength and initiative of local public health agencies and health care providers throughout Minnesota."

The five counties served by Countryside — Big Stone, Chippewa, Lac Qui Parle, Swift and Yellow Medicine — have seen a substantial increase in preschool immunization rates since the program began four years ago. Project officials hope to achieve similar gains in the other 16 counties that will be served by the expanded SIIS program.

Kandiyohi and Meeker counties joined the project last year. Other counties slated to join the effort include Cottonwood, Jackson, Lincoln, Lyon, McLeod, Murray, Nobles, Pipestone, Pope, Redwood, Renville, Rock, Stevens and Traverse.

The grants are part of the All Kids Count project, an RWJF program that supports efforts to develop community-based immunization information systems like SIIS. Working with SIIS on the project are the Minnesota Department of Health (MDH) and the Health Informatics Program at the University of Minnesota.

Successful immunization information systems require community-wide commitment and collaboration, according to Dr. Michael Osterholm, Minnesota State Epidemiologist, and the SIIS project is an outstanding example of how it's done.

"This is, first and foremost, a grassroots effort — a local initiative, designed to address local immunization issues," Dr. Osterholm emphasized. "The people responsible for this project have taken the lead in its design and implementation. They have forged strong partnerships between the public health community and the private health care community, and they have enlisted the support of parents and other members of the community.

"With their selection to receive this grant, Countryside Public Health Service — and its many partners — have been recognized as a national model for this kind of collaboration," Dr. Osterholm said.

The key feature of SIIS — and other community immunization systems — is a shared computer database, containing current immunization histories for children who live in the area served by the system. Parents, physicians, and public health personnel can use the database to check a child's immunization status, and ensure that each child is getting all recommended immunizations on schedule.

Getting children immunized on time is especially important during the preschool years, according to Steve Louwagie, administrator of the Countryside Public Health Service. That's when children are most vulnerable to the effects of potentially dangerous vaccine-preventable diseases like measles and whooping cough. But keeping track of what immunizations a child needs — and when — can be a challenging task.

"Based on current recommendations, a child needs up to 16 separate doses of vaccine — for 10 different diseases — by 18 months of age," Louwagie said. "Further complicating the situation is the fact that a child may move to a community or switch health care providers — perhaps several times — during those critical first months of life. That makes it easy for children to fall behind."

The problem is illustrated by a statewide survey of preschool immunization levels, released last December by MDH. The survey looked at preschool immunization records for all 69,772 children who started kindergarten in the state during the 1996-97 school year — to determine whether these children had been "on schedule" at various ages during their preschool years.

While 90 percent of these children were considered "fully immunized" when they were four months of age, immunization levels began to fall off as they got older, and the time came for additional doses of vaccine. The low point came at 20 months, when only 55 percent of these children were still on schedule.

Thanks to SIIS, that situation is changing in western Minnesota. For the past four years, parents and physicians in the five original SIIS counties have had ready access to information about a child's current immunization status. As a result, they have been in a better position to know what immunizations each child needs — and make sure the recommended doses of vaccine are administered on time.

In those five counties, current immunization levels are dramatically higher than those recorded in the earlier survey. The number of children who had all their shots increased from 60 to 77 percent at eight months of age, from 58 to 72 percent at 17 months, and from 46 to 64 percent at 20 months.

Because a system like SIIS provides continuous, "real time" information about immunization levels in the community, it can be a valuable tool for identifying problem areas," Louwagie noted.

"Average immunization rates — at the state level or at the community level — can often be misleading," he said. "They may disguise 'pockets of need' — geographic areas or segments of the population with large numbers of under-immunized children."

In the 1996-97 kindergarten survey, for example, immunization rates for two-years-olds in one large city varied widely by ZIP code — from a low of 42 percent to a high of 80 percent.

Commissioner Barry applauded the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation for its efforts to promote the development of community-based immunization information systems.

"Robert Wood Johnson has provided invaluable leadership and support for these important activities," she said. "We owe the foundation a debt of gratitude for the contribution it is making to the future health of our state's children."

Based in Princeton, NJ, RWJF describes itself as "the nation's largest philanthropy devoted exclusively to health and health care." The foundation has made over $2 billion in grants since it was founded in 1972, with a bequest from industrialist Robert Wood Johnson. RWJF issues grants designed to accomplish three fundamental goals — assuring that all Americans have access to basic health care at a reasonable cost, improving the organization and delivery of care for people with chronic health conditions, and reducing the personal, social and economic harm caused by the abuse of alcohol, tobacco and illicit drugs.

Child Abuse Does More Than Harm The Body

Among the many things a person has difficulty understanding in our confusing world, one of the most difficult is child abuse. We can think of few things as reprehensible as adults taking advantage of children, intentionally causing them pain and fear and even loss of life.

We encourage you to read the following guest editorial which sheds more light on a condition which has no need to exist at all.

VIOLENCE BREEDS VIOLENCE;
LOVE BREEDS LOVE
Guest Editorial by Kathie Johonneck
Visitation Center Coordinator
Violence Intervention Project

April 1998 marks our annual observance of national child abuse prevention month. Child abuse and neglect have reached epidemic proportions in this country. Consider these statistics from the National Committee for the Prevention of Child Abuse:

- Nationwide, more than three children die each day from abuse.
- At least 90% of juvenile offenders and adult convicts were abused as children.
- 60 to 85% of all pregnant teens were sexually abused as children.
- In Minnesota in 1996, there were 10,200 victims of substantiated child abuse or neglect and 13 of those children were killed.

Who abuses children? What kind of parents would hurt their child? Parents under stress. Parents with financial problems or chemical abuse issues. Parents who are still children themselves. A caretaker with no training or support. And very often, a parent who was abused as a child.

Abuse and violence are cyclical—children who grow up with violence learn that it's an acceptable means to solving problems. They learn that it's okay for the bigger person to control the smaller person by causing pain and hurt. They learn to be aggressive and they begin to lose trust in the people who are supposed to love them the most. These types of attitudes and behaviors are handed down from generation to generation. An act of child abuse resonates into the future.

What can we do to prevent child abuse? Remember the old African proverb that it "takes a village to raise a child?" Child abuse does more than harm the body, it distorts the potential for growth and development. We are all responsible for children, from the ones we tuck in at night to the ones we never meet.

- Provide support to families in your neighborhood and community. Volunteer for the Big Brother/Big Sister program. Make a difference in the life of a child.
- If you see someone struggling with a child in public, offer your support. Say, "My child acts up at the store, too. Is there anything I can do to help?" Do not blame or accuse.
- Examine your family's parenting strategies. Talk about stress management issues and share creative ways to solve problems. Make the decision to not use spanking as your primary discipline method.
- "Remember the "sticks and stones" rhyme? It isn't true. Saying things like "you stupid idiot" or "you worthless kid" to a child can have lifelong damaging effects. Build up your child's self-esteem.
- The key to prevention is education. Educate children about abuse. Define abuse, tell them they don't deserve it, and what to do if it happens to them.
- Access the services and programs in your community, including support groups, counseling, in-home visits and church programs. Help is there—you have to reach out and accept it.
- Report suspected child abuse to law enforcement or social services right away.
- Pick up a pen or the phone and contact your state as well as federal legislators. Tell them prevention programs and child-centered funding makes the most sense for crime prevention. Tell them you will be watching to see how they vote on children's issues. The future is in our hands. Remember—violence breeds violence, and love breeds love.

Supplies Of Milk, Beef And Hogs Are Down

"Extreme weather, sluggish prices, urban sprawl, food safety scares and unfavorable federal dairy policies are just a few of the many threats Minnesota's agriculture has faced since Governor Carlson asked me to serve as Agriculture Commissioner in 1995," states Gene Hugoson in a recent column.

"Now we face yet another menace to our industry's long-term health: the inability of local processing plants to find adequate supplies of milk, beef cattle and hogs to keep their facilities operating near capacity," he said.

Hugoson pointed to closing of the Iowa Beef Processing Plant in Luverne in March as underscoring the problem. "As it becomes more difficult for processors of dairy and meat products to find enough raw materials to keep production lines moving," he said, "I fear we may see even more plants closing."

Minnesota dairy cow numbers have dropped from 850,000 in 1978 to 570,000 now. While average production per cow has offset much of the loss in numbers, overall milk production in Minnesota dropped by two percent in 1997.

Fed beef cattle numbers have dropped from 490,000 in 1991 to 330,000 in 1997. Total number of cattle and calves in the state has declined from 3.7 million in 1978 to 2.6 million in 1998.

This trend to lower numbers was one reason Commissioner Hugoson opposed the feedlot moratorium proposed in the legislature.

"Minnesota's agricultural production is already too low to keep some existing plants operating at capacity," Hugoson said. "If we implement a moratorium discouraging production increases while encouraging growth-minded producers to leave the state, few agribusinesses will want to invest money upgrading a processing plant or building a new one.

"I believe the best way to ensure a strong agricultural economy is to make our state a place where responsible farmers with operations of many sizes and types have a chance to succeed."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To The Editor,

We believe we are among the world's most fortunate folks to have found this place in Thief River Falls 28 years ago when there were very few houses for sale! We love Hartz Park and our grandchildren love it, too! We love the view we have of the river all year around and we love watching as many walkers, bike riders and roller-bladers use the new bridge.

We try our best to manicure our flower gardens and lawn to equal the good care the city workers give to Hartz park. More than beauty, we—like the parks and recreation department—like to keep our yard clean so that the grandchildren can run and play without having to come inside to wash hands, change clothes or scrape shoes!

A sincere and heart-felt thank you to good Thief River Falls folks and the considerate camp ground users for keeping your dogs on a leash and for carrying a plastic bag for clean-up. You're dog-gone good neighbors and make life much happier and a lot healthier.

Sincerely,
Carl and Polly Reed

The weather in northwest Minnesota just can't be beat. Those who left our area last fall, looking for nicer climates, have missed the nicest winter in the history of the Red River Valley. Even the tornadoes and hailstorm yesterday was a couple of hundred miles south of here. The temperature outside is over 50 degrees above zero instead of last year at this time it was below zero. Roy was out on Saturday and raked the lawn and today it is busy turning green, especially under the bird feeder that was hanging on the wire that I had to run into when I cut across to get the paper.

The tulips that were planted so deep about five years ago, that cold November, late in the evening have already found their way to light and are about five inches high. It's a miracle they ever got to show their pretty flowers after they fall into a foot deep hole, made by a crowbar because the ground was so frozen. They must be just as determined to live in Minnesota as these folks around here.

Pastor Erling Huglen from Roseau is serving as interim pastor of Bethesda Lutheran Church and Salem Lutheran Church. We all welcome them to this community.

Marcalyn Lindstrom went to Bemidji this week to stay with the children while Dr. Paul and Diana Dimmenson went on a cruise. Hope the weather is nice.

Judy Kleinvachter visited Elmer Holmstrom and Evelyn Albaugh on Monday afternoon.

Isaac and Betsy Thompson attended the 80th birthday party for Claryce Yngva on Sunday afternoon.

Becky and Jeremy Johnson visited at Peter and Pearl Thompson's on Saturday.

Donny and Marlys Lafrooth, Obert and Evelyn Gravum and Elsie Lafrooth helped Elaine Gravum of Thief River Falls celebrate her birthday on Sunday.

Claudia Berggren, Marie Steffan, Elmer Holmstrom, Evelyn Albaugh, Kelly Lafrooth, and Amanda and Jessica were recent visitors at Judy Holmstrom's home.

I flipped the calendar over to April and the first thing I saw was that the first Sunday we have to turn our clocks ahead again. It had just begun to be light enough at 6:00 a.m. to see how much coffee to put in the coffeepot and now it means I have to remember to turn on the lights. At our age it is difficult to change forth and back so often, as we set our actions by the clock. Recently I had gotten everything copacetic, wake up, breakfast, devotions, get ready for work, lunch and then my nap. Now the thought of next week when I'll be all out of sync again.

"Already some of the candidates for the Populist nomination on the county ticket have commenced an active campaign. All of the present county officials, we understand, are candidates and they are of course in a position to make a better fight than any of the others.

"The office of register of deeds is being eagerly sought for by many. This office, owing to the transcription of the records from Polk county last year, has been the best paying in the county. Ed Hamry of Red Lake Falls has publicly announced himself as a candidate subject to the will of the Populist convention. Mr. Hamry is like a great many others, a Populist for Office. He was a Republican not long ago and a candidate for postmaster of Red Lake Falls. Congressman Eddy turned him down and now he is in the Populist party. But if they want to keep him, they will have to give him an office, a thing the Republicans cannot guarantee to do.

"And there are other Barkises as will be seen from the following from the Gazette:

"'Alex Sweas of Thief River Falls is said to have a great liking for the office of register of deeds of Red Lake county. The same may be said of A. M. Hansen, at present an employee in Register of Deeds Swanson's office. Swanson is considered as hoping for reelection, while there are rumors of other prominent aspirants, among them Gust Naplin of Polk Centre.

"'There is a rumor, it may be an idle one, in circulation to the effect that Sheriff Norland will not be a candidate for reelection to his present office, but will try for auditor. Mr. Norland is one of the most popular and best known men in the county. The same can be said of W. T. Mullarky, the present auditor, who, we understand, is a candidate for reelection. Mr. Mullarky's best claim to the office, however, is the fact that he is one of the most competent auditors in the state, which is saying a great deal. While no one questions but that Norland would make as good an official, the people will be reluctant in turning down the present auditor. Adam Zeh, formerly of this city, but now of Red Lake Falls, is also said to be a candidate for auditor.

"'James Mead is at present the only avowed candidate for sheriff, except it be Mr. Norland who may yet want to succeed himself.

"'M. A. Halten will have considerable opposition for re-nomination although no one has yet publicly announced himself as a candidate.

"'Superintendent Frank Jeffers will be opposed by a Mr. LaMay of Red Lake Falls. There is also liable to be a woman in the field.

"'Van R. Brown will try titles with Chas. E. Boughton for county attorney. Mr. Boughton is disqualified, so some think, on account of being a Democrat.

"'Peder Engelstad, who for ten years was town clerk of Rocksbury, is also said to be a candidate for county commissioner. Mr. Engelstad is a good and painstaking man and we believe he is one of the ablest in the Populist party in this section of the country.

New Ordinance On Bikes Mapped By Safety Council

"The Pennington County Safety council at a meeting Monday evening with Chairman Arthur Ramheck presiding, discussed means of reducing traffic hazards on the streets of the city. The organization voted to request City Attorney Theodore Quale to prepare a new bicycle ordinance for presentation to the city council. The measure will be drafted to conform to the state laws governing bicycles.

"Representatives of the police force presented at the meeting stated that the ordinance prohibiting double parking will be rigidly enforced, and that tickets will be given for parking on the wrong side of the street, a practice which is reported to be particularly prevalent in the residential districts. Motorists also are asked to drive cars with their dimmers on inside the city limits."

Flying Service Gets New Owner

"Harold Chandler of Euclid announced this week that he had recently purchased the interests of Chris Rinkel and Lester Ihle in the Falls Flying Service at the local airport, including two of the planes, a Piper Cub and a Taylorcraft. Chandler also stated that as soon as the snow leaves the ground, he plans to start a GI course in flight instruction, as well as giving private lessons and making charter flights, as was the case when Gordon Camp was stationed at the airport. In addition, he is bringing with him a 1947 model three-place Piper Supercruiser.

"During World War II Chandler served as an instructor with the Air Force for three years, and as pilot of a four-engine transport plane in the Pacific area for two years."

Potato Acreage Goals Being Set In Pennington County

"Initial steps in the establishment of individual potato acreage goals for 1948 got under way this week with the mailing of intention cards to potato growers throughout Pennington county.

"In announcing the start of goals work, Carl R. Anderson, Pennington county ACA chairman, said that individual potato goals will be set for each farmer growing three or more acres of potatoes in the county. The goals will be set on the basis of potato acreage during the 1944 - 1947 period, based on information in the county ACA office and data from reply cards filled out by farmers.

"The individual potato goals will be used in connection with the 1948 price support program. Therefore it is important that farmers accurately fill out the cards and return them to the county ACA office within five days after receipt, Mr. Anderson emphasized."

The Thief River Falls School District #564 is proposing to construct an industrial technology addition onto the Lincoln Senior High School. This addition will replace the industrial technology spaces currently housed in a former snowmobile manufacturing plant several blocks away from the High School. This current industrial technology facility has very little insulation, a leaky roof, poor lighting, ventilation and accessibility problems, and would be costly to renovate. The proposed improvements will provide greater opportunities for community utilization of school spaces.

The proposed construction project will help accommodate the educational program needs of 2,000 students PK-12. The industrial technology addition will provide three technology project stations, restrooms, and office and storage spaces. These school facility improvements will not only enable the school district to continue to meet the educational needs of the students, but will greatly expand the educational opportunities of all the residents of the district.

The total cost of this project is $750,000.00 and will be financed by proceeds from the sale of school district buildings and properties.

This project will not qualify the district for debt service equalization under Minnesota Statutes, section 124.95, subdivision 2.

REVIEW AND COMMENT STATEMENT

Based upon the Department's analysis of the school district's required documentation and other pertinent information from sources of the Department of Children, Families & Learning, the Commissioner of Children, Families & Learning judges the proposed construction to be educationally and economically advisable.

MPCA releases five-year study of water quality

A landmark five-year study assessing Minnesota's ground water resources, "Baseline Water Quality of Minnesota's Principal Aquifers," was released by the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency (MPCA). The study analyzed 954 drinking-water wells across the state for baseline or "background" concentrations of metals, solvent chemicals, nitrates, dissolved minerals (such as calcium, magnesium, potassium and sodium) and more. More than 70 percent of Minnesota households use ground water as their drinking water supply.

The report provides an interesting and complex picture of the distribution of various natural and man-made chemicals in Minnesota's ground water. While the study was written for a technical audience, fact sheets will be developed for lay audiences on such issues as statewide distribution of nitrates (which result from sources including septic systems and agriculture) and arsenic (which occurs naturally in the ground water in some parts of the state). The MPCA compared levels of chemicals detected during the study to Minnesota Department of Health drinking water criteria to aid readers in evaluating water quality in various aquifers.

"We sampled locations over the course of five years from shallow water table to deep bedrock aquifers," says hydrogeologist Tom Clark, MPCA Ground Water Monitoring and Assessment Program (GWMAP). "The MPCA hopes that the data we've collected will assist local decision-makers to evaluate ground water quality in their communities, while helping the state develop future plans for protecting and improving the state's ground water."

Marshall Co. releases local water plan

Anyone with questions or concerns about the Marshall County shoreland ordinance is urged to contact Dan Halvorson, Marshall County Shoreland administrator.

In February of 1995, the county approved a county-wide shoreland ordinance. The responsibilities to administer this ordinance was delegated by the legislature to local units of government.

"Shoreland" means land located within the following distances from public water: 1,000 feet from the ordinary high water level of a lake, pond, or flowage; and 300 feet from a river or stream.

Therefore, if you have property along a lake, river, or stream, a portion of that property (as defined above) will fall under the jurisdiction of the shoreland ordinance. What this means is that you will have to follow the guidelines in the Shoreland Ordinance and obtain permits for activities within the shoreland area. A permit is required for the construction of buildings or building additions (and including such related activities as construction of decks), the installation and or alteration of sewage treatment systems, modifications of feedlots and for specific grading and filling activities. Applications for a permit shall be made to the Shoreland administrator.

If you have any questions or concerns, please contact Dan Halvorson, Marshall County Shoreland administrator at 218-745-4217.

Lego Science class lets students explore

Sixth graders taking one of the exploratory classes at Franklin middle school will have a Leg(o) up on other students when they advance in their science program at the school. They are learning a number of scientific principles by building and using models build from Legos—small interlocking plastic blocks.

"Franklin offers its sixth grade students the opportunity to explore eight different classes or subjects in what we call exploratory classes," notes Lego Science instructor Chuck Walrath.

"For about one month the students participate in an ungraded class which gives them a chance to determine if they would like to investigate the subject further in elective classes in seventh and eighth grades."

Walrath said the classes offered are Spanish, art, computers, music, woodworking, sewing, self-esteem and Legos.

The Legos class has several objectives, Walrath said. They include general creativity, building items from scratch using Legos, and learning the physical science of how gears and levers work. Students also learn team work by working on projects together.

"Another objective is to familiarize students with Legos to encourage them to take the computer Lego class offered in seventh and eighth grade. They also learn first hand the trial and error method of science."

Walrath said students are first taught about gears and levers using small kits and a teacher-directed curriculum. When the class has finished these kits, each pair of students is given a car-building kit with electric motors, switch and battery pack. Each team builds, tests and modifies a vehicle for a race at the end of the class.

During the last week of the Lego science exploratory class, the members go to the school's multi-purpose room for three days to final test and practice racing their cars. On the second and third days a double-elimination race is held.

"The race shows how well they have built their cars, gives them a chance to compete and provides motivation to do their best," Walrath said. "It is an enjoyable learning experience for all the sixth grade students."

DON'T BUY A LEMON!!

They Don't Grow Up Here.
Instead, buy hardy, northern grown trees from Bergeson Nursery.
At Bergeson's, we specialize in trees and shrubs proven to survive in the north over the course of many decades. Over the past sixty years, we have seen what works and what doesn't.

Bergeson Originals:
The nursery's founder Melvin Bergeson introduced many new varieties hardy for this area. The Red Splendor Flowering Crab lines streets all over the upper midwest. The patented Bergeson Ash is a popular fast-growing replacement for the vanishing American Elm. The compact Flame Willow makes a brilliant orange splash on the winter landscape. All were introduced by Bergeson's and are suited for this area.

The Bare Root Advantage:
Bergeson Nursery's state-of-the-art cool storage building allows customers to buy trees in a dormant state with no soil on the roots. Bare root trees are usually just as large as potted trees, are much less expensive, easier to plant and transport, and require very little watering after planting. Planting trees bare root dramatically increases the chances of survival.

The Time To Plant Is Now!
As soon as you can get the spade in the ground. In an early spring such as this one, trees can go in the ground in early April. Bare root trees will not be hurt by a cold spell after planting, as they are dormant and will remain so until they leaf out at the natural time.
If the ground is workable, the time to plant a tree is now!

Spring SEMINARS:
Seminars are held at the nursery and will start at 10:00 a.m. Saturday mornings, coffee and donuts served.
•April 18: Growing Fruit in the North. Class: The very best fruit varieties for the north. Demonstration: Grafting and pruning of fruit trees.
•April 25: Trees and Shrubs Class: The best all-around trees and shrubs for this area. Demonstration: Trimming and pruning of trees and shrubs.

School board has active session Monday evening

Monday night, School District 564 board of education discussed a proposed exclusive merchandising agreement with Pepsi, and expansion at Lincoln High School for shop classes, and summer school as an option to remedial education for students who have trouble with the graduation standards.

Summer School

Some students in the district could be attending summer school this year. A summer school reading program is being proposed in order to provide remediation for students in grades eight, nine, and 10 who have not passed the basic standard test. The students will be given an opportunity to review concepts such as literal and inferential comprehension, critical and creative reading, main idea, cause and effect, fact and opinion, sequencing, details, locating information, and reading rate in order to enhance their skills and prepare them for the test which will be given during the 1998-99 school year.

Summer school will be held from June 8-26, with one session running from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m. and another from 10 a.m. to noon. Based on previous statistics, about nine percent of the ninth graders that took the test received 0 to 49 percent, which 39 percent scored in the 50 to 69 percent range. These percentages equate to 52 students. The results from the current year are not available. They are expected in early May. The district is hoping that there will be from 10 to 15 students in each session. A letter will be sent to students who didn't pass the test and give them an opportunity to enroll in a summer program. It is not mandatory.

A monetary cost will be part of the success of the program. About $2,100 will be needed for salary, and $1,000 for books and supplies. Some teachers have already expressed an interest in teaching summer school. The district, however, will have to go through the posting process.

This is part of the graduation standards program, and the state has mandated that districts provide remediation for students who have not passed the reading test. This proposal, therefore, will be an initial step for the district in assisting students who have difficulty with reading.

Chris Mills, dean of students at Franklin Middle School, also provided the board with information about a proposed summer school program that would focus on math and reading. The program would be for students in grades 6 and 7, and offered to eighth grade students as an option. Mills said he is expecting between 20 to 30 students in the program. The goal of the program is to get to students who will have difficulty with the graduation standards.

■ The board approved a recommendation to proceed with plans for the construction of a vocational and technical education center at Lincoln High School. Plans call for the construction of additional rooms on the southwest corner of the building, located south of the music department.

Pepsi In the Schools

■ The district tabled a recommendation to approve a 10-year agreement with Thief River Falls Pepsi-Cola Co. Under the agreement, Pepsi would provide sponsorship funds in exchange for exclusive carbonated and non-carbonated beverage availability and advertising rights for the school district, the Multi-Events Cultural Center and Northland Community and Technical College. It is estimated that over the 10-year period sponsorship funds would total $100,000. They would also provide a scoreboard valued at $35,000. Commissions were estimated at $216,280, vending programs at $3,000, local program support at $33,540, can panels valued at $250,000, equipment valued at $70,000, and menu boards and merchandising materials at $3,000. The total value of the proposed agreement has been estimated at $710,820 over a 10-year period. Under the agreement, the products made available to students and staff would include: Pepsi, Diet Pepsi, caffeine free Diet Pepsi, Wild Cherry Pepsi, Mt. Dew, Diet Mt. Dew, 7 Up and Diet 7 Up, caffeine free Mt. Dew, Diet caffeine free Mt. Dew, Sunkist Orange, Mug Root Beer, Diet Mug Root Beer, Sunny Delight, Klarbrunn Mineral Water,

Rep. Finseth reviews session at Eggs and Issues Monday

by David Hill
Associate Editor

Rep. Tim Finseth characterized this year's legislative session as positive for residents of northwest Minnesota. Finseth presented a summation of the session and answered questions Monday morning during an Eggs and Issues session at the Best Western which was sponsored by the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce.

The highlight of the session, Finseth said, was the number of projects and amount of money directed to this part of the state. It was very positive, he said.

One of his chief priorities was getting relief to flood-stricken communities. In his wrap-up of the legislative session, Finseth said he pushed for additional grants for dike and levees in the cities of East Grand Forks and Warren. "Over the next two years, East Grand Forks will get $13.8 million and Warren will have $1.2 million to build up the city's perimeter. This is no-string-attached money for each city to use to protect itself from future flooding.

The tax bill also included an amendment, co-authored by Finseth, which would create a special 15-year economic zone in the city of East Grand Forks. Designated by the city, the zone will identify areas that have suffered economically from the flood or from competition with cities in bordering states. Businesses within the zones committed to the area's economic development may qualify for property, corporate franchise and sales tax exemption up to $1 million.

With the good news, however, there was a trade-off that resulted in less money for rebates and less in terms of tax cuts or reform. The tax bill provides $500 million for one-time property tax rebates and almost $427 million to continue the reform begun last year to compress the high tax rates on apartment and commercial property while protecting homeowners. The one-time rebate is similar to the one Minnesotans filed for this spring.

"I am happy that the taxpayers of this state will see at least some of their money back this session," Finseth said. "But the state has collected over $4 billion dollars in excess revenues over the past two years. I'll take the rebate, but I would have much rather we had passed permanent tax cuts."

The other positive elements of the tax bill included the phase out of the sales tax on new farm equipment over the next three years, an increase in education homestead tax credit, while a reduction in the general education levy, which means the state will assume a greater portion of the cost of K-12 education; and a promise made last year to compress rates on all property classes in one year, was renewed.

Dr. Orley Gunderson and Rick Nelson of Northland Community and Technical College, thanked Finseth and Sen. LeRoy Stumpf for their support and hard work in supporting higher education. Nelson noted that the legislature had approved $4 million for a student support services center at the college. The project will consolidate student support areas such as administration, registration, counseling, the business office, at a centrally located front entrance. It will enable Northland Community and Technical College to function and be accessed as one college.

Dr. Gunderson also noted that the tax bill included supplemental funding for higher education.

Rep. Tim Finseth

Sen. Stumpf, was unable to attend the Eggs and Issues meeting Monday, but he did provide a session review. Affordable family housing is goal of new partnership

A new partnership between Midwest Minnesota Community Development Corporation and USDA Rural Development has a goal to create affordable housing in northwest Minnesota.

The partnership involves funding for the creation of a new cooperatively operated construction company and development of a new approach to providing fixed rate mortgage financing that meets the needs of families with a wide range of income levels.

Rural Development and Midwest Minnesota Community Development held a press conference Tuesday, April 14, at 1:30 p.m. in the Crookston city council chambers. Home and site plans were available for review. Kevin Shipley, MMCDC's vice president, discussed the mortgage lending program and the proposed construction schedule.

A significant housing shortage existed prior to the flood of 1997, and that has been increased by flood losses and the limited availability of contractors for new construction.

Rural development officials recognized the need for new approaches to the construction of new homes affordable to those in northwest Minnesota. Their solution was to help form an initiative that could direct new and existing resources to create a new supply of housing.

Midwest Minnesota Community Development (MMCDC), Rural Development and area contractors met several times to discuss alternative approaches. The outcome was to create a cooperatively owned construction company.

To launch the effort, Rural Development is providing $140,000 from its rural business enterprise grant program to be matched by $165,000 from MMCDC. These funds will be used to finance the construction of as many as 20 homes. Land has been procured in Crookston, Thief River Falls and Fosston and construction will begin in the next few weeks.

A second element of this strategy is to provide low cost, low down payment financing to home buyers

Local Legion members to vote on sale of building

by David Hill
Associate Editor

On May 5, members of the American Legion Club in Thief River Falls are expected to vote on a proposal to sell their club building to Pennington County for $250,000. The county is proposing to house low risk prisoners in the building, which would operate as a minimum security facility.

Like many jails in Northwest Minnesota, if you're sentenced to serve time it's likely that a less serious offenders will be placed on a waiting list. Quite often the jails are full. In Pennington county, there's the added fact that there are over 800 other warrants that haven't been executed.

There are at least two factors that help explain why many jails in northwest Minnesota are full: occupancy requirements, and demands by the public to enforce current laws and incarcerate many who have committed crimes.

Pennington county jail has been operating at or near capacity for many years. In fact, it is currently operating under a variance from the Minnesota Department of Corrections which allows the county to operate above occupancy limits. The variance came with a few strings attached. The county had to expand into the recreation room and hire additional employees. According to the sheriff's department statistics for 1997, the number of prisoners jailed increased from 681 to 710, but the number of days served decreased from 7,926 to 7,747.

Other solutions have been attempted. In the past few years, the county has increased participation in the Sentence to Serve program, which allows non-violent offenders to work off their sentence through "Going To See The Elephant" will be presented by the Northland Community and Technical College theater department Thursday through Saturday, April 23-25 at 8 p.m. and Sunday, April 26, at 2 p.m. in the fine arts auditorium at NCTC. Cast members (from left) include Rachel Larson, Newfolden; Jennie Smith, East Grand Forks; Angi Simonson, Minot, ND; and Bobbie Benson, McIntosh.

NCTC theater department to present play April 23-26

"Going To See The Elephant" will be the spring production of the theater department of Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls. The play will be presented Thursday through Saturday, April 23-25, at 8 p.m. and Sunday, April 26, at 2 p.m. in the college theater.

John Doppler directs the play created by Karen Hensel, Patti Johns, Elana Kent, Sylvia Meredith, Elizabeth Lloyd Shaw and Laura Toffenetti. Tickets are $4 for adults and $3 for students and are available at the NCTC ticket office.

Doppler summarizes the play as follows:

Early explorers found the remains of pre-historic mastadons east of the Rocky Mountains. Explorers returned east with stories of the skeletons, and the myth that elephants must roam the west began. From early settlers actually "going to see the elephant," the phrase eventually became a short explanation meaning going to see what's over the horizon or moving to something different or unknown.

For others, "seeing the elephant" meant facing their worst fears in the vast unknown. For many of these, it meant defeat.

"Going To See The Elephant" takes us back to the 1870s where four women struggle with the Kansas wilderness. Ma, played by Bobbie Benson of McIntosh, is an older woman who is a survivor of her own life and inspires others with her wisdom and strength.

Angi Simonson of Minot, ND, portrays Sara, a hard working young wife and mother and a person who is content with her life.

Etta, a young girl who has had a traumatic experience in her life but still is hopeful about her future, is played by Jennie Smith of East Grand Forks.

Rachel Larson of Newfolden takes the role of Mrs. Nichols, a refined Eastern lady who is forced to stay with the other three until her husband recovers from a critical illness.

The four characters experience the isolation and hazards of the prairie. They talk about "going to see the elephant" to discover what power and beauty life can offer them, even in the Kansas wilderness.

"Make plans now to attend this production of experienced student actresses as they act and sing for your entertainment," Doppler said.

Oklee H.S. to present "Meet Me in St. Louis"

Oklee High School will be presenting the three act comedy "meet Me In St Louis" by Sally Benson and Christopher Sergel at Oklee High school on Saturday, April 18, and Sunday, April 19, at 7:30 p.m. This play is being performed by special arrangement with Dramatic Publishing Co. Admission will be $4 for adults, $2 for students. Tickets will be available at the door.

The play is set before the 1904 World's Fair when Mr. Lonnie Smith is offered a job in New York if he would move his family. His wife, children, his father-in-law and cook don't want to move so the girls decide to arrange a problem for their father so Mr. Smith's boss would send someone else to New York. They even do a better job than they planned because they succeeded to have Mr. Duffy sent to New York instead, and caused their father to lose his job.

Erickson, who was an instructor at Northland Community and Technical College (NCTC) in Thief River Falls, was in Duluth as an escort for NCTC students attending a DECA competition.

Proposed JTPA program plan for '98 released

Northwest Private Industry Council has been designated as the administrative entity and grant recipient for Job Training Partnership Act program for the counties of Kittson, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau counties. Recently the proposed job training plan for program year 1998 was released. It describes the administration and program structure of the job training programs to be provided in the seven-county region.

These programs were created through the Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA) of 1982 and the Wagner Peyser Act. The JTPA programs are governed locally by the Northwest Private Industry Council as the representatives of the private sector and the local elected officials designated by their respective counties as the representatives of the public sector for the partnership.

The plan establishes the local goals and objectives in response to the Governor's goals and objectives. The plan emphasizes maximizing coordination of locally-based employment and training programs, reducing the number of area residents dependent upon income maintenance programs, prioritizing functional literacy and transferable skills, increasing the effectiveness of public employment services for both employers and the general public, and improving the quality of services for both employers and the general public, and improving the quality of placements obtained through all Job Service and JTPA employment and training programs. The Wagner-Peyser services are offered to all youth and adults and the Job Training Partnership Act programs are offered to economically disadvantaged youth and adults and dislocated workers.

The plan covers a JTPA allocation of $497,489.00 for adult and youth programs and an allocation of $495,004.00 for the Summer Youth Program and a Wagner-Peyser estimated allocation of $269,492.00.

The plan designates the Northwest Private Industry Council as the administrative entity and grant recipient for the JTPA funds in the seven county area. It designates the Minnesota Department of Economic Security as the program operator for the JTPA adult and out-of-school youth programs, and Inter-County Community Council as the program operator for the summer youth programs. The job services will continue to provide the Wagner-Peyser services programs through the Minnesota Department of Economic Security.

The plan will include a detailed description of the service system, administrative procedures, local services levels to population segments and budget breakdowns. The plan is written in response to requirements of the Job Training Partnership Act. The Wagner-Peyser Act and the Governor's Job Training Council. Anyone wishing to comment on the plan should contact Rodger Coauette by April 31, 1998, at the Minnesota WorkForce Center, Crookston, 721 South Minnesota, Crookston, MN 56716 or call 1-800-657-3791.

• Do not touch, breathe or go near leaking liquids.
• Do not create any spark in the leak area.
• From a safe distance, call 911 or your local emergency number and the pipeline company.
• Do not drive into a leak or vapor cloud area.
• Warn others.
CALL BEFORE YOU DIG

Events mark the Week of Young Child April 20 - 26

by Kathi Carlson
Times Reporter

"Early years are learning years—make them count!" is the theme for this year's Week of the Young Child, April 19-25. The theme serves as a reminder that early childhood lays the foundation for all later learning and impacts whether children succeed in school and later in life.

The Week of the Young Child was established in 1971 by the National Association for the Education of Young Children (NAEYC) to focus public attention on the needs and rights of young children. Celebrations in local communities share the common national theme.

Thanks to the tireless efforts of Jill Johnson of the Family Advocacy Program, the Thief River Falls community will celebrate the Week of the Young Child in a big way with a full slate of activities for young children and their families.

Dr. Erickson has also authored a number of journal articles and book chapters and writes a weekly newspaper column entitled "Growing Concerns." Monday, April 20

Preregistration is required and participation is limited at the Doll and Teddy Bear Clinic on Monday, April 20 from 6 to 8 p.m. at Challenger Elementary School.

Organizers are excited about Northwest Medical Center (NWMC), Dakota Clinic, Great Plains Emergency Medical Services and the Thief River Falls Police Department gathering under one roof to provide an educational and entertaining event for young children of the community.

When children and their teddy bears and dolls arrive at the clinic, they will be issued a personalized armband from NWMC and a health record to be taken to each station. Various health related activities will take place at the stations with children able to see equipment used at the hospital and clinic as well as an ambulance and police car. Physicians will "float," visiting with the children and offering checkups to dolls and teddy bears.

Mayor Mark Borsheim

When the clinic ends at 7:30 p.m., children will have the opportunity to go to the cafeteria where Thief River Falls Mayor Mark Borsheim will sign the proclamation for the Week of the Young Child, and Alicia Haviland will give a brief presentation about fitness for children and parents.

"Appointments" for the clinic can be made by calling 681-8670. Participation is limited to 50 children.

Caring for Children
Is Everybody's Business

The Week of the Young Child has not been celebrated in our community for a number of years and has been resurrected enthusiastically with carefully planned and well-publicized events offering numerous activities and opportunities for young children, their families and other interested persons.

Organizer Jill Johnson has invested many hours in the coordination and promotion of the celebration, and information about the event is everywhere. Table talkers grace restaurant tables; posters hang on windows and bulletin boards, and children's art work is displayed in businesses throughout the community.

Whether we are parents, grandparents or neighbors of children, each of us needs to express our appreciation to Jill and the many individuals and agencies involved with the Week of the Young Child. Children are our future, and caring for children is everybody's business.

Proclamation by Mayor Mark Borsheim The Week of the Young Child

The News From Here

Allyson Mann

And Then There Were Three

All things being relative, I'm not a stupid woman. Early experience with my first child and colic made a long and lasting impression on me: about eight years. After the first four months of her life, and as many sleepless days and nights, I recognized my limits as a human being and decided against having more children. My husband, a naturally solitary man, was quick to agree.

For the next eight years nothing powerful enough came along to change my mind, not our daughter's constant requests for a brother or sister, not Grandma's long distance calls. Time passed. We got a dog. We settled in as a family, and, as far as any more kids were concerned, we were done.

And, then, one day it hit me, like a rock falling out of the sky. I don't remember exactly how it happened, but unbelievably I had to have another child.

I remember approaching my husband:

"Honey?" I said.

"Yes?" he asked, raising his eyebrows suspiciously, never before having heard me use the word.

"Honey," I repeated. "I want another child."

"Another child!!" he cried.

"That's right."

"When?"

"In about nine months."

"You're sure?" he asked.

"Absolutely!" I replied.

"Well," he said, "you're going to have to give me some time to think about this before I decide."

So, I figured I'd give him some time: about a week. I felt I had no choice, he's just that kind of guy.

A week later I approached him again. "Well?" I asked. "Are you ready to have another child?"

"I thought you were going to give me some time!"

"I have," I pointed out.

"But it's been only a week! This is an important decision you're asking us to make."

"You're right," I agreed. "But I've already decided, and the fact is we're going to have to get started soon if we want that baby within the next nine months!"

"Okay, then," he said. "Let's do it."

So we had another baby, although it took us fifteen months, instead of nine, and the experience once again almost killed me. This time I was ten years older, and more set in my ways; having, between children, become accustomed to a few things: long nights, late mornings, regular meals, a little space. Our son was born near the end of April, and a year later I still wasn't getting any sleep.

But then the bug got me again. I had to have another one! This time, though, I could explain it. I was so tired, I had gone insane. I approached my husband.

"Honey?" I said.

"Yes?" he asked, a look of fleeting recognition passing across his face.

"Honey," I repeated. "I want to have another child."

"Another child! Go look at yourself in the mirror! Your eyes are sunken! You look like the walking dead!"

He was right, of course. It didn't make sense. But the call was strong, so strong. "Must be hormones," I said.

He shook his head. "Okay."

And the third one, another son, came soon afterwards.

Since then it's been all downhill. With action-packed days, and action-filled nights, the boys are far harder to handle than our daughter ever was. I'm beyond exhaustion. I've lost any bloom of youth. And whereas once I complained of a chronic lack of sleep, the other day when I heard the word (sleep), I didn't recognize it — and had to grab a dictionary to look it up!

TIMES FOR TODDLERS

ACTIVITIES

Ribbit!

Here's a spring craft worth croaking about! Especially if your children are learning about the color green. Begin by using a green crayon to color both sides of a small paper plate, then fold the plate in half and staple it together. Next, cut out a red tongue, green legs and white circle eyes with smaller black circles glued on. Glue the eyes on the straight top line of the paper plate, the legs to each side of the plate and the tongue anywhere around the bottom between the legs. For extra fun, glue a plastic fly onto the tongue. Now enjoy the frog you have created. Croak, croak!

Jolly, Fanny. Mr. Fine, Porcupine. Mr. Fine, one charming porcupine, does all he can to change his large scary-looking hair-do. But, alas, nothing is successful, until he meets an insightful lady porcupine who teaches Mr. Fine he's perfect just the way he is.

Hoberman, Mary Ann. One Of Each. Oliver Tolliver has one of everything in his home but realizes he has no one to enjoy it with him. How can Oliver make room for two in his one-of-each house?

VIDEO VARIETY

Dr. Seuss' Horton Hears a Who! Horton, the ever-popular elephant, who rhymes his way through life attempts to rescue the miniscule inhabitants of Whoville. Unintentionally, he is turned into a hero when he insists with childlike logic that "a person is a person, no matter how small."

PARENTING TIPS

"Early Years Are Learning Years . . . Make Them Count!"

The 1998 national Week of the Young Child is April 20-26 and will focus on the theme "Early years are learning years make them count!"

Images of early childhood remind us that the early years, birth through age 8, are truly learning years. Every moment is an opportunity to learn more about the world, practice social skills, and gain critical thinking skills and knowledge. The early years lay the foundation for all later learning and shape whether children succeed in school and into adulthood. If we care about our children, then we must ensure that all young children enjoy an early childhood that prepares them to take full advantage of their educational opportunities and to become effective citizens, capable workers and loving parents of the next generation. It's up to us to make the early years count.

Here are some specific ways that you, as a parent or a concerned adult, can help make the early years better learning years.

You can...

- Take time to really watch, listen and appreciate your children.
- Recognize the learning potential of play and everyday activities.
- Read with your child every day.
- Work with your child's teachers and others to improve the quality of early childhood services.
- Do what you can to make your state and community more attuned to children's needs.

Here in Thief River Falls, many activities have been planned to celebrate the "Week of the Young Child." Watch for details in the local media.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

As you read to your child, talk about the story. Ask questions like, "What do you think will happen next?"

America's Education

America's Education System is in desperate need of change. A recent survey conducted by Third International Mathematics and Science Study (TIMSS) has revealed that the US Education Standings are an embarrassment to education itself.

This is a surprise to many government officials who are constantly proposing increased funding for education. Local, state, and federal governments spend over $300 billion a year on education alone. However, to other people this is no surprise; they can see the system deteriorating before their eyes. Programs like "Goals 2000" are being pushed into the system, which will only aid in deteriorating the system faster. And don't think that small communities like ours are being excluded. Effective next year, several local high schools will begin to implement the "graduation standards" which is a component of Goals 2000.

In the Mathematics part of TIMSS, US seniors ranked 19th in standings, far below countries such as Slovenia, Iceland, and Cyprus. Science did not prove to be a strong area for US students either--US ranked a devastating 16th place. Even US advanced science students ranked dead last. This is pathetic when you consider that US spends $1,040 (minimally) per capita in education, while countries like Lithuania spend $22 per capita and the Czech Republic spends $120 per capita. Both of these countries outscored US in either Math or Science. What does this tell us? More funding for education is not the answer, we are just spending more to accomplish less.

Advancement in technology in education is not the answer either. American students already use computers more than most countries that took TIMSS. Having the information in front of you at the push of a few keys is great, but it takes away from the students learning how to find resources and information themselves.

Another alarming find was that US students' standings were lower at twelfth than at eighth grade in mathematics. Also US students were the only students whose standings among the countries fell from fourth grade to eighth grade. The longer American students stay in school the less they are able to fulfill educational objectives.

How can Americans provide a good education for their children without sending them to a foreign country? An increase in home schooling shows that many American parents are taking this "problem" into their own hands since government officials have given no answers other than pouring more money into a proven disaster. The acceptance of home-schooled children into colleges such as Harvard and Yale show the success of this "solution."

Returning God to education may be best answer to this whole question. In 1962 God was officially removed from America's "public" education. Since this unconstitutional act, America's education has "gone down the tubes." SAT scores plummeted rapidly. Before 1963 the scores had always been on the average the difference of only a few points. However, since 1962 America's educational proficiency has shown a remarkably decline.

It is time that Americans start taking this problem seriously. Perhaps the solution should include those things that made America's public education--just 100 years ago--a role model to the rest of the world. And what were these "things"? First, and foremost, God was the cornerstone of America's education system. Secondly, Scripture was the main (often only) textbook for both reading and the teaching of morality. Thirdly, respect (for both authority and property) was a given--not an option. Can we bring America back to the standards it was once known and admired for? A role model for the world? It will take a lot of time, prayer, and hard choices. Will you be a part of the problem or solution?
